TRAP JAPS IN LUZON VALLEY

YANKS DRIVE TO NORTH COAST; SEIZE APARRI

Filipinos Help Take Escape Port

MANILA, June 23 [Saturday]—(AP)—Aparri, last Japanese escape port of Luzon, was captured Thursday by United States 6th army infantry and artillery units operating with Igorrot guerrillas, Gen. MacArthur disclosed today.

Capture of the port at the mouth of the Cagayan valley sealed up an estimated 20,000 Japanese troops in the valley, which already had been bisected by guerrilla capture of the Cagayan province capital of Tuguegarao, 65 miles by road south of Aparri.

The 6th army units and the guerrillas, who crossed the Cagayan river from the west Wednesday night, had secured Aparri by 7:30 a. m. Thursday. Beating off scanty resistance, they then pushed rapidly southward eight miles up the road to Dugo.

Beat Off Tank Charge

The Japanese were fleeing south and east from the Aparri area, but threw in a small counter-attack against the guerrillas at Tuguegarao. Led by an American, Col. Russell W. Volckmann, the guerrillas beat off the tank-led charge on Thursday.

Thirty miles south of Tuguegarao troops of the 37th division advanced five miles north down the river road from Ilagan and captured the town of San Juan. They destroyed a Japanese tank, killed 60 Japanese and captured two 47 mm. guns.

Four miles east of Ilagan they destroyed six Japanese tanks and one baby tank, raising the total of enemy armor knocked out to 23 in two days.

An American spokesman said Japanese forces remaining in the valley were now estimated to number less than two divisions, with probably no more than 20,000 effectives, and that these were broken up into small groups. Previously the Cagayan valley had been suspected of harboring the largest single reservoir of Japanese on Luzon.

Capture Road Junction

Elsewhere on Luzon, the 25th division captured the town of Pingkian, a northern road junction in the mountains, where the Japanese lost 177 dead and five captured in a vain effort to hold on. The 6th infantry driving south from the Bagabag area, meanwhile closed within three miles of Pingkian.

East of Manila troops of the 38th division, the 1st cavalry, and the 102d regimental combat team killed or found dead nearly 500 more Japanese in their cleanup of the Marikina watershed area.

On Mindanao, correspondent Richard Bergholz reported infantrymen led by Maj. Harry L. Snavely, Lancaster, Pa., have entered the village of Gumalang on the northeast flank of Mount Manoy. The enemy is expected to make a strong delaying fight on the steep mountain slopes in that area west of Davao gulf.

Other forces led by Maj. George Willets, Seaside Park, N. Y., drove into the village of Little Baguio on the main Talomo trail after several days of hard fighting.

95th Infantry Is Sent Home; 2d, 5th Move

PARIS, June 22 (AP)—The United States 95th infantry division today was ordered to Le Havre for shipment home. At the same time the 2d and 5th infantry divisions arrived at camps near Reims for return to the United States and reclassification.

The 2d and 5th divisions will be made ready to sail in July, along with the 44th and 87th infantry and 13th armored divisions. It is planned to send all of them, including the 95th, to the Pacific after furloughs and reforming in the United States.

Other units already at redeployment camps include the 209th, 541st, 292d, and 577th field artillery battalions. The 118th evacuation hospital is already on its way to the United States.

Location of Divisions

Of the 11 divisions announced as returning to the United States, here is how the others stand:

86th infantry—Now in the United States.

97th infantry—On the high seas headed for home.

104th infantry—In final phase of staging and due to sail on or about June 26.

8th infantry—Due to sail from Le Havre June 27 and 28.

4th infantry—Moving to Le Havre for early embarkation.

Disposition of the 45th [Thunderbird] infantry division remains to be determined by the war department in Washington.

34th Being Built Up

U. S. 5TH ARMY, Italy, June 22 (AP)—The veteran 34th [Red Bull] division is being built to full strength with troops having less than 85 discharge points and possibly is slated for action against Japan. Troops are being shifted from the 85th and 88th divisions, both all selective service units.

Divisions to Withdraw

WIESBADEN, Germany, June 22 (AP)—American and Russian corps commanders have agreed upon withdrawal of seven United States divisions from a northern bulge in soviet occupation territory, 12th army group headquarters said today.

One of the divisions to be withdrawn is the 6th armored, which will be returned to the United States in the late summer either to be demobilized or held in reserve. Another division, the 30th infantry, is awaiting redeployment.

15,000 Leave Scotland

GOUROCK, Scotland, June 22 (AP)—Fifteen thousand homeward bound American service men today marched aboard the 84,000 ton liner Queen Elizabeth, which brought part of the American army to Europe. Her sister ship, the Queen Mary, already has carried some Americans home.

Most of the men embarking were members of United States 8th air force ground crews or hospital units. They whistled in awe at the 1,031 foot long, 14 deck giant as they went aboard for the five day trip home.

HALSEY TO GET SADDLE TO RIDE MIKADO'S HORSE

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—Adm. Halsey will get a hand made, silver mounted saddle for his proposed ride into Tokyo on Emperor Hirohito's white horse. Work started on it today at Reno, Nev., the treasury announced.

The Reno chamber of commerce, which will furnish the saddle, has asked the treasury to find out the admiral's measurements.

Months ago, Halsey saw a picture of Hirohito on a white horse. He said he wanted to ride that horse into Tokyo, and appealed to B-29 bombardiers to try not to hit the imperial stables.

STRIPS AGENCY OF RULE OVER COST OF FOOD

Final Showdown to Come Today

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 22—The house tentatively voted today to strip the office of price administration of all its powers over food, except rationing, and to coördinate food controls in the secretary of agriculture.

The action, taken during consideration of a bill to extend the price control act for one year from June 30, would place sole responsibility for food prices, production, enforcement of ceilings, and food allotments to domestic and foreign channels in Rep. Anderson [D., N. M.], who will become agriculture secretary July 1.

This was one of the major reforms suggested this week by former President Hoover to solve food shortages and confusion.

Delay Further Action

The amendment, sponsored by Rep. Jenkins [R., O.] and almost solidly supported by Republican members, was approved by a three vote margin — 145-142. The move caught administration leaders by surprise. They immediately succeeded in halting further consideration of the pending bill until tomorrow on a motion by Chairman Spence [D., Ky.] of the banking committee, which carried, 154-132.

Democratic congressmen admitted the move to delay the bill was a stall for time to round up absentee party members with a view to knocking out the Jenkins proposal tomorrow. The amendment is subject to reconsideration by a roll call vote before final passage of the bill.

On the 145-142 teller vote, where members are counted as they march up the center aisle, the Democrats staged a slow "funeral march" in the futile hope of stalling completion of the vote until more administration members could be found to vote.

Heckled by G. O. P.

"Get a hearse!" shouted one Republican member as the Democratic procession slowed to a crawl.

Anderson, the forthcoming agriculture head, took the floor before the vote to inquire whether the proposal would shift food pricing authority to his jurisdiction. Informed that it would, he said:

"The secretary of agriculture is not going to run from that authority, but he does not want to be a policeman as well."

Prior to approval of the Jenkins proposal, the Democratic majority succeeded in defeating five proposed G. O. P. amendments aimed at restricting the OPA.

One, by Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.], would have limited the extension of price controls to six months instead of one year. It lost, 177-126.

Seeks to End OPA

A proposal by Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] to kill the OPA by refusing to renew the price control act was defeated on a voice vote. Hoffman contended that "when an agency has failed, it is time to cut off its head and make a new start."

An amendment proposed by Rep. Crawford [R., Mich.] and rejected, 144-122, would have required the OPA to fix all ceiling prices at a level covering producers' and distributors' costs plus a profit margin equal to a 1939-'40 base period.

A proposal by Rep. Buffett [R., Neb.] guaranteeing costs, but not profits, in fixing ceilings lost by 111-91.

Rep. Kunkel [R., Pa.] proposed an amendment to force the OPA to abolish ceilings on fresh fruits and vegetables in any case where supplies equal or exceed the demand. This lost by 117-94.

Another amendment by Rep. Folger [D., N. C.] and rejected by voice vote, would have required OPA ceilings on all farm products to include product costs plus a reasonable profit to farmers.

Moscow Poles Agree on New, Broader Rule

LONDON, June 23 [Saturday]—(AP)—Polish leaders meeting in Moscow have reached agreement on the formation of a broader based Polish provisional government which will include Wincenty Witos, 71 year old former Peasant party leader, and Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former prime minister of the London Polish government in exile, the Moscow radio reported today.

[A Moscow dispatch said that an allied commission authorized by the Yalta conference to settle the Polish problem announced the plan has the approval of Russia, the United States, and Great Britain. Members of the commission are Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov, United States Ambassador Harriman, and British Ambassador Clark Kerr.]

The full composition of the government, whose formation would end one of the most difficult Russo-British-American problems, will be announced in Warsaw within a few days.

Witos and Stanislaw Grabski, 74 year old former president of the Polish national council, have been invited to join the presidium [board] of the new national Polish council, the radio said.

Other Members Named

Grabski formerly was a member of the London Polish government in exile, which had operated with the support of Great Britain and the United States while a soviet sponsored government operated in Poland.

The report added that Boleslaw Bierut, president of the Warsaw government; Jan Stanczyk, one time minister of labor in the Polish government in exile; M. Thuqut and Lasislas Kiernik, former Polish ministers of interior, would be included in the government.

The text of the announcement said: "Simultaneously it was decided to invite to participate in state activity a number of Polish democratic leaders hitherto resident abroad, among them Karol Popiel, chairman of 'Stronnictwo pracy' [Labor party] as well as Messrs Kolodziej and Zakowski."

The announcement of the agreement reached in Moscow followed quickly the London Polish government's announcement it would appeal to President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill to intercede for 12 Polish underground leaders convicted of diversionary activities behind the Red army lines and to urge the soviet to remove troops from Poland.

51st Security Member

San Francisco, June 22 (AP)—Poland probably will be the 51st member of the allied nations, but security conference officials see small chance of this happening before the conference ends on Tuesday.

The announcement by Moscow radio of the formation of a new Polish government was regarded as definitely clearing the way for Poland to sign the new world charter.

SPEEDY SENATE VOTE ON PEACE PLAN DOOMED

Debate Expected to Go Into September

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 22—A senate vote on ratification of the world peace charter will be impossible before mid-September, members of the American delegation at the world security conference admitted today.

When President Truman arrives here next Monday night to address the final session of the conference on Tuesday, he will be informed regretfully by State Secretary Stettinius, it was learned, of the impossibility of rushing the new league of nations plan to a speedy approval.

Meeting Near Berlin

Mr. Truman had wanted to take with him the senate's indorsement of the charter by a two-thirds majority when he meets Prime Minister Churchill and Dictator Stalin near Berlin in July. He will be told that nearly three months will be required by the senate in consideration of the document.

Senators Vandenberg [R., Mich.] and Connally [D., Tex.] both committed to fight for the charter which was completed here yesterday, will fly back to Washington after Tuesday's signing ceremonies and report to the senate on Thursday and Friday.

Both have drafted speeches in which they will defend the provisions of the paper setting up an international organization dominated by the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, and China. They admittedly face strong opposition but insist they can explain away all doubts.

Screening of Witnesses

There will then ensue a period of at least two weeks, it was stated, before the records of the conference can be assembled in shape to permit hearings before the senate foreign relations committee. These hearings will last at least two weeks, with an attempt being made to "screen" opposition witnesses.

Meanwhile, there will be agitation for a recess of the senate but the administration hopes to prevent that. After the committee hearings and report, there will be another lapse before floor debate begins.

The flood of subsequent oratory and argument will take at least a month, the most optimistic proponents of speed confess.

Sen. Connally said he would call an informal meeting of his foreign relations committee soon after his return to Washington.

Sees "Comfortable Edge"

"It is my confident belief," he said, "that the charter will be ratified by the senate with a comfortable edge over the necessary two-thirds majority. This will be true because of nonpartisan support of the charter. Republicans and Democrats alike will support it. That has been the consistent policy of the foreign relations committee."

Connally said he believed proposals for a senate summer recess could be stopped but he conceded there would be lengthy hearings and debate.

An attempt will be made to attach a number of senate reservations to ratification of the charter, it was predicted, particularly in connection with the social and economic council, the trusteeship system, and the veto power. Lengthy discussion is expected over the retention of American sovereignty over Pacific islands wrested from Japan by armed force.

President Truman will arrive by airplane from Olympia, Wash., where he is now vacationing, at Hamilton field, 30 miles northeast of San Francisco, at 5 p. m. [Chicago time] Monday.

Met by conference leaders, he will head a parade of 75 automobiles which will proceed to the city over the Golden Gate bridge. A series of receptions and dinners will be held at the Fairmont hotel where the President will stay. He will address the conference in the Civic opera house about 7 p. m. [Chicago time] Tuesday.

Did Elliott Get Other Loans? Senator Asks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 22—Sen. Willis [R., Ind.] today demanded a treasury department explanation of the delay in disclosing the $200,000 loan made by John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, to Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the late President. He also asked Treasury Secretary Morgenthau if Gen. Roosevelt has secured similar loans from "other prominent men."

Sen. Willis

In a letter to Morgenthau, Willis said the time that has elapsed since the loan was made in 1941 and its disclosure this month reflects on President Roosevelt and on the operations of the internal revenue bureau.

The treasury department has said it has not permitted Hartford to deduct $196,000 from his 1942 tax return as a loss. Gen. Roosevelt repaid only $4,000 of the $200,000 advanced by Hartford to finance the former's radio deals.

Asks About Delay

Willis asked Morgenthau why the internal revenue bureau had waited until recently to investigate Hartford's claim for deduction. Willis also asked if Morgenthau had discussed the claim with Robert E. Hannegan, national Democratic chairman and recently appointed postmaster general, who was internal revenue collector when Hartford's return was filed.

The Indiana senator also wanted to know if Morgenthau was going to use his 10,000 new agents to investigate "higher brackets" or whether they would concentrate on small business men.

Questions asked by Willis in his letter to Morgenthau were:

"1. Why did the bureau of internal revenue wait until recently to begin investigating Hartford's 1942 deduction of such a large amount? Had the officials of the bureau gained knowledge that Westbrook Pegler intended to make the disclosure?

Improvement Needed

"2. Do you not feel that it is time for drastic improvement in the service of the bureau of internal revenue when this agency of the government is two years behind in investigating the returns of the richest men in America? It is now four years after the war began and five years after income levels began to rise swiftly due to direct and indirect war work.

"3. Would you use the 10,000 new enforcement agents on these higher brackets, rather than concentrating on the small business men while the big ones get by with claiming huge deductions for such losses as the one claimed by Hartford?

"4. Who was the collector of internal revenue at the time the Hartford 1942 return was filed? If the return was made at the usual time early in 1943, Robert E. Hannegan, postmaster general and chairman of the Democratic national committee, was collector. Did you ever talk with Mr. Hannegan about this particular return, and, if so, what was his excuse for not making the necessary investigation at that time?

Asks About Other Loans

"5. In view of the fact that you have access to all records of the bureau of internal revenue, can you tell me whether or not Elliott Roosevelt reported the ultimate disposition of the $196,000 he finagled from John Hartford, and if he did not do this, why not? Also, can you tell me whether or not Elliott Roosevelt negotiated other 'loans' from other prominent men, as has been rumored?

"6. If a young civilian of 29 were to deposit $200,000 or more in a bank, altho having no great noticeable income, would you expect a banker of today to report that as an unusual transaction? Or what exactly do you mean when you request banks to report every unusual transaction?"

NATION'S DEBT SOARS PAST 250 BILLIONS; UP 3 BILLION IN 1 DAY

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—The national debt increased more than 3 billion dollars June 20 and passed 250 billion on its way up—the biggest one day jump since last December—the daily treasury statement showed today.

The increase was attributed to sales to corporations in the 7th war loan drive. The biggest one day increase in the debt during the 6th war loan drive was $3,450,000,000 last Dec. 2.

The total debt, including obligations guaranteed by the treasury, now is $250,366,962,836.55.

Yanks Reveal Royal Hoard of Hungary

ROSENHEIM, Germany, June 22 (AP)—Royal Hungarian treasures valued at $75,000,000 by American military officers have been discovered at Mattsee, 13 miles northeast of Salzburg. Included in the cache, the officers said, was the "Holy Hand of St. Stephen," king of Hungary from 997 to 1038 A. D.

Infantry of the United States 42d division [Rainbow] found the diamond, ruby and pearl studded hand in the home of a 70 year old Catholic priest. This religious relic had rested for 855 years in the royal Hungarian chapel in Budapest.

It has been described by church men as the actual hand of St. Stephen, first apostolic king of Hungary, who was crowned by Pope Silvester II. in 1001 A. D. The hand was said to have been taken from the saint-king's tomb in 1090.

Collaborators Arrested

During its operations, a patrol from the 42d division arrested a score of fascist collaborators. Included, officers said, was Madame Ferenc Szalasi, wife of the puppet premier o. Hungary, and Capt. Ernst von Bombossemn, a top flight Hungarian Nazi leader.

Six bags belonging to Premier Szalasi were found filled with gold, silver, diamonds and other jewels and tapestries. One strong box contained the Franz Joseph royal Hungarian crown silver, officers said.

Father Anton Strasser, village priest who led the patrol to the treasures, said they had been brought to Mattsee last April by a colonel who said that he was an emissary of the royal Hungarian guard and was delivering them for safekeeping.

The American patrol included two Chicagoans, Pvt. Robert J. Demmer and Sgt. Louis Deutsch of 4055 Oakdale av.

German Assets Located

WIESBADEN, Germany, June 22 (AP)—Maj. Joseph Moss Jr. of the finance branch of the military government, said today that virtually all German financial assets have been located and tied down.

Quantities of gold and silver bullion, gems, coins, banknotes, and bonds retrieved from hiding places are being concentrated in Frankfurt on the Main, headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower. United States treasury and British experts are sorting and assessing the wealth.

"Millions of dollars of paper currency have been assembled into vast, unorganized heaps which require individual counting jobs," Moss said. The finance officer said more than 3,000 banks are operating in territory occupied by the 12th army group.

Churchill Congratulates Truman Over Okinawa

LONDON, June 22 [Reuters]—Prime Minister Churchill has sent a message of congratulations to President Truman on the American Okinawa victory. "The strength of will power, devotion, and technical resources applied by the United States to this task, joined with the death struggle of the enemy of whom 90,000 are reported to be killed, places this battle among the most intense and famous of military history," he said.

BROWDER DENOUNCED AS REDS CALL PARLEY ON NEW PARTY 'LINE'

New York, June 22 (AP)—The Communist Political association, committed for the last year to a policy of coöperation with the free enterprise system, will hold a national convention here next month to adopt a new "political line."

In a statement announcing the special convention would be held July 26-28, the CPA's national committee named Earl Browder, president of the association, as "the chief architect" of what it termed "opportunist errors and mistakes" of the American Communists.

Browder and other members of the national board retain their posts "in view of the early date set for a national convention," the committee said, but it named a three member "secretariat," excluding Browder, as "the authoritative spokesman of the CPA."

Browder could not be reached for comment. The CPA offices said he was not in and was not expected.

William Z. Foster, who as national chairman of the Communist party opposed the party's dissolution, was named to the "secretariat," which was given "full authority to act" and to be the CPA spokesman. The other members are Eugene Dennis and John Williamson.

LEAGUE'S POWER IN NATION'S OWN AFFAIRS CURBED

Restriction Inserted at Dr. Evatt's Request

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 22—A provision of the charter of the new league of nations to enforce peace that is fraught with extraordinary possibilities is the section ostensibly prohibiting the league's intervention in the domestic affairs of any of the member nations. This section provides:

"Nothing contained in this charter shall authorize the organization to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the members to submit such matters to settlement under this charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures" under another section of the charter.

This latter section prescribes the "determination of threats to peace or acts of aggression and action with respect thereto by the league's security council." Under this section the security council performs two functions.

Act of Aggression

First, it determines whether in any given situation there is "any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression." In order to reach a conclusion the council may call on the parties to the dispute "to comply with such provisional measures as it may deem necessary or desirable in order to prevent an aggravation of the situation."

Secondly, the council, having determined that a threat to the peace exists, proceeds to the enforcement of peace, at first by invoking economic sanctions and finally, if necessary, by calling the international police force into action against the offending nation.

As finally approved, the prohibition of intervention in domestic affairs is not to debar the council from proceeding with enforcement operations under the second phase of its functions.

Domestic Jurisdiction

Under the first phase, however, in determining whether there is a threat to the peace, the council must be mindful of the admonition not to intervene in any dispute involving matters "essentially within the domestic jurisdiction" of a nation.

As originally drafted at Dumbarton Oaks the domestic affairs section contained no such limitation on the scope of activity of the security council. Australian Foreign Minister Evatt was responsible for the adoption of the limitation.

Dr. Evatt became apprehensive that the domestic affairs prohibition contained a loophole thru which it might be possible for the security council to intervene in a dispute concerning Australian immigration laws, particularly the exclusion of Chinese and other orientals.

China Might Act

Disturbances might occur over the exclusion of Chinese and China might press demands for repeal of the exclusion which would create a threatening international situation.

The security council then might determine that the controversy over the Australian immigration law threatened a breach of the peace and proceed to invoke the peace keeping machinery, possibly against Australia — that is, of course, unless stopped by the veto of Great Britain, a permanent member of the council.

So Dr. Evatt got an amendment adopted which, tho consisting of only three words "of enforcement measures" inserted in the last line, made a lot of difference. As the domestic affairs prohibition was thus amended it would not interfere with enforcement measures but it would prevent the council from declaring an immigration or other domestic question a cause of breaching the peace.

Question Remains

The provision, however, does not clear up the question who shall decide what are and what are not "essentially . . . domestic" affairs.

The communists and other left wingers in many nations, holding that the American high tariff caused the world wide depression of the thirties, contend that this and other economic measures affecting the trade and employment of other countries are no longer purely domestic but international matters in which an international organization is justified in intervening. The new world court is not unlikely to be asked for an advisory opinion on the definition of essentially domestic questions.

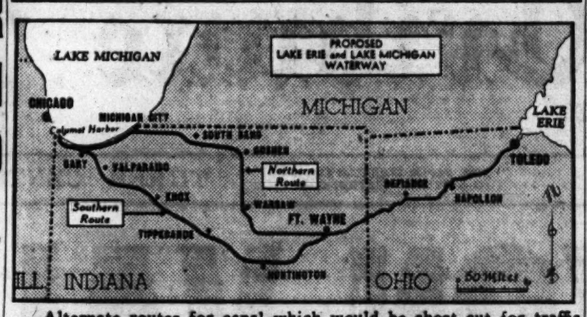
Early in the consideration of the charter the left wingers, thinking of the overthrow of the Spanish republic by the Franco revolution, wanted to know whether the domestic affairs prohibition would operate to prevent intervention by the league to put down a revolution in any country. Undersecretary of State Grew said it would not.

Cites German Situation

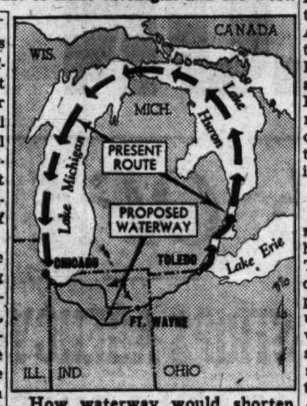
"Certainly," he said, "the security council would act if it considered such a revolution threatened international peace. There is no doubt in my mind that the security council would act if we were faced again by the kind of situation that arose in Germany and Italy under Hitler and Mussolini before the war. And this time we would take action before a war could get started."

That is, if such a situation should arise as that produced by the persecution of the Jews in Germany, the rearming of the country, and Hitler's aggressions upon neighboring peoples, it would be considered sufficient justification of intervention by the league to prevent war.

Proposed Lake to Lake Waterway



Alternate routes for canal which would be short cut for traffic moving from Lake Erie and the east to Lake Michigan and the west.



How waterway would shorten present ship route around lower Michigan.

Public hearings to determine the advisability of constructing an inland canal connecting the south end of Lake Michigan with Lake Erie will be held here July 31, it was announced yesterday by the United States engineer's office in the Merchandise Mart. Such a canal would save hundreds of miles for Great Lakes traffic now routed thru the straits of Mackinac.

The project, which dates back to 1913, was included in a rivers and harbors authorization bill enacted by congress earlier this year and approved March 2 by President Roosevelt. It provides for constructing a 280 mile barge canal from Toledo across western Ohio and northern Indiana to serve the great Calumet industrial area at the south end of Lake Michigan.

However, in previous consideration of the plan, United States army engineers have twice turned thumbs down on it as impractical and economically unsound.

ED JUST A PAL TRYING TO SELL CHARTER TEXT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 22—You learn a lot at a "tea." Ed had one for the reporters tonight. Sure he's secretary of state. So what? He's Ed to the reporters because he called them all Tom, and Bill, and Jack, and Alex. It was just a coincidence that the fellow behind him first called out "Tom," "Bill," "Jack" or "Alex" by name as each came up to shake the hand of State Secretary Stettinius.

Ed and Mrs. Flood were worried. Ed is releasing the text of the international organization charter tomorrow for the Sunday papers, and most of them aren't very happy about it because THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE printed it today.

Mrs. Flood was worrying about cigaret stubs and rings left by martini glasses. She's the lady who lives in the penthouse when Ed isn't having international conferences. Its at the Fairmont hotel, the place where the Big Five have been holding their meetings.

KELLY MAY PUT AID ON TRANSIT BOARD FOR TIME

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he had not chosen the seventh member of the board to govern the Chicago metropolitan transit authority, which is to own and consolidate the surface and elevated lines. He added that he was contemplating a temporary appointment so the board can organize and push forward to acquisition and operation of the properties under public ownership.

Further, the mayor indicated the temporary appointee, if there is one, would be William McKenna, who has the title of assistant to the mayor. He would serve only until it has been determined who shall have the permanent appointment.

The city's experts believe that it is of vital importance that the board be set up at once, so that an early court test of the validity of its powers can be made. This test will be a quo warranto proceeding of a friendly nature.

WON'T ESTABLISH FOOD DICTATOR, TRUMAN REVEALS

He and his staff and Gov. Mon C. Wallgren of Washington drove to Mount Rainier, where they viewed the snow capped peaks and took a walk.

Shortly before they left, a member of the President's staff told reporters that Mr. Truman does not expect to establish a food dictator in the program to unify control over food production, distribution, and pricing.

He expects Clinton P. Anderson to bring about a closer relationship between agencies dealing with all aspects of food and meat handling when he takes over as agriculture secretary and war food administrator.

The idea, the spokesman said, is to bring the programs into balance. He said complete details would be announced later.

Saving of $10,064 Made in Superior Court Costs

Judge Robert E. Crowe, head of the Superior court law division, disclosed yesterday that $10,064 in jurors' fees was saved in the last fiscal year, altho the number of jurors increased by 52. The economy was effected, Judge Crowe said, by keeping a close watch on court needs. Total jury cost the previous year was $179,592, and the last 12 months it was $169,528, Judge Crowe said. Number of jurors for the same periods, respectively, were 4,187 and 4,239.

TRIBUNE FIRST IN BIG AREA TO PRINT CHARTER

Like a perfectly coördinated team that functions brilliantly when the going is hardest, THE TRIBUNE'S editorial, circulation, and mechanical departments yesterday performed an outstanding publishing feat in giving to Tribune readers the text of the final draft of the united nations charter many hours before any other newspaper in this area did so.

As far as is known, only two other morning papers in the entire nation printed the charter—the Los Angeles [Cal.] Times which had a two hour advantage because of its location in the Pacific time zone] and the Omaha [Neb.] World-Herald. No morning paper in internationally minded New York City or Washington, D. C., carried the text, nor did another morning paper in Chicago.

Text Arrives as Surprise

The charter was not expected in newspaper offices until daylight hours Friday, so on Thursday night Tribune editors, copyreaders, and other editorial and mechanical employes planned to quit work at the usual time. The smaller night staff was preparing to take over when suddenly, without bulletin, the Associated Press began sending the text. It would be about 8,000 words, AP announced.

The editor in charge had to decide how the text of the charter could be worked into the paper between editions without displacing other news. The composing room, which already had finished setting type for the one star final, was asked whether it could set an additional 8,000 words. The answer was yes. The pressroom, which was starting the run of the one star, was queried as to whether it could handle two extra pages in the two star run and make the changes between editions. Here, also, the answer was yes.

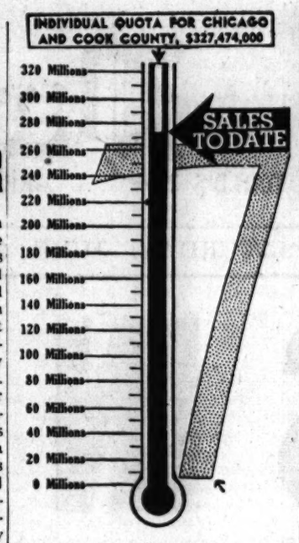
The circulation department, which runs on a precise schedule and has to have each truck at the right corner or the right railroad station at the right minute, likewise promised extra fast performance to make up for unavoidable delays elsewhere.

Many Changes Thruout Paper

Meanwhile the AP copy was pouring in, editors and copyreaders of the city, telegraph, and cable desks were reading it and assembling it, and page after page was going to the composing room to be set. The editor in charge placed a call for Arthur Sears Henning, chief of THE TRIBUNE'S Washington bureau, who was at the Palace hotel in San Francisco, to ask him to write a new account of the completion of the charter. Within four minutes Tribune operators had Henning on the phone. Fifteen minutes later Western Union was moving his copy.

The addition of two extra pages meant that the stereotypers had to mold new mats and cast new plates for every page of the paper, with new numbers, new directions for the jumps [continuations of stories from one page to another], and a new index. The pressroom had to arrange for a larger number of units and a relocation of plates on the presses. Paper rolls had to be changed and eight more men found to operate the presses.

The instant the one star final was off the presses, the changeover was started. Forty-seven minutes later [instead of the customary 20] the presses started roaring again and copies of the two star final, containing the text of the charter, began chuting down to waiting circulation department employes. Trucks received their loads and were off—to city corners, to railroad stations, to news dealers everywhere in the area. Not a paper was late.



Bond sales to individuals in the Mighty 7th war loan in Chicago and Cook county yesterday reached $274,364,000 or 83.8 per cent of the quota, it was announced by Lawrence F. Stern, chairman of the campaign. The total individual quota is $327,474,000. Stern again emphasized the necessity for continued effort to achieve the area's E bond quota of $171,146,000.

Captured enemy war materials from German and Italian battlefields will be given to buyers of E war bonds at noon today during the State st. council's war bond rally at State and Madison sts. Magazine and cartridge carriers, wool pullover sweaters, new serge coats, and trousers, belts and helmets have been shipped here by the quartermaster division of the war department. Any bond purchaser, regardless of the amount he buys, will be eligible for a war material present.

MIKADO HIMSELF MAY TAKE OVER REINS IN JAPAN

San Francisco, Cal., June 22 (AP)—A Tokyo radio commentator said today it was highly possible Emperor Hirohito would invoke "imperial supreme authority" to rule the empire personally should the emergency confronting Japan become more serious.

Such "personal government by the emperor," said the commentator, would "override all the laws that may exist at any given time," but would not be "anything like despotic or absolute government."

Japan's recently enacted war time emergency measures bill, which becomes effective tomorrow, was described as only a "step taken in conformity of what the imperial supreme authority should be." The bill gives the cabinet dictatorial powers. When Premier Suzuki asked the emergency measure he said his government wished to meet the crisis "together with the diet and in one body with the people," rather than have the emperor invoke his supreme authority.

British Ship Yard Workers Complain of Food Lack

NEWCASTLE, England, June 22 (AP)—Representatives of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Trade Unions said today there was dissatisfaction among north Britain industrial workers over a food shortage. The groups, claiming a membership of 100,000, telegraphed the food ministry in London that "recent cuts in ration and present food position here is serious. Fear loss of production, unrest, and perhaps stoppage of work if no improvement."

HALIFAX DOUBTS GLOBAL LEAGUE CAN AVERT WAR

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 22—British Ambassador Halifax promised the world peace under the new international security organization today—until one of the great powers turns aggressor.

"Then," the ambassador said, "you can persuade the great power to give up its evil course, you can acquiesce in what it is doing, or you can use force. That means a general war."

Halifax, head of the British delegation to the international conference, confessed his doubts, in response to questions at a press conference, that the global organization being established here will end war.

Held Better Than League

His formal statement had been devoted largely to the superiority of the new international plan to the league of nations and to other dreams of ending the succession of European wars springing from the rivalry of the great powers.

Halifax defended the veto right of the great powers, by which they can prevent disciplinary action against themselves, in praising the share in international affairs that has been given small nations.

"The great powers," he insisted, "are not trying to set up a hydra-headed dictatorship to run the world. They cannot avoid their responsibility—service to the world. The great powers are the first servant of the common society."

Lauds Trustee Plan

Halifax lauded the trusteeship program for dependent peoples as a great advance made by the conference for the administration of colonial and backward territories. He indicated the new policy was similar to one the British had meant to propose some time ago.

But when he was asked what British colonies his government would place under the trusteeship system he had praised, the tall, gaunt Englishman replied:

"I cannot say what territories any country will voluntarily place under trusteeship."

Halifax's answer recalled Prime Minister Churchill's statement that Churchill had not become prime minister to preside at the liquidation of the British empire.

Promises Unchanged Policy

Asked if a British colony which is self-governing but not independent could become a member of the new world organization, Halifax said that would be up to the security council [the enforcement agency of which Great Britain is a permanent member], after an application had been made for membership.

Halifax pledged that the English elections will not change the British attitude toward the Japanese war. He laid great emphasis upon what he called the continuing policy of the British asserting that his nation's policy does not change, no matter who gets elected.

A Bid for Sympathy

Altho the British insisted and won on the demand that the seat of the new organization's preparatory commission be London, Halifax credited the conference steering committee with having the idea and then tossed the Americans a bouquet with a ribbon guaranteed to win sympathy for the British.

"The steering committee," he said, "was good enough to suggest that the commission meet in London. I don't know where it will meet there. But I've seen some suggestions of Church house, where the house of commons met after being blitzed out. It's a large building adjacent to parliament—and across the road from the statue of Abraham Lincoln."

FEARS HER SON IS IN PERIL AT VETS' HOSPITAL

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—A mother told Rep. Kearney [R., N. H.] today that she fears for her ill son's safety at the Northport, N. Y., veterans' facility.

The hospital has been the subject of recent criticism by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in testimony before the house veterans' committee, of which Kearney is a member. Witnesses for the organization described conditions at the hospital as "intolerable."

In her letter Mrs. Ralph Morris of New York City said that on a recent visit to the hospital she witnessed what she termed a "violent" patient "pick up a chair and hit a visitor." She said "a free-for-all fight broke out among the patients and no attendant was near to preserve order."

"What was evident," Mrs. Morris declared, "was the shortage of attendants, making the situation precarious. We fear for our son's safety, and all the patients and visitors are endangered."

SHAFER REVEALS 'TEXT OF DEAL' INVOLVING KOREA

Says It Calls for Nation to Stay in 'Soviet Orbit'

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 22—In a ringing demand from the floor of the house that the state department tell the truth about Korea, Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] this afternoon made public the text of the reported Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill agreement at Yalta turning over to Soviet Russia the nation which is Japan's oldest enemy.

Rep. Shafer

Shafer called upon State Secretary Stettinius to end diplomatic talk about whether Korea was discussed at the conference and whether an agreement, a penciled note, a typewritten note, an initialed note, a memorandum, a deal verbal or otherwise, a compact, a pledge, a promise, an arrangement, or even a portion of an intimate conversation among the Big Three decided the fate of 30 million people who have been under the Japanese yoke for 40 years.

In Russian "Orbit"

Shafer quoted the text of the deal as: "Great Britain and the United States agree with Russia that Korea shall remain in the orbit of influence of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics until after the end of the Japanese war. It is further agreed that no commitments whatever shall be made to Korea by the United States and Great Britain until after the end of the Japanese war."

The congressman charged that the state department has been evasive with American citizens and with Dr. Syngman Rhee, first president of the provisional government of Korea, on questions relating to Korea. He denounced the department for blocking Korean attempts to participate in the San Francisco conference.

The Korean leader was in the gallery as Shafer made his plea. Tears welled in the eyes of the man who suffered torture and imprisonment at the instigation of the Japanese for his efforts in behalf of Korean independence. He wrung the hand of the congressman after his address.

Asks for Truth

"I want to know the truth," Shafer declared, "and I know that members of this congress also want to know the truth."

Shafer asserted that the rebuff and neglect of Dr. Rhee is a violation of traditional American welcoming of men and women dedicated to seeking human freedom. He cited Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot; Lafayette, the French soldier-statesman, and O'Connell, O'Reilly, and Parnell, Irish leaders. He said this coldness to the Korean leader was not in accord with the desires of the thousands of young Americans who have died fighting for freedom thus far in the war.

"I call upon the American people to demand the Americanization of their state department," he said. "I call upon the state department, not only to answer my questions, but to make a living reality of the San Francisco charter. Here are some of its vibrant sentences, pulsing with the warm blood of heroes.

"I quote: "To reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and value of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small.'

"All right, what about Korea?

Cites Another Passage

"An here's another: 'Membership of the organization is open to all peace loving states.'

"All right. . . . What about Korea?

"One more: 'All . . . members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any member or state or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the organization.'

"And I ask again. . . . What about Korea?"

"Are we going to sell them down the river to communism?" he asked.

"I believe the answer to these questions is no. I believe the churches—Protestant and Catholic—will rise to preserve the worship of Christ, for more than a million Koreans believe His words.

"I believe the answer 'No' will roar eventually from the 11 million of our men who have engaged in battle on 45 fronts of this war.

"I believe that their answer will be swelled by the answer of the folks at home."

HAMMOND CRASH HOLDS UP N. Y. C. TRAIN 2½ HOURS

Traveling at 70 miles an hour, the Paul Revere, fast New York Central railroad train, struck a five ton truck at the Calumet av. crossing in Hammond yesterday. No one was hurt.

The truck, loaded with slag and driven by James De Koker, 8821 S. Paulina st., stalled on the crossing. Unable to start the motor or to move the truck, and aware of the train's approach, De Koker ran up the track in an effort to flag it down.

A curve frustrated his attempt. Engineer J. W. Davis of Elkhart, Ind., failed to see him and the curve obstructed his view of the truck until it was too late. The engine smashed the truck but was so severely damaged itself that the train, bound for New York from Chicago, was delayed 2½ hours while another locomotive was sent from Chicago.

ARMY TO FREE SOME DOCTORS FROM SERVICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 22—Sen. Mitchell [D., Wash.] said today he has been informed by War Secretary Stimson that a special board has been established by the surgeon general to release medical officers no longer essential to the army.

Stimson's disclosure was made in a letter to Mitchell answering the senator's suggestion that the army develop a special discharge system for doctors in view of civilian medical needs.

Stimson wrote that the hospital care of battle casualties from the European theater is rapidly being transferred to the United States as the patients come home. He said that altho medical officer requirements in Europe are decreasing steadily, as Mitchell pointed out in his letter to him, the need for army doctors in the United is increasing sharply.

In view of this need, Stimson continued, the war department has made special requests for the early return of medical officers from Europe. When the hospital load in the United States can be diminished, army medical officers will become available either for discharge or for medical assignments in the Pacific theater, he said.

De Marigny Volunteers for Service in Pacific

MONTREAL, Que., June 22 [Special]—Military authorities said today that Alfred De Marigny, 35, had passed medical tests for Canadian army service as a volunteer in the Pacific theater. De Marigny was acquitted by a Bahamas jury in 1943 of having murdered his father-in-law, Harry Oakes, Canadian-born mining magnate.

IKE SURRENDERS TO HOME FOLKS AT ABILENE FETE

BY EDWARD PRELL
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Abilene, Kas., June 22—Gen. Eisenhower surrendered today, a willing and grinning captive, when an army of 25,000 Kansas neighbors took him into custody. Shortly after noon the general was at large again, having talked himself free with a stirring expression of fealty to the Sunflower state, his home town of Abilene, and Dickinson county.

Thus, on the plains of Kansas, Gen. Ike, commander of the allied forces on the western front, completed a triumphal tour that had included London, Paris, Washington, New York, West Point, and Kansas City. All this, of course, was just preliminary stuff leading up to the Abilene event.

There was less gayety than you would expect, for these hard working Kansas farmers know there is more work ahead for Ike and themselves. For three hours Eisenhower was on display before his cheering home folk and in this period he exhibited emotions ranging from loud guffaws to a serious reminder that this country must not have another war.

Wife at His Side

There was nothing more violent on this sunny day than a breeze thru the trees of Eisenhower park, where the celebration wound up after the general had reviewed an hour long parade. At his side from start to finish was his wife. Missing was his 83 year old mother, who was resting in the family home from the strain of yesterday's celebration in Kansas City.

Eisenhower took the homecoming in modest style. Early in his talk, he refused to accept the outpouring as a tribute to him. "My position here is a symbol to the boys over there," he said. "I am only a symbol of the heroic men you people and other people sent to war."

Parade Depicts History

It was as reviewer of the parade depicting Abilene's historical background that Gen. Ike was in his glory. As it threaded past his reviewing stand, he smiled, bowed, yelled, chuckled, waved his arms, took off his cap, saluted, and clapped. Occasionally, he nudged his wife as a particular float caught his attention.

Such was the case with a series of three scenes depicting early Abilene. One was laid in a dance hall, with two gamblers dueling each other to the death. Another showed a pistol packing mama smoking a corn cob pipe and brandishing a revolver while astride a horse.

The climax came when a float bearing 10 middle aged gents wearing gold and black jerseys came along. These were his Abilene High school teammates of 1908.

Shown As Iceman

One float showed Ike pulling ice at Belle Springs creamery. Another dramatized his graduation from West Point in 1915. Succeeding floats pictured him as a tank expert in World War I, then as the guiding genius in the European war.

Then it was time to go to Eisenhower park where Ike was to be the star. Tom Smith stadium was packed and thousands overflowed on the grass greens leading up to the wooden stage. It was a happy crowd as it waited to hear Ike.

"We cannot have any more wars," he said. "We must be strong enough to present our own case to the world. President Truman must have strong units ready to do his bidding."

Eisenhower said he planned to leave Abilene for the east tomorrow, but did not give the exact time. Despite his fine performance today, the general is weary from the continuous round of receptions on two continents.

BULLET IN BRAIN, BOY, 4, IS FLOWN TO MAYO CLINIC

Rochester, Minn., June 22 [(AP)]—Larry Roe, 4, conscious and chatting freely with a bullet in his brain, was flown to the Mayo clinic here from Great Falls, Mont., in an army plane.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Roe of Fairfield, Mont., was accidentally shot in the right temple while he and a companion were playing with a rifle.

Physicians recommended that he be sent to Rochester for removal of the bullet. The army seventh ferrying command furnished a C-47 transport plane for the flight.

FRENCH SEIZE 5 SLAYERS; SOLVE 8 YEAR MYSTERY

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, June 22—Another European political drama had its denouement today when French security police announced they had arrested five assassins of Carlo Rosselli and his brother, Nello, anti-fascist newspaper men whose bullet ridden bodies were found in Normandy in June, 1937. A sixth assassin escaped to Spain, the police reported.

The Rosselli brothers were accused of organizing a battalion of Italian anti-Fascists to fight against the Franco forces in the Spanish civil war. Carlo was known for his anti-Mussolini sentiments.

Ciano Involved in Deaths

The shooting of the brothers, tho obviously a political crime, remained a mystery for years. Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, was charged in recent years by leftists with having ordered their murder.

French police said the slayings were committed by Fernand Jacubiez and four other members of what was known at one time as "The Cagoulists," a hooded organization resembling the Ku Klux Klan, which opposed the tendencies of the Popular Front and the Leon Blum government.

Seek to Link Petain to Group

Attempts have been made in the pre-trial examination of Marshal Petain to bring out evidence that Petain was linked with the Cagoulists.

Communist and leftist newspapers in Paris tonight made considerable play of the arrest of the killers.

160 JAPS BLOW THEMSELVES UP IN OKINAWA TRAP

Fight On in 3 Pockets; Many Surrender

GUAM, June 23 [Saturday]—(AP)—Japanese still fought back with machine guns and small arms Friday at three points on the south end of Okinawa, where 160 Nipponese were seen to commit suicide with hand grenades, headquarters announced today.

The Japanese air force in raids Thursday night succeeded in sinking two light American units and slightly damaging two others, Adm. Nimitz acknowledged. Enemy planes tried it again Friday morning, but were chased off by American interceptors.

The group suicide took place on the extreme southwestern tip of Okinawa where Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr.'s 6th marine division has a pocket of the enemy surrounded. Another pocket still held out to the east, along the coast south of Mabuni, against Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's 7th infantry division.

Reduce Triangular Pocket

Yet another pocket was fighting with dwindling strength in a triangular area circumscribed by the towns of Aragachi, Medeera, and Makabe. It was being reduced by the 381st and 305th infantry regiments of Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley's 96th infantry division.

Emphasizing the hopelessness of the situation from an enemy standpoint, the bulletin noted that "five machineguns were still active."

The Japanese continued to surrender in unprecedented large numbers, swelling a total already well over 4,000. More than 90,000 have been killed.

Tenth army patrols, working over three weakly resisting pockets, killed 596 Japanese Thursday night and early Friday.

Troops of Capt. Tony Neimeyer, Grand Rapids, Mich., worked over hill 89, where the Japanese commanding officer is believed to have been sealed to his doom in a cave when its two entrances were blown shut.

An unusual number of Japanese officers were surrendering, among them several majors and captains. In previous campaigns very few officers surrendered. Doughboys were blowing up cave mouths and shooting Japanese who tried to escape. Fifty or so Japs jumped to death over the cliffs.

U. S. Flag Goes Up

American fighting men crushed Japan's crack troops on their home soil at Okinawa, Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger told his victorious 10th army as the United States flag was raised officially over the conquered island.

Geiger said: "We have met the Jap on his homeland and with his crack troops and we not only have defeated him, we have destroyed him."

He said the more than 4,000 Japanese captured was by far the largest number ever taken alive in a Pacific campaign. One captured Japanese officer was quoted by the general as declaring the Americans' equipment and spirit were "overwhelming."

Move Mountains of Supplies

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—The army landed more than 250,000,000 pounds of supplies on Okinawa for the 100,000 men composing the invasion force in the first 30 days of the 82 day campaign.

Reporting this today, the war department said these mountains of supplies, with a few exceptions, were carried directly from mainland ports to the area in ships which rendezvoused at sea and eventually snowballed into a huge convoy.

ALASKA BASED BOMBER BREAKS UP JAP CONVOY

ELEVENTH AIR FORCE HDQ., Aleutians, June 21 [Delayed] (AP)—An Aleutian based Liberator bomber patroling the Japanese sea of Okhotsk, west of the Kuriles, Wednesday located nine small enemy cargo ships and in two mast level bombing attacks sank one ship, probably sank another, and damaged two more. The Liberator surprised the convoy 25 miles southwest of Shimushiru, the closest Kurile Island to Japan proper ever bombed from the Aleutians.

The B-24 dropped three 300 pound bombs on each run and expended 2,200 rounds of ammunition causing one ship to blow up. The crew included Flight Officer John E. Rydlund, bombardier of Fort Dodge, Ia., and Corp. Alvin L. Jenson, assistant engineer, Elgin, Ill.

JAP OFFICER DIES OF AN OVERDOSE OF YANK RATIONS

OKINAWA, June 22 (AP)—Marine Pfc. Donald T. Rees, 22, of 2036 W. Garfield blvd., Chicago, was carrying a case of "C" rations toward front lines in Naha when he nodded to another man going the same direction. The other man nodded back.

"Say, Mac," Rees said, "if you're going up to the lines, how about giving a hand with these supplies?" The stranger answered in Japanese, and moved closer, pistol in hand. He was a Japanese officer.

Rees heaved the case of rations at him, closed in quickly, and crushed the Jap's head with the case of rations.

B-29s WIPE OUT KURE ARSENAL AND AIR PLANT

GUAM, June 23 [Saturday]—(AP)—Bombing of the Japanese naval arsenal at Kure and five aircraft factories on the main home island of Honshu by 450 American Super Fortresses made yesterday "one of the most successful days of the war," returned crewmen said today.

Four of the B-29s, with crews of 11 men each, were lost from the force which made the raids in broad daylight in clear weather and dropped high explosives accurately on the targets. The planes ran a gauntlet of intense anti-aircraft fire, so that some crewmen called it "flak alley in technicolor."

Enemy fighters, in moderate numbers but aggressive, attempted interception over two Kagamigahara aircraft factories, but elsewhere the aerial opposition was weak. Flyers said the aircraft factory at Akashi was smashed and that they would have to visit the Kure naval arsenal again.

JOINING MARINE CORPS AT 50 HIS 'BEST DECISION'

Maj. Paul H. Douglas of the marines, until 1942 a University of Chicago professor and 5th ward alderman, passed thru the city yesterday on his way from combat on Okinawa to the naval hospital at Norfolk, Va.

His left arm was heavily bandaged and in a sling, his hair was almost white, and his weight was down 55 pounds, but he had no regrets about the decision which, three years ago, when he was 50, led him to enlist as a private in the marines.

Hopes to Invade Japan

"It was the best decision I ever made—next to getting married," he declared. [Maj. Douglas' wife is Congresswoman Emily Taft Douglas.] "I want to regain the use of my arm and get back to my division by the time we hit the the Japanese homeland."

He spoke with reluctance of the machine gun wound he suffered May 9 on Okinawa in an advance on the Shuri line. "Don't make me a hero," he begged. "The heroes are the privates and the noncoms with the rifles."

Maj. Douglas was eloquent on the subject of the men he had come to know in the service. "They're brave, tough, and able to face hardship," he declared. "They hate heroics."

Will Return to Teaching

Maj. Douglas thought that fears about the difficulties which returning service men will meet in readjusting themselves to civilian life were groundless. He said the separation from home, family, and country had increased their love for and appreciation of these things and that the transition to familiar surroundings would be an easy one.

He refused to talk politics on the ground that he is in military service, but he answered unhesitatingly when asked whether he planned to return to university work after the war: "You bet your life I do!" he said. "I'm a teacher!"

Maj. Douglas' daughter, Jean, was 12 yesterday and he regretted missing her birthday party. But he is looking forward to a reunion Sunday when Mrs. Douglas and the child are to go down to Norfolk from Washington, D. C., to visit him.

GLIDER TRIALS DELAY HIDDEN VALLEY RESCUE

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea, June 21 [Delayed]—With glider trials delayed one more day, the three plane crash survivors imprisoned in the now famous Hidden valley, 130 miles southwest of here, continued to await rescue today.

Lt. Col. Ray T. Elsmore, Menlo Park, Cal., in charge of the technical side of the rescue operations, said it was barely possible the glider would be dropped into the valley tomorrow if tests in snatching the glider from the ground proceed satisfactorily at Wakde, near here.

Meanwhile Sgt. Alfred Baylon of Chicago, a Filipino paratrooper medic, made friends with the natives in the valley by treating skin disorders and mild injuries. Capt. Cecil Walters, Portland, Ore., paratrooper chief, said WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings, Owego, N. Y., one of the survivors, still was the only person who had the real confidence of the natives, however. She was the only one they would trade with. The other survivors are Lt. Joseph McCollom, Trenton, Mo., and Tech. Sgt. Kenneth Decker, Kelso, Wash.

Capt. Walters said there had been high winds and some rain in the valley for the last two days.

ENGINEERS FIGHT BANZAI CHARGE BY BORNEO JAPS

BRUNEI BAY, Borneo, June 22 (AP)—American engineers and navy personnel smashed a Japanese sneak banzai charge on Labuan Island before dawn yesterday and today mopped up some of the remaining Japanese stragglers.

Pvt. Benny Banas

Quickly recovering from the surprise attack, the American service units with the Australian invasion forces killed at least 39 Japanese. They got 14 more today. The Japanese force, which sprang from the jungle, was estimated at 100 to 125.

"Never kicked any one in the face before," said Pvt. Benny Banas of 2219 W. Walton st., Chicago, describing how he resisted a saber attack by a screaming Japanese officer.

Both Start Screaming

"Shots had already awakened me," said Banas, "and I was just pushing aside the mosquito net on my bunk when the Jap came in the tent entrance. He was screaming and brandishing the saber.

"I could see him plainly in the lights from the beach. He was a big guy. I got excited and started hollering, too. We must have made as much noise as the guns going off all around.

"He came at me with the saber swinging. I didn't have a weapon; so I reared back on the cot on my shoulders and let him have both feet smack in the face.

"It staggered him, but he came swinging a second time. I let him have it again. When he swung a third time while I kicked him, the saber fell to the ground. He ran, still screaming like a wildman. He was shot and killed outside. I'll never forget that night. Even our tent burned down."

The Japanese remnants of the Labuan garrison, driven into the jungle by the allied invasion, waded thru swamps to make the attack.

Sentry Shot Down

Australians praised the American engineers, mechanics, and boat crews for the manner in which they beat off the attack on their beach position. They quickly set up guns and manned trucks under fire to evacuate the wounded.

The main group of 60 to 80 after emerging from the swamp crept toward the sea and an American beach party. The Japanese had half a dozen machine guns, small arms, and swords.

An Australian sentry saw them silhouetted along the road about 5 a. m., challenged them, and was promptly shot down. Confusion broke loose, with wild firing on all sides.

The Japanese set a tractor afire and got one machine gun set up on the beach. Its crew was knocked out after firing only a few rounds.

Thirty-nine Japanese dead were counted on the beach.

Aussies Take Air Field

MANILA, June 23 [Saturday]—The Australian 9th division, pressing its invasion of Borneo, has occupied the Miri air field, more than 85 miles southwest down the coast from the Brunei bay area, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

The Australians, after landing at Lutong, five miles north of Miri, pressed steadily southward in the heart of the oil field district, and also were actively patroling both around Lutong and in the Brunei bay area, where they landed June 10.

PICK GEN. GEIGER TO HEAD PACIFIC MARINE FORCE

Washington, June 22 (AP) — Appointment of Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger as commanding general of the Pacific fleet marine force was announced today.

Lt. Gen. Geiger [top] and Lt. Gen. Smith

Geiger, a veteran leader of Pacific amphibious campaigns, took over command of American forces on Okinawa this week after Lt. Gen. Buckner was killed by an enemy shell.

Announcement of his new command, succeeding Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith, was made by Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, commandant of the marine corps. Gen. Smith will head the marine training and replacement command in San Diego, Cal., replacing Maj. Gen. Charles F. B Price, who will go on the retired list.

Pioneer Marine Flyer

The 60 year old Geiger, formerly commander of the 3d amphibious corps, takes over the major fighting forces of the marine corps in the Pacific from one of the most colorful figures in that theater, Gen. [Howlin' Mad] Smith.

A veteran of 38 years in the marine corps, Gen. Geiger is also noted as a pioneer marine aviator and as a leader in marine aerial operations in both world wars. Geiger, who was appointed a lieutenant general only three days ago, was the fifth marine to become an aviator. He organized and led the first marine airwing on Guadalcanal in 1942. He left that post to come to Washington as director of marine aviation.

Led on Bougainville

On Nov. 10, 1943, he became commander of the first marine amphibious corps during the Bougainville battle, relieving Gen. Vandegrift. Its units later formed part of the 3d amphibious corps.

Gen. Smith, a veteran of 40 years in the marine corps, took command of the first marine brigade in 1939 and developed the technique, equipment, and training methods for the amphibious warfare that has carried the American forces to Okinawa. When the fleet marine force, Pacific, was created in Aug., 1944, he became its commander.

Known among the rank and file as rough and tough in the field, Smith directed all ground offenses against the Japanese in the central Pacific from Tarawa to the Marianas. A native of Alabama, he was 63 last April 20. His wife lives at Lo Jolla, Cal.

U.S. SEEKS MASS TRIAL FOR NAZI WAR CRIMINALS

Hearing This Summer

Forecast by Jackson

LONDON, June 22 (AP)—Germany's arch war criminals and their terror-atrocity organizations may be prosecuted "before the end of the summer" in an unprecedented collective trial on a blanket charge of provoking and waging an illegal war, Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson said today.

The chief prosecutor of war crimes for the United States asserted the American plan for fastening guilt upon the Nazis in a single trial before a four power military tribunal would "clear up the whole thing at once."

Jackson emphasized that he could speak only for the United States. But he said none of the three other major western powers had expressed opposition to the plan.

Jackson's statements came as the four powers, the United States, Russia, France, and Britain, arranged for a conference in London early next week in an attempt to reach agreement on the procedure, place, and time of the trials.

Eight Judges May Sit.

Jackson said the United States was advocating trial by a military tribunal on which each of the four major powers would be represented by one or two judges who would decide the degree of punishment to be meted out to those convicted.

Under the American plan, a number of ranking Nazis, such as Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim Ribbentrop, and organizations such as the gestapo and the SS [elite guard], presumably would be brought to trial collectively.

Questioned whether there was "any danger of delays resulting from appeals," Jackson replied that "the only appeal they will have will be to history."

Altho he declined to identify publicly at this time those who will be tried, the American prosecutor said, "No one will be given immunity in high military or official places if there is evidence to prove that he is a war criminal."

300 May Face Court.

Another responsible American source said the list of those to be brought to trial together would include ranking diplomats, major Nazi party chiefs, and industrialists, as well as gestapo and SS policy makers.

This person said that while no decision had been made on a line separating major from minor criminals, the number might run from 35 to 300 for the collective trial.

Asked whether Goering and Von Ribbentrop would be on the list of defendants, Jackson replied, "I would not want to bind my associates, but if I were a newspaper man, I should not hesitate to assume that they would not be omitted."

Of Rudolf Hess, former No. 2 Nazi who fled to England, Jackson commented that "the same answer would go for him."

URGES HALT ON PERSECUTION OF ALBANIA GREEKS

LONDON, June 22 [Reuters]—The metropolitan of Argyrokastron has issued an appeal against "intensified persecution of Greeks in northern Epirus, which has exceeded all limits in recent days," the semi-official Greek news agency reported today. Argyrokastron is the capital of the part of northern Epirus that is on Albanian territory.

Greek families have been deported from southern Albania and their goods stolen, the metropolitan was quoted. He accused "agents of the government of Enver Hodja," communist premier of the Albanian national liberation front government, of systematically exterminating the Greek element in that area and asked for the intervention of allied troops, the agency said.

PROPOSE SOVIET ARMY RELEASE OF OLDER MEN

MOSCOW, June 22 (AP) — Chief of Staff Gen. Alexei Antonov announced tonight that the council of peoples commisars had proposed that the Red army be demobilized on a scale running into the millions of men in the 13 oldest age groups.

Antonov made the disclosure at the opening of the 12th session of the supreme soviet in the great hall of the Kremlin and in the presence of Marshal Stalin. Discussion of the proposal by the 1,000 delegates from thruout the soviet union will begin tomorrow.

In his address Antonov said Russian forces should "remain on a level commensurate with our country's greatness" and added, "We cannot rest on our laurels."

The planned demobilization, if accepted by the supreme soviet—and it is almost certain to be—would be completed by the end of this year.

Antonov did not stipulate exactly what ages the 13 classes would cover. By age groups he referred to soldiers born in specific years. Thus an officer or enlisted man born in 1907 would be in the 38 year old age group.

CASH PAYMENTS

The Moscow radio said generous cash payments were proposed for released soldiers. The broadcast, heard in London, reported:

Rank and file soldiers would get one year's pay for each year of service. The rank and file of special units receiving higher rates would be given six months' pay for each year of service.

Sergeants of all arms would receive six months' pay for each year. Officers would be paid two months' salary for one year of service, three months' pay for two years, four months' pay for three years, and five months' pay for four years.

The law would require councils of the people, commissars, factory managers, and other responsible groups to provide employment for those demobilized not later than one month after their return, and in positions not lower than those they held before they joined the army.

Farms Obliged to Help

Local authorities and collective farms would be obliged to help returning service men restore their farms if they were damaged by the German occupation. Provision would be made for providing ex-soldiers with dwellings and fuel.

Tass news agency said the All-Union bank would be obliged to issue loans of from 5,000 to 10,000 rubles [about $415 to $830 by the diplomatic exchange rate] to demobilized soldiers for restoration of dwellings damaged in occupation areas.

Antonov was quoted as saying the demobilization had been planned so that normal railway transport could be maintained and jobs created for returning soldiers.

FIVE COLUMNS OF CHINESE REACH FORMER U.S. BASE

Battle at Liuchow and Air Field

CHUNGKING, China, June 22 (AP)—Chinese troops, attacking in five columns, pounded tonight upon the South China rail city of Liuchow and its air field. The Chinese high command said one force had broken into the south railroad station.

Unconfirmed reports reaching Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure's headquarters at Kunming said the hub city was burning, that the air field was wrecked, and that Liuchow was so closely invested its fall might be only a matter of hours. The city is 400 miles southeast of Chungking.

Chinese headquarters said Chinese troops had attacked the air base on the city's southern outskirts—abandoned by the United States 14th air force last November — inflicting heavy casualties on the defenders.

Most Japanese Withdraw

Besides the column that penetrated into the south railroad station, the Chinese said, another seized a point on the Kweichow-Kwangsi railroad six miles to the west, two other pressed in from the south and southwest, and a fifth reached the outskirts of Liucheng, about 10 miles northwest of the rail junction, where "fierce fighting" developed.

A Chinese spokesman said the bulk of the Japanese defenders had been withdrawn northeast toward Kweilin—where another American air base was abandoned last fall—leaving only 1,000 to 2,000 Japanese to defend Liuchow.

The Chinese advanced 44 miles upon Liuchow from the west and about 20 miles from the southwest in a week.

Chinese Offensive in Making

While other actions flared over southern and eastern China, a Chinese high command officer said a general Chinese offensive was in the making, but that it might still be "a little time" before such a blow was mounted.

Chinese forces pushing up China's eastern "invasion coast" reached a point 31 miles from Wenchow, abandoned by the enemy last Monday. The Chinese command said a Japanese relief column was thrusting south from Ningpo, 110 miles south of Shanghai, to support the withdrawal along the coastal highway north of Wenchow.

The Chinese spokesman said most of the Japanese troops in the ports of Amoy and Swatow, hundreds of miles farther down the coast, had been withdrawn recenlty. He estimated their strength had been reduced from about 10,000 in each port to 1,000 to 3,000.

The Chinese command reported improvement in Chinese fortunes in southeastern Kiangsi province, in the area west and north of Swatow, where Japanese troops have struck at Chinese strongholds in attempts to build up their South China anti-invasion defenses.

CHICAGO PADRE GIVES HIS LIFE TO AID WOUNDED

BY WALTER SIMMONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

VALENCIA, Mindanao, May 19 [Delayed by censor]—Here in central Mindanao, two miles north of rippling Pinalayusa lake, stands a shattered patch of rain forest no longer than a city block. It is called Colgan Woods. For reasons known to every man in the 31st division it will remain forever sacred ground.

Thomas A. Colgan Jr.

Not a great many men died here but it seemed like a lot to the Yanks of the 1st battalion. One of those who did die was Chaplain Thomas Aquinas Colgan Jr., 2039 W. 95th st., Chicago. This is the story of how Chaplain Colgan lived and also of how he died.

For two years he had been the "padre" of Yanks of the battalion and he was the best known chaplain in the Dixie division. A graduate of Chicago's Carmelite seminary, he went along with the division when it left the United States in February, 1944. He was with it at Aitape, at Wakde-Samri, and at Morotai. He was there when it landed on Mindanao in April.

Always Ready with Jest

He always had smiles and encouragement for everybody; there was joking and laughing about him always. When the going was tough he found a new store of cheer in his McGoggery bag. This was an inexhaustible receptacle which did not exist in fact. From it he sometimes drew articles as large as a chapel, when services had to be held in the jungle and things like chapels could not be had by ordinary means.

Hundreds of GI's belonged to his "Chicago Streetfighters," a club as mythical as his McGoggey bag. He issued finely engraved membership cards bearing the names of Mayor Kelly, Police Commissioner Allman, and William G. Milota, superintendent of the house of correction. The little cards entitled the bearer to a "daylight stopover in Chicago." The chaplain spoke of himself jokingly as a "supreme brawler."

A slight, sandy haired man, the chaplain walked up to the 1st battalion's command post on May 6 when a patch of woods alongside the road was under attack. The assault was repulsed by the Japs. The troops drew back, lay in a heavy mortar barrage, and tried it again. They were thrown back this time with numerous casualties.

The cry of "Medics" went up from the edge of the woods and corpsmen dashed in with stretchers to evacuate the wounded. But the medics, too, were shot down.

Walks to His Death

Chaplain Colgan surveyed the situation calmly. "Those are my boys in there," he said. "They need me. I should be with them." Efforts were made to stop him but he walked into the woods. The men nearest the fighting said he had no sooner reached the wounded than a burst of machine gun fire cut him down. He must have died almost immediately.

Before the woods could be taken marine dive bombers had to blast it with 100 tons of bombs and 3,500 gallons of liquid fire. It was six days before the troops reached the chaplain's body and identified it by the clothing marks.

MANILA, June 22—A Japanese speaking guerrilla fighting with the 24th division on Mindanao saw a group of men squatting at dusk at a stream.

The guerrilla, uncertain of their identity, said in Japanese: "Is this good drinking water?"

"Yes," they answered, in Japanese. The guerrilla killed five.

Elsewhere on the division front Lt. William Spangler, Boswell, Pa., shot a Jap and then when examining his victim learned the Jap was armed only with an American made toy cap pistol.

"I shouldn't have shot him," Spangler reported. "He was almost out of ammunition. He was down to his last roll of caps."

Another lieutenant, John Schwengels, Beloit, Wis., thought he saw a bush move. He watched fascinated as it bounded up a cocoanut tree. He let the bush get 20 feet off the ground before he shot the camouflaged Jap.

Every night just as dusk falls the Yellow Network goes on the air with a one hour show. It's carried on telephones which connect the 24th's wide flung outposts. Pvt. Lyle Rinkel, 612 S. Chicago av., Champaign, Ill., says its gags are funny. Rinkel should know. He is the show's gagman.

Corp. Vincent Knox, Rushville, Ind., is one of the 24th's best equipped artillery spotters. He has a 35 pound 20 power binocular he captured from Jap headquarters.

When the Japs retreated into a series of caves, Corp. Ervin Postelanezyk, 8501 Manistee av., Chicago, kept the Japs back from the entrance with rifle fire while a demolition squad crept up with dynamite and turned the caves into tombs.

A Jap ran into the road and threw a satchel charge under a Sherman tank. The blast killed all of the crew except Sgt. John Danciu, 3501 Block av., East Chicago, Ind. In one of those freaks of the war the concussion blew him thru the turret. "That was a close one," he says.

CZECHS TO TAKE OVER GERMAN FARMS, FIRMS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 22 (AP)—President Benes today ordered the confiscation of all farms and corporations in Czechoslovakia owned by Germans, Hungarians, and "traitors and nazi collaborationists of any nationality."

The decree, intended as the first step in eliminating influences that led to betrayal of the Czechoslovak nation in 1938, was countersigned by all members of the government.

It was estimated that 270,000 small farms owned by Germans, largely in the Sudeten area, would be embraced in the confiscation procedure.

Some circles said they believed the next step would be the expulsion of large numbers of Hungarians, Germans, and Czechoslovak traitors, possibly a total of 3,500,000.

Swedish King Opposes Prince's Plan to Marry

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 22—Prince Carl Johan, 28 year old grandson of King Gustaf, may have some trouble marrying the commoner of his choice, Kerstin Wijmark, a 36 year old newspaper woman. Court circles said the king is determined to prevent the marriage. It had been Karl Johan's intention to marry in August. By so doing he would forfeit his succession rights, titles, decorations, and a $10,000 a year allowance.

DWINDLING FOOD STOCKS ALARM SWITZERLAND

BY P. E. BRIQUET
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, June 22—Switzerland is threatened with famine within a few months unless food imports improve soon, information published in Bern says. It is pointed out that "compared with Anglo-Saxon countries, Switzerland is far from privileged," with Swiss supplies expected to last barely six months at the present rate of imports.

The first quarter of 1945 shows an ominous downward trend. The bread ration has been lowered from 325 grams [.65 pound] in 1943 to 200 grams [.4 pound] last March. Bread now obtainable, a mixture of rye and potatoes, with a little wheat flour, is scarcely edible. Milk has been rationed at 11 quarts monthly since April, 1944. Only two pounds of meat per month are allowed, and the sugar ration is one pound monthly, compared with 1125 grams [2.25 pounds] in 1941. [The current United States sugar ration is 1.25 pounds per month.] The worst problem is fats, including butter which has been decreased from one pound to one-third of a pound. Three eggs monthly were allowed from January to the end of April, this year.

Country Disillusioned

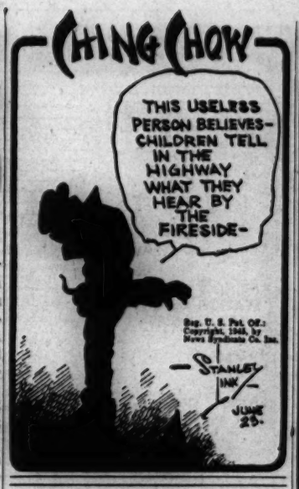
It is now stressed that the economic agreement with the allies reached last March after the visit to Bern of Lauchlin Currie, head of the United States delegation of an allied economic commission, brought great disillusionment to this country, as immediate relief is not forthcoming. In order to maintain the bread ration at 200 grams until next fall at least 6,000 carloads of cereals should be imported. Were it not for the 5,000 tons of rape oils [extracted from seeds of the rape herb] which Switzerland produced at home the situation would already be critical. Tea and coffee reserves will be gone next month.

The agreement with the allies limits import possibilities to 2,200 tons daily. Up to now this figure has never been reached. Cereal imports alone should reach 1,000 tons daily. Four hundred thousand tons now lie in Spanish and Portuguese ports, but unless some supplementary transport facilities are afforded, these supplies are not expected to reach Switzerland before next Christmas.

Genoa Not Usable

Switzerland must transport these with its own rolling stock—there are only 50 engines—which must use, for this purpose, the last reserves of coal in the country. A few weeks ago a ray of hope was glimpsed when a Swiss economic delegation went to Genoa, but that Italian port is not usable now.

The port of Savona, 18 miles west of Genoa, is in perfect condition. The distance from Savona to Chiasso, on Switzerland's boundary, is 120 miles, only one-third the distance from Toulon, France, to Geneva.



ARMY TO CEASE CIVILIAN RELIEF IN PHILIPPINES

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—The army expects to terminate its civilian relief activities in the Philippines on Sept. 1, the war department disclosed today. Testimony before the house appropriations committee revealed that no funds were being sought for that purpose because the army believes the Philippine government and American civilian agencies "have now progressed sufficiently with their plans."

$300 FIRE AT AIRPORT

Fire early yesterday destroyed a one story brick building occupied by the Pennsylvania Central Air Lines at Chicago airport, causing $300 damages.

'LAB' MEN BRING AIRPLANE FLAWS DOWN TO EARTH

Speedy Camera Records Engine Operation

BY FRANK STURDY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]
(Picture on back page)

Cleveland, O., June 22—A tall man in a business suit, standing between two pieces of machinery in the engine research laboratories of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, spoke to a dozen people assembled on chairs before him.

"This camera was built in our laboratory," he said, "and as far as we know, there is no other like it anywhere."

He pointed to a gray painted instrument on his right, looking not like any camera, but like a steel safe mounted on a metal stand.

"It will take 40,000 pictures a second," he said. His voice had a touch of pride in it. "We are working on one that will be about half again as fast."

See Fuel "Knock"

NACA Engineer Cearcy Miller went on:

"The purpose of this camera is to make it possible for us to see the burning of a fuel charge in the cylinder of an airplane engine so we may determine the cause of detonation, which is called 'knock' or 'ping' by automobile drivers. It is destructive, and not infrequently causes engine failures that cost the lives of airmen.

"This knock lasts only 50 millionths of a second, which is the reason for the high speed camera. We project the film like a slow motion movie."

Miller pointed to the contrivance at his left, where a mirror was suspended above a test cylinder with a glass top.

Brilliant Red Flash

"We will fire it only once, because the mirrors become smoked up easily and taking the cylinder apart to clean them is a time consuming job," he said.

He nodded to two attendants, the room darkened, the camera began to whir, and the test cylinder driving mechanism pounded. Suddenly there was a brilliant red flash in the room, so fast it seemed almost like an illusion. The same thing happens a thousand times a minute for each cylinder in an 18 cylinder aircraft engine.

"Now we will show you a movie of such normal burning of a cylinder charge, and another one of the violent explosion resulting from a detonation," Miller said.

Irregular Blast

"Now the detonation charge."

Again the black dots appeared, but as they began to grow, two ran wild. There were no neat triangular pie sections, but irregular blobs bouncing madly about and subsiding into something that looked like quivering jelly before they disappeared.

There may be other institutions in the country about which the military have thrown equal secrecy, but none is more carefully guarded. The writers who saw Miller's demonstration were the first to be shown the NACA's advanced projects in aircraft power plant research, including jet and rocket propulsion. Much of the material cannot be published yet.

Build Laboratories

The NACA's first laboratory was established at Langley field, Hampton, Va. It is now the largest and best equipped such research center in the world.

Expansion of the NACA's work to meet the war's demands required the construction of the special engine laboratory at Cleveland. Another is at Moffett field, Cal., dealing in aerodynamics: the study of why airplanes fly.

Congress appropriated $5,000 a year for the committee's first five years. Now it has an annual budget of 26 million dollars.

The fastest airplane in the United States, perhaps the fastest in the world, is the new Lockheed P-80 Shooting Star, a jet propulsion fighter. Principles of design incorporated in its wing were established by NACA research. They were used also in the earlier fighter planes, notably the North American P-51 Mustang, and the Douglas A-26 Invader.

Conducts Investigations

This fact illustrates the function of the NACA, which is to conduct investigations and reach conclusions likely to be helpful in the future, rather than to correct faults in any particular engine or airplane. All the NACA's information is available to the aircraft industry.

During the war this policy has been suspended. Military necessity dictated that the committee's experts apply themselves to many specific problems that arose in the case of the Boeing B-29 Super Fortress and other airplanes essential to victory.

Since the war started Dec. 7, 1941, the NACA has investigated for the army 42 types of bombers, 50 pursuits, and about 40 miscellaneous types. The navy has profited from the NACA's work to a comparable extent.

LEBANON, SYRIA BEGIN OUSTER OF FRENCH OFFICERS

Call for Removal of Paris' Troops

BEIRUT, Lebanon, June 22 (AP)—Five French civil officials were dismissed from their posts in Lebanon today and the government announced that all other French appointees would be discharged in accordance with a joint Lebanese-Syrian independence declaration announced at Damascus yesterday.

The two nations, disclosing a common policy for winning independence, had agreed on the discharge of French officials in their service and called for the evacuation of all French troops and the surrender of conscriptees still under French command. The statement said Syria and Lebanon intended to defend their sovereignty against any nation in the future.

Of Common Interest

The French appointees dismissed today were the chief engineer, fire chief, public works superintendent, quarantine superintendent, and advisor of the Beirut municipality. Their posts were described as of common interest to Syria and Lebanon.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that Syrians will burn all French language schoolbooks in Damascus during a public bonfire Sunday night.

At Aleppo, Syria, there were reports that north Syrian tribesmen had driven 30 French soldiers from Djerablous across the frontier into Turkey after a skirmish on Wednesday in which some French troops were killed or wounded.

British Will Keep Firm Hand

LONDON, June 22 (AP)—The British foreign office said tonight that British troops would continue to keep a firm hand on Syria and Lebanon "in the interest of the war effort of the allied nations."

Denying that British intervention in the middle east implied any intention to supplant the French, the declaration warned that if British soldiers "have to intervene further to prevent disturbances in the interests of the war effort of the allied nations, British commanders will take action against any one responsible for creating such disturbances."

The British said the fundamental issue in the troublesome situation was "not one of Anglo-French relations, but rather the question of what is to be the future relations between France and the Levant states."

PREDICT KING WILL QUIT IN BELGIAN CRISIS

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, June 22—Leopold III., king of the Belgians when they were overcome by the Germans in 1940, tonight appeared to be slated for abdication. Diplomatic circles said the king so far had failed in his attempts to organize a new cabinet which would accept his return to the throne.

This week, in the Salzburg refuge which has been his home since the liberation, Leopold was making his last try to stage a comeback, but those on the inside of politics here predicted his failure. Practically his last hope for a new and friendly prime minister rested in Manshof van den Meersch, an active underground worker who is prosecuting Belgian Quislings for the present government. Paul van Zeeland, former prime minister and a friend of the late President Roosevelt, originally suggested for prime minister, has reportedly been found better known in America than he is to the population of Belgium.

Repeat Strike Threat

Meanwhile, the Communists, who organized the resistance against Leopold's return with the aid of left wing Socialists and Liberals, this afternoon repeated their threats that a general strike would follow any appointment of a new government by the king. Red leaders said that blood probably would be shed in any attempted coup to displace the king's younger brother, Prince Charles, as regent.

This threat, and some of the ideology of the Belgian Reds, was told to four American correspondents by Dr. Albert Marteaux, a member of the communist political board and minister of health in the present government. He also reported that fire arms were being imported and distributed among collaborationists who, he said, were Leopold's present backers.

Recall Stalin's Letters

"Are Belgian Communists against Stalin for exchanging letters with Hitler at the time of the Belgian army's defeat and Leopold's surrender?" he was asked.

"Russia was not at war with Germany when Hitler and Stalin were communicating," Marteaux said.

"Will the Communists support the regency of Prince Charles and later the rule of Leopold's son when he becomes 18?" was another question.

"The present regent," Marteaux replied, "indicates that he will follow the constitution. We support constitutional monarchy because it does not give the king as much power as the President of the United States. In Mocsow I was told that the most democratic government in the world's history was Belgium under King Albert." [Leopold's father.]

Marteaux said the Communists, Socialists, and labor unions will hold a mass meeting in Brussels to discuss the general strike. He said the date, probably within a few days, has not been set.

"And if the king, meeting with advisers this week-end in his Salzburg [Austria] retreat, appoints a new cabinet before your meeting?" he was asked.

"Then there will not be any electric lights for the meeting," the minister said.

REVEALS BRITAIN GOT BILLION LBS. TOBACCO IN U. S.

Washington, D. C., June 22 [Special]—A billion pounds of tobacco costing about 350 million dollars was shipped to Britain from the United States after the commodity credit corporation in 1939 purchased it for the British when they withdrew from the market at the outbreak of the war, the senate agriculture committee was told today.

The information was supplied by John B. Hutson, who was president of the CCC from 1941 to December, 1944, and is now seeking the committee's approval of his nomination for undersecretary of agriculture.

"I presume the British sold the tobacco to the manufacturers for cash and the latter sold to customers for cash—thus we got an I. O. U. and the British got cash," said Sen. Ellender [D., La.].

Half Sent Lend-Lease

Hutson said that about half of the tobacco sent Britain was handled under lend-lease and the other half was paid for by the British "and not under reverse lend-lease."

"Why has the CCC used its stocks to keep prices down?" asked Chairman Thomas [D., Okla.].

"I don't believe that is true," Hutson replied.

During the early part of the war, Hutson said, the CCC sold grain stocks on hand at less than parity for feed in order "to get a quick increase in meat production — and we got it."

He said sugar supplies for 1945 will be substantially less than were available last year because of an expected short Cuban crop, from which about half the present total supply is obtained.

Bootlegging Reported

Sen. Bilbo [D., Miss.], said he understood that bootleggers were "grabbing off the sugar in our territory by paying higher prices for it to make liquor." Hutson said he didn't know about that but added that he didn't believe any sugar was being used legally in making whisky.

Sen. Ellender moved for an immediate favorable report on Hutson's nomination, but Chairman Thomas announced that the hearing would be continued so any opposition may present its testimony.

Thomas read telegrams in which the nomination was opposed by Commissioners of Agriculture Tom Linder of Georgia and J. D. McDonald of Texas, but said later he expected the committee to vote favorably on the nomination at the close of the hearing tomorrow.

POPE MEETS SINATRA AND ASKS QUESTION: TENOR OR BARITONE?

VATICAN CITY, June 22 (AP)—Pope Pius XII. received Frank Sinatra today, who said he was asked "whether I am a tenor or a baritone."

"I was amazed the pope had heard of me," Sinatra said. "I was speechless. One could hardly think of anything to say. I was mostly impressed by the humanity of the man. I have wanted to see the Vatican since I was a child. I am enthralled by all this grandeur." Phil Silvers, film writer, and Fay Mackenzie, the singer, accompanied Sinatra to the audience.

The pope also granted an audience to Adm. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in European waters, and his staff.

FEDERAL BODIES LACK JOBS PLAN, UNION AID SAYS

Michael Mann, executive secretary of the Chicago Industrial union council, central body of the CIO in this area, charged last night that local government agencies have no coördinated reëmployment plan for peace, and that unless some such plan is drawn up extensive unemployment will result.

He made the assertion after a meeting in the Bismarck hotel attended by representatives of the regional offices of the war manpower commission, the war production board, the United States employment service, the army, navy and the CIO.

The government spokesmen pledged their efforts to ameliorate job losses and changes, and said that one of their principal tasks now is to channel workers to vital spots as needs developed. They agreed that the situation regarding job dislocations is not now acute.

Mann said that the CIO council will appoint a steering committee to draw up a peace work program, and propose to Mayor Kelly that he summon a meeting of business men and representatives of labor to discuss it.

Uncle Declines Free Offer of Home to Fighter's Son

The offer of the Daughters of Zion Infant Home and Day nursery, 1401 N. California av., to provide a free home for Floyd Pittard Jr., 26 months old, whose mother, Florence, 31, died while his father, a 27 year old technical sergeant, was fighting in the Philippines was gratefully declined by an uncle of the baby. The uncle said that altho the child's grandmother, Mrs. Floyd Pittard, 806 Charles st., Aurora, is too ill to care for the child, other members of the family are able to do so.

SIX AUSTRALIAN BRIDES ARRIVE TO LIVE IN U.S.

Six wide eyed Australian war brides and their five sleepy children arrived in Chicago last night. For five of the women, the stop marked only the end of another lap in a long journey.

For Mrs. June Kisiel, 18, and her 12 months old daughter, Carol Ann, the arrival here spelled home, however. They will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kisiel of 1716 W. Cullerton st., parents of June's husband, a motor machinist's mate second class now stationed in Pasco, Wash.

Others who arrived and their destinations are: Mrs. Enid Keefer and Colin, 13 months old, Kingston, Pa.; Mrs. Gladys Davis and Madeleine, 6 months old, Concord, N. H.; Mrs. Evelyn Milton and John, 20 months old, Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Phyllis Harvey and Susan, 17 months old, Newcastle, Ind., and Mrs. Ruth Stockton, Richmond, Va.

LT. COL. HUNTER LISTED AS LOST WITH JAP SHIP

MRS. RICHARD GRANT HUNTER, 14 W. Elm st., was notified yesterday from Washington, D. C., that her husband, Lt. Col. Hunter, artillery officer, went down Oct. 14, 1944, when a Japanese ship with 1,775 United States prisoners of war aboard was sunk by an American submarine in the China sea 200 miles from the Chinese coast.

The adjutant general's office wrote that the officer was not among five prisoners who escaped and four others picked up by the Japanese.

Born Dec. 1, 1896, in Wayne, Neb., Hunter became a regular army officer after World War I. From 1930 to 1936, he was regular army instructor with the 124th field artillery in Chicago. In the Philippines, Lt. Col. Hunter became a prisoner when Bataan fell. Mrs. Hunter said she received from him last January a card written in a Philippine prison camp in July, 1944. He asked that food be sent.

PORT OF GENOA EXPECTED TO BE OPERATING SOON

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

GENOA, Italy, June 22—As Fiat is virtually synonymous with Turin, so the port, greatest in the Mediterranean realm, stands in relationship to this city of Columbus' nativity. And until the port is in full operation Genoa will not be able to resume the place it has held for centuries in Italy's economy.

It will be a long time before this port can handle again 30,000,000 tons of shipping a year as it did before the war. But allied authorities are hopeful that by early July Genoa will be able to unload 8,000 tons a day and the day is not too far off when these docks will handle most of the food and other supplies for Italy and Switzerland.

Genoa was liberated April 27, and it had been expected that the port would be functioning to a good extent within a few weeks of that date. Allied bombings had destroyed some 25 per cent of the docks, but the Genoese went to work with a will to repair that damage.

Detonators Seized

The Germans had planted a thousand pounds of explosives every 30 feet, embedding these charges in concrete. But the detonation controls were seized by Partisans and the Americans, and the demolition was balked.

The enemy had sunk five ships to block the inner harbor. But a channel was forced thru those obstructions.

The big problem, as yet unsolved, has been the removal of water mines. These are of a type not before encountered; they do not respond to magnetic or acoustic detectors.

The harbor has been swept more than 50 times and yet at least 60 mines remain. A few days ago a tug hit a mine. It was blown to pieces and all its crew was killed.

German engineers now are being called in to locate and clear the mines they placed. Only one ship, carrying sulphur and flour, has thus far reached the docks.

Fourth of City Wrecked

The proportion of one-fourth destruction by bombing applies not only to the port but to all of Genoa, according to Lt. Col. Eugene R. McPhee, allied military government officer for the city and province. McPhee is on leave from the directorship of teachers' training at the Eau Claire [Wis.] Teachers college. He has been awarded the bronze star for meritorious service in his administration of Genoa.

The Ansaldo Ship Repair and Steel combine normally employed 60,000 men, and the textile firms also had big pay rolls. As in Milan and Turin, industrial employes are being paid whether they work or not during the present crisis. This applies also to Genoa's port workers, more and more of whom are getting job assignments in reconstruction every day.

The 700,000 inhabitants of Genoa each receives a daily bread ration of 150 grams [approximately .3 pound] and can buy rice, fish, fruits, and vegetables at reasonable cost.

The Genoese accept the Negro troops of the 92d infantry division who are bivouacked in the province and have several rest hotels in the city. More than 100,000 citizens turned out last week when a detachment of the 92d fired 12 guns in a salute to Columbus. The large statue of Columbus was unimpaired during the bombings.

In politics Genoa is quite Red at present. But it is believed that as in Turin, when unemployment ends, there will be a swing toward the right, as the Genoese is essentially conservative.

WAR CRIPPLES BREEZE THRU DRIVING TESTS

American soldiers who lost limbs in battle proved yesterday that they can drive automobiles despite physical handicaps. Men from Percy Jones General hospital at Battle Creek, Mich., demonstrated their driving skill in tests held by license officials south of Soldiers' field.

Ingenious controls—some operated by a hand, foot, or hook—on cars supplied by the automotive industry enabled the veterans to drive. Their success indicated that most of the 11,000 veterans subjected to amputations will be able to join their fellow Americans on the highways after the Japanese war is won.

Staff Sgt. John J. O'Connor of Boston, Mass., who lost his left arm above the elbow at St. Lo, France, showed how easy it is to drive with the gadgets. Others who took the tests included Staff Sgt. Joseph Brodnik, Cleveland, O., who lost both legs in France; Pvt. Robert Wernet, Pontiac, Mich., who lost his left leg; Pvt. Robert Langstaff, Mason City, Ia., with both arms amputated above the elbow, and Ted Aramaki, a discharged Japanese-American soldier who lost his right leg in Italy.

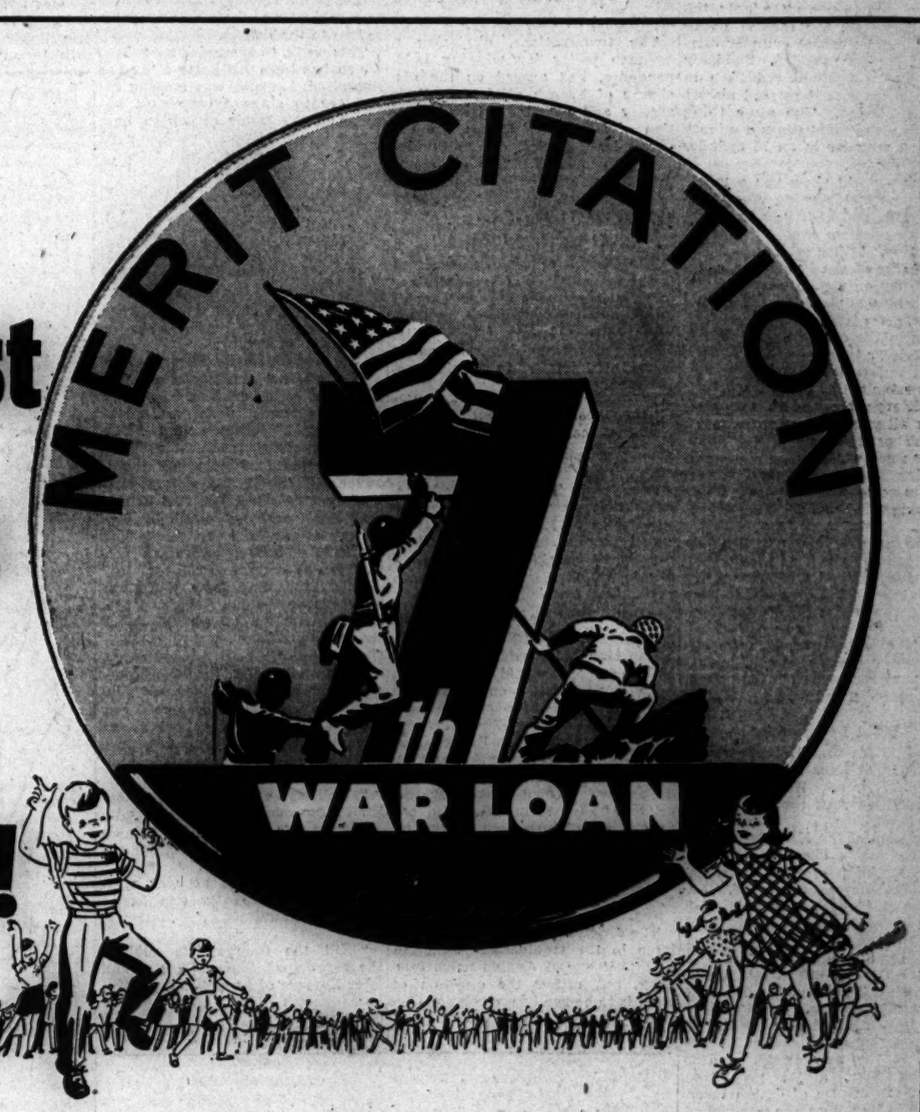
The Biggest Button in the World!



TO YOUR OWN, AND EVERY PATRIOTIC SCHOOL-AGE BOY OR GIRL

The empty coat lapel simply "isn't being worn" on the school grounds of Chicago and Cook County this war spring. That button is the thing!

And though it measures only ⅞ inch in diameter, that button is the "biggest" badge of honor in the world right now for every schoolboy and schoolgirl who ever said, "I pledge allegiance to the flag . . ."

For that proud button says, "I've sold a War Bond in this Mighty Seventh Drive!"

Six hundred sixty thousand strong, the school-age men and women of tomorrow are marching as a mighty army now to sell the bonds that save the lives of dads, of uncles and big brothers. And, for every bond they sell, tomorrow will come a little sooner, and richer when it comes.

There's a contest in it too—with swell prizes. The kids know all about it, but you can read the details at the right. But the big thing in it for every one is the right to wear that citation for merit—that button.

Better fix it so that the boy or girl who looks up to you can flash that button proudly on blouse or sweater, shirt or coat lapel!

The above Official Citation for Merit may be worn only by a schoolboy or schoolgirl who, through his or her own effort, has sold at least one extra War Bond during the Mighty Seventh War Loan Drive. No one else merits or may wear this citation for patriotic service.

TAKE GERMANY'S INDUSTRY APART, BARUCH ADVISES

Warns Against Nazi War Production Threat

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—Bernard Baruch, 74 year old adviser to Presidents, urged today that Nazi industry be taken apart piece by piece and that the Germans be allowed to produce only what they essentially need for their own consumption.

These curbs should apply, he said, until the Germans show a "rebirth of decency." He warned that production now reported under way in some German plants is "a dangerous thing."

Baruch testified before the senate military committee, which is inquiring into Germany's economic status.

Backs Military Training

Drawing on his experience in two world wars, Baruch told the committee:

1—America must have the "wisdom" and "tolerance" to get along with Russia and Great Britain as the real guarantee of peace.

2—The United States must keep a big military weapon, with compulsory training for its youth, to show any incipient aggressor that "we're ready" to take them on.

Germany's whole economy for many years was based on war, Baruch testified, and never again should her industry get a head start to rebuild a war machine.

"They'll try to weep us out of that," Baruch said.

Reparations in Labor

First of all, he said, reparations should be paid by Germany in labor instead of rebuilding the country's industry so it can pay in dollars and again "become a menace to the world."

"Her war making potential must be eliminated," he said. "Many of her plants and factories must be shifted east and west to friendly countries; all other heavy industries destroyed; the Junkers estates broken up; her exports and imports strictly controled; German assets and business organizations all over the world rooted out."

Baruch's testimony served as a background against which a subcommittee headed by Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.] proposes hearings starting Monday into the whole German economic setup. This group has confidential reports that German industrialists already are planning a new attempt at world conquest, Kilgore said.

Toured Europe

Baruch spoke from observation on recent tours of Europe and his World War I. experience as head of the government's economic war effort.

The "painful process" of working out the peace should be backed up, he asserted, by a show of American military strength. Military training for all youth, he said, "would be a darn good thing."

As for feeding the Germans, he said, "in a great measure" they'll have to feed themselves. They look fat now, he added.

HUNT DRUG RING IN SLAYING OF 'STOOL PIGEON'

A narcotics smuggling ring, which operated out of Kansas City, Mo., was believed by police and federal agents to be responsible for the assassination of Carl Carramusa, 37, Thursday night in front of his home at 837 N. Lawndale av. Members of the gang were being sought here and in Kansas City yesterday.

Carramusa, a former member of the gang, obtained leniency from federal authorities by testifying against four confederates, who were convicted in Kansas City on charges of smuggling $40,000 worth of morphine from France by way of Cuba in 1943.

A sentence against the slaying victim had been reduced from four years in prison to six months in jail and probation. He came to Chicago more than a year ago and became a partner in a legitimate ornamental furniture business and tried to live down his past Carramusa's daughter, Virginia, 15, and two playmates saw him slain in his car by gunmen in another car. His widow, Leona, is soon to give birth to a baby.

FEAR OF FAMINE PROMPTS BID FOR FOOD FOR REICH

HDQ. U. S. 21ST ARMY GROUP, Germany, June 22 (AP)—The allied policy that "Germany must feed herself" has come under review since an assessment of the German larder has indicated a food shortage critical enough to threaten famine in some parts of the British occupation zone next winter, it was asserted authoritatively today.

It was said in official quarters that negotiations are under way between British and United States officials for the importation of a limited supply of food from the United States.

Field Marshal Montgomery told correspondents yesterday that wheat would have to be imported into the British zone to raise the average daily caloric count for the German civilian to 2,000. It was explained that it is necessary to take precautions against famine and any subsequent outbreak of pestilence to protect the army of occupation.

VOTE 38 BILLION TO ARMY; MAY BE LAST 'BIG MONEY'

Its Budgets Nearing Quarter Trillion

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—The house appropriations committee approved a $38,500,285,951 supply bill for the war department today to help the army carry out its plans to devastate Japan "at the earliest possible date."

With an expression of hope that the appropriation for the 1946 fiscal year may be the last "big money" measure of the war, the committee made public testimony of army leaders disclosing plans to send waves of 1,000 B-29s daily over Japan by the end of this summer.

May Release More Soldiers

The testimony also revealed official hope that additional demobilizations may be possible without dangerously diminishing reserve forces to be held in this country upon their return from Europe.

The money the committee voted was $586,810,000 below budget estimates and approximately $15,000,000,000 less than war department obligations in the current year. It boosted to approximately $245,000,000,000—almost a quarter of a trillion dollars—the total appropriations and contract authorizations voted the army since July 1, 1940.

Accompanying the committee's formal report on the legislation, slated for house consideration tomorrow, was this warning from Gen. Marshall, chief of staff:

"It would be a costly mistake, a hideous injustice to our men in the Pacific, to relax now in optimistic estimates of the situation. The final victory on the battlefields will be ours, but it must not be delayed by optimistic errors of judgment or impatient demands for a return at home to the conditions of peace."

Army 'Taking No Chances'

Marshall told the committee the army is taking no chances against the Japanese and will intensify to "the maximum degree possible" the offensives in the Pacific.

"Air strikes of constantly increasing power will devastate the Japanese war making facilities and defenses and pave the way for invasion . . . economy in lives and material, as well as the psychology of the American people, demand that we mount a swift, powerful offensive, forcing a victory at the earliest possible date."

Policeman's Leg Broken; Three Attackers Seized

Policeman David Krake, 51, of the Town Hall station, was in St. Elizabeth's hospital yesterday with a fractured right leg and other injuries suffered when he was attacked by three men earlier in the day at Broadway and Montrose av. His assailants were arrested by Sgt. Rupert Fallon. They are Bert Reinhardt, 21, of Long Beach, Cal.; George Cease, 23, of 4536 N. Racine av., and Howard Ayers, 24, of 6008 Broadway. Police said Krake was overpowered by the men when he arrested them on the complaint of a woman that they had snatched her purse.

BACK TO WORK MOVE SEEN IN TRUCK STRIKE

Trucking operations improved in the Chicago area yesterday, seventh day of the truck drivers' strike, as more soldiers and more drivers took over the driving chores.

The improved situation induced Ellis T. Longenecker, federal manager of trucking operations under a Presidential seizure order, to comment that a back to work movement among certain groups of strikers appeared to be developing.

As a result of the bettered conditions, Longenecker and Arthur Schwitert, traffic manager of the Chicago Association of Commerce, issued a joint appeal to all business houses receiving freight to remain open today for a "full trucking work day" to receive accumulated freight previously undeliverable because of the strike.

Predicts 5,000 GI Drivers

Exactly 10,543 soldiers were on duty yesterday, with 3,000 more expected by noon today. More than 2,700 were driving trucks yesterday, with 4,500 more serving as escorts. By Monday, Longenecker said, "5,000 soldiers will be driving and any number of others will be available as escorts."

The dent in the strikers' ranks, in expert labor opinion, did not presage any immediate and complete return to work. Virtually all the men who yielded are members of local 705 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, AFL, whose officers have fought the walk-out at every step. Still 100 per cent absent from their jobs are the 6,000 members of the independent Chicago Truck Drivers' union.

I. B. T. Estimates 6,000 Return

Louis Pike, business agent of the I. B. T. union, estimated that 6,000 of the local's 8,000 members were back on the job. Many returned yesterday in response to personal wires from the union. At many big terminals returns to work increased from 50 to 100 per cent.

An opposite situation existed in the independent union. Many men have found new temporary jobs and many others are clinging to extra jobs which they had held while operating trucks. A random survey showed that numerous independents are determined to stick the strike out even tho they now realize it is futile.

Says Men Realize Futility

Raymond F. Hayes, attorney for the C. T. D. union, also conceded the men were beginning to realize the futility of the strike. He indicated they were impressed by the government's actual possession of the lines and the threat of draft against age qualified strikers. Thirty-seven strikers already have lost deferments.

Less trouble occurred yesterday than on any other day. Police said that Lester Hohman, 1926 Dayton st., and Ernest Gerke, 740 N. Drake av., striking I. B. T. men, charged they were blackjacked by two of their own officials at Halsted and Ohio sts. because they refused to work.

Prisoner Two Years

Capt. Alexander Janta, 35, who served with a Polish panzer division in Holland and was a prisoner of the Germans for more than two years, came to Chicago yesterday. A correspondent for the Polish press in Japan and China before the war, Capt. Janta is on a lecture tour in the United States under sponsorship of the National Concert and Artists' corporation. He was scheduled to address a meeting last night at the Polish National museum and present medals captured from Germans in Holland. "To all of us," Capt. Janta said, "the news that in some instances American army officers were forbidden to fraternize with the Poles in Germany was a terrible shock."

2,500 Strikers Return at McCormick Works

Faced with a war labor board order to return to work and a promise from the board that it would consider clarification of the wage dispute, 2,500 out of 5,000 on strike returned to work yesterday at the McCormick works of the International Harvester company. The workers, most of whom are members of local 108, United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers' union [CIO], struck Tuesday, charging that the company had misinterpreted a WLB wage incentive award. Company officials said they expected a full work force Monday.

PEACE WILL DEPEND ON U. S. AND RUSSIA, GREEK LEADER SAYS

Success of the world peace plan devised at San Francisco will depend largely on whether the United States and Russia maintain mutual good relations, said Kostas Karayorghis, representative of the Greek national liberation front at the conference, yesterday. On his way home, he was the guest of the Greek-American council in the Morrison hotel.

"It is a political question whether the charter will be enforced," he said. "Enforcement will depend on two countries equally: United States and Russia. Unless their relations are friendly, there is great danger. All Europe is watching them."

CHICAGO UNITY GROUPS DISCUSS EQUAL RIGHTS

Delegates to the Chicago Conference on Home Front Unity met yesterday in the Midland hotel for a follow-up session with six commissions on housing, education, health, and welfare, recreation, law and order, and employment which will function this summer under the auspices of Mayor Kelly's committee on race relations.

In discussion were the following subjects: equality of opportunity for employment, assurance of the rights of all citizens, adequate schooling for all Chicago children, equal justice under the law, fair play and equal opportunity for all in private and public recreational agencies, and equal care by health and welfare facilities.

$15,000 Restaurant Fire Ties Up Elevated Traffic

Elevated lines traffic was delayed yesterday morning at the Wilson av. station when fire broke out at the Wilson restaurant, 1020-22 Wilson av. Damage was estimated at $15,000. The flames drove two employes to the street. Lt. Harry Luko, 1732 N. St. Louis av., of the 20th battalion, suffered cuts on his leg and was taken to the Ravenswood hospital.

184th Strike Called Off at Dodge Chicago Plant

The 184th strike since May 2, 1944, at the Dodge Chicago plant, where engines for B-29 Super Fortresses are produced, was settled yesterday when employes of the crank case department returned to work. They struck Thursday in protest over a three day disciplinary lay-off given to an employe who the company charged had refused to do assigned work.

TRAINING A CITIZENS' PEACE TIME ARMY.

Gen. Eisenhower in a letter to the house committee on post-war military policy said that training a reserve army in time of peace was the most efficient and economical means of maintaining preparedness. "The whole concept of organization should be one involving the 'citizens forces' idea," he said.

THE TRIBUNE is in full agreement with that statement, but believes that congress should make certain that any training program approved should be conducted thru the national guard. This organization of the militia is implicit in the Constitution and has been given effect by the national defense act of 1916, creating a separate militia bureau in the war department, which since 1933 has been called the national guard bureau.

The delegates to the constitutional convention of 1787 plainly showed fear of the consequences if a powerful standing army under the control of the national government should ever come into existence. They therefore provided that congress, rather than the executive branch, should control the militia. Congress was to "provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states respectively the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by congress."

The same emphasis upon the protection of the individual citizen against the rise of a military autocracy was manifested in the second amendment, which states, "A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

During the present war the professional military caste has shown a dangerous disposition to circumvent the intentions of the Constitution, and it has been abetted in its desire for power by legislation and the courts. The war labor disputes act authorized the army to intrude into civilian affairs by empowering it to seize property. The invasion of the Montgomery Ward & Co. retail business is one of the results. The recent decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals permitting the army to deprive citizens of property without due process of law has had the effect of annulling the 5th and 14th amendments and clearly demonstrates the necessity of safeguards to prevent an extension of military power endangering the Republic itself.

Rep. Charles R. Robertson of North Dakota recently directed the attention of congress to the army's aspirations for power by reading into the Congressional Record the remarks of a former high ranking North Dakota officer. From his own experience, this man said, "There is a serious danger of the professional military men of the nation becoming too powerful if the national guard and the officers' reserve corps are replaced with a purely professional army.

"There is no question in the mind of any person who has been in the army during the last five years but that the powerful, controlling clique in the regular army has planned for many years to eliminate the national guard at the first opportunity and that every effort was made to attain this objective during the present war. Several general officers openly boasted to the writer that 'the national guard is dead.' One brigade commander issued formal orders that the national guard origin of one of this state's regiments was not to be mentioned by the officers of that regiment in any talks to their men, nor in any news stories which were sent home. 'There is no such thing as the national guard,' he announced, 'and there never will be again.'"

As an indication of the attitude of the professional officer toward the civilian components of the army of the United States, reference was made to a published story that Gen. Marshall had told President Truman, then a member of the senate and a colonel in the officers' reserve corps, when he applied for active service that, "We don't want any old goats like you in the army."

Allegations such as these deserve the thoro investigation of congress. We have been forced into two great wars to check the danger of militarism from abroad. We must not permit it to creep up on the Republic at home. Any provisions for training a citizens' army in time of peace must contain sufficient definite safeguards to prevent the army from taking power from the civilian government and imposing a dictatorship from within.

THE CHARTER AND THE ASIATICS

The text of the San Francisco charter as published Friday in THE TRIBUNE offered the subject peoples of the world plenty of rhetoric but few tangible promises. Very little else could have been expected. Dependent populations were represented either by delegations stooging for the imperialisms, such as the India delegation composed of three British knights, or were not represented at all.

Under the circumstances, the burden of carrying the fight in behalf of the silent millions of Asia and the Indies fell upon Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, and a most able and worthy spokesman he proved to be. Altho Gen. Romulo did not possess the votes or the force to impose his ideas for emancipation upon the conference, he emerges with a moral superiority over his imperialist opponents which even they cannot fail to recognize. He was the only man at the conference who was not driven into hypocritical subterfuges. The reason was that he never was compelled to attempt to justify matters that cannot be justified.

This place of honor went to Gen. Romulo by default. He was the only Asiatic from a country which has undergone the transition from a dependency to independence. The British, the French, and the Dutch have freed none of their subject races; consequently, no representative of these peoples could speak as Gen. Romulo spoke.

So much is understandable, but it is, indeed, a curious state of affairs that the American ideals of liberty should have found their statement before the conference, not from an American representative, but from a Filipino who has acquired his understanding of Americanism thru education rather than as his heritage. If the representatives of the United States were capable of a sense of shame, it would be understandable if they manifested it. While they went slavishly along with the empires, it fell to the lot of a man who is not privileged to be an American citizen to speak for the principles which have always made this country the sanctuary of the cause of freedom.

NO NEWS FROM MOSCOW

Just about the time three members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors returned from a world trip canvassing the prospects for a free flow of news from all parts of the globe, Edwin W. Pauley, American member of the reparations committee, arrived in Moscow. On the way he stopped in Paris long enough to say that Russia is not permitting American reporters to accompany the American delegation, and that he "supposed" that any news would be given out by Russian sources.

The three editors had also visited Moscow. They reported upon their return here that prospects were from fair to good that American reporters will be able to gather news unhampered and transmit it freely from anywhere except Russia. The Russians made no promises. When they discussed freedom of the press with the American editors they said they had it now and that their press was freer than the American press.

Mr. Pauley, and with him the administration in Washington, seem to accept the Russian thesis concerning news. They appear to concede that the news is only what the Russians choose to say it is, altho they are warned in advance that the Russians view news only as a commodity favorable to Stalin, Russia, and communism. It is remarkable that the spokesmen of this country are content to let the Russians be the judge of their actions when it comes to interpreting them to the world. It is still more remarkable that they refuse to protest.

The reparations committee, composed of American, British, and Russian representatives, could have met anywhere in Europe, England, or the United States. The choice of Russia as the meeting place seems more than accidental. Russia is the one place where American reporters cannot come by the facts of the negotiations. A complete lid is on the news there. The suggestion seems inescapable that somebody is reluctant to let too much light shine on what the reparations committee contemplates doing.

The decisions of the committee will dispose of German slave labor to various of the conquering countries. They will legalize the removal of the spoils of war—machinery, rolling stock, supplies, and whatever else is useful. They will fix indemnities. All this is to be done in darkness, with Russia determining what the world is to find out about it. When Mr. Pauley and the administration acquiesced in the ban on American reporters they agreed to a procedure opening the way to vile and vast corruption.

WHOSE BULLFIGHTER IS GORED?

A wandering Tribune reporter came upon Sidney Franklin, the Brooklyn born bullfighter, in Madrid, where Senor Franklin was in training for future engagements. The Brooklyn toreador has won the Spanish equivalent of the Purple Heart in past bouts where he did not always have things his own way. Indeed, an American draft board which looked him over decided he was a 4-F, except in the bullfighting league.

Senor Franklin said that, altho unfit for active duty with an M-1, the official surgeon of the Spanish Bullfighters' Mutual Benefit association had certified him for combat in the ring and that he was slowly rounding into shape, practicing on heifers. A sense of duty to his fans in Spain, he stated, would prevent him from responding to the suggestion of Ernest Byfield, the Chicago hotel man, that he return here and organize bloodless bullfights without banderillas or swords.

Mr. Byfield, altho he operates several restaurants which must have noted the present meat shortage, cannot be considered suspect in advancing this proposal. He did not propose that the bulls be slaughtered, as would not be possible in any event without a slaughter permit from OPA. Apparently he was thinking only of civilian morale: If the public could not have the beef, at least they might have the satisfaction of watching a symbolic triumph over the elusive steak. Perhaps the spectators could have seasoned their popcorn with A-1 sauce. If the bull drew blood nothing would be lost. You can't eat bullfighters, either.

THE BURSTING BUBBLE

[The Hartford (Conn.) Daily Courant]

Cutbacks in war contracts held by contractors in the Hartford area have caused more applicants to seek jobs thru the United States employment service. The bubble of war prosperity has dissolved into thin air for many workers, and will for others.

Current reports indicate that many of those workers who are offered jobs in industry at weekly wage rates less than their war industry pay are disgruntled. A floor sweeper who has been collecting 98 cents an hour in a war factory naturally does not relish a job at 60 cents an hour. The $100 a week mechanic—$100 excluding bonuses for overtime—is understandably bitter when the goose that has been laying his golden eggs dies. But these disappointed job seekers should realize that thousands of employes not benefited by war contracts have been struggling along at lower rates of pay. War workers have been in a preferred class. They should have been cognizant of that fact long ago. Reconversion, as we have pointed out before, implies more than a change-over in products.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. The word "brig" should make one think of Spoor Wake Slipstream Trail
2. A person who has once been jilted in love is likely thereafter to be Critical Cynical Snobbish Sentimental
3. Brer Rabbit should make one think of which berry?
   Strawberry Gooseberry Mulberry Blackberry
4. A bull pen is associated in the sporting world with which one of these? Shoulder guards Rosin bag Catcher's mask Personal foul
5. A protractor would normally be linked with a person who had majored in which one of these college subjects?
   Zoology Geology Psychology Mathematics
6. Try to match the nicknames in the left hand column with their approprate state capitals as shown in the opposite column. You are entitled to one point for each correct judgment.

[a] Badger	[v] Topeka
[b] Wolverine	[w] Madison
[c] Sun Flower	[x] Austin
[d] Keystone	[y] Lansing
[e] Lone Star	[z] Harrisburg

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points].

MR. PEPYS AT ODD JOBS

23d June—Have learned something every man should know, and hasten to impart the low-down on window shades. At my east window, where the sun comes peeping in at morn after I have started my best sleeping, there is a roller shade which has been giving me no end of trouble. Whenever I yanked, it jumped out of its brackets and landed on my head. After my 20th beaning, decided that something should be done without waiting six months for the janitor.

I went to a hardware store and bought new brackets, which I installed neatly, thereby hurting the feelings of the small metal gadget workers' union. Replaced the shade with pride, and gave it a mild yank. The roller jumped out as before and nearly swiped me off the ladder.

I then renewed the investigation, using precision instruments, and found that the roller plus axles was three-sixteenths of an inch too short. This discovery gave me pause. Apparently the window frame had expanded, and maybe the whole house was slowly falling apart.

Found a shademaker, after walking several miles on wild goose chases. When I explained my problem, the expert grinned and grabbed a pair of pliers. Then, with no effort, he pulled the right hand or round axle of the roller out a little. "This part," he said, "is adjustable up to an inch. It must have been pushed in too far."

Carried the shade home, pulled the pin out a little farther, and mounted the roller. Then I yanked cautiously, with an arm up to protect my noggin, and behold, everything was in its right mind again. Why hadn't I learned this trick 50 years ago?

Thus peace and unbroken sleep returned to my ivory tower.

A DREAM AND A HALF AGO

About a dream and a half ago,
A little boy that I used to know
Would romp, and play, and tumble, and grin,
Go rushing out and come rushing in;
He loved his dog and his trains were fun,
And he used to pray when the day was done,
Kneeling in white at his daddy's knee,
And then he would have a kiss for me.

He romped, and played, and grinned, and grew,
And often his hair was combed askew,
And often he talked of the coming day
When he would be grown and would hurry away.
Then that day came and away he went,
On duty to far Pacific sent;
But I like to recall, as I guess you know,
Those days, a dream and a half ago. Casual

The Graduation Blues

Ma hustled my brother and me into our graduation suits. [The year before they had been our confirmation suits.]

At 9:30 a. m. we assembled in the old classroom for the last time to sign autograph books and say hasty good-bys. A feeling of utter loneliness slowly engulfed me in spite of the classroom din. I lingered behind the others and once more affectionately traced the jackknifed initials on my desk. When the teacher called me to join the rest, I quickly scribbled my name on the blackboard for old time's sake.

From the platform we could see Pa and Ma beaming at us and nudging friends. There were tears of pride in Ma's eyes. A lump as big as a crab apple lodged in my throat. The class recited mottoes and sang songs, but I couldn't sing. The principal spoke at length about the future, but I didn't hear him. Finally came the diploma presentation. I was last, and while waiting I hoped that something would come up to keep me in school a year longer.

When family festivities closed the day, I walked back to the schoolhouse. In the dusk I squinted into the cracked windows of the schoolroom. A whisper from its emptiness seemed to say, "You are an outsider now."

CAP AND BELLS

They write me at great length, sometimes,
To quarrel with my foolish rhymes;
To point out metrical abuses
And liken them to Mother Goose's.

They say (God bless 'em) I have skill
And energy, too, but no will
To turn to more enduring lyrics
From jingles, pop. songs, and "satyrics."

They quote . . . but heck! I'll never be
The writer of an Odyssey;
A Byron, Shelley, Keats, or fit man
To mingle with the tribe of Whitman.

No crown of Muse, please, for my head;
I'll take a cap and bells instead. Hig

Contrib Gets the Bird

I sat at my desk writing a contribution to the Line, and as I finished I looked up and saw a bird sitting on a branch of the tree outside my window. He looked at me quaintly, tilted his head on one side, opened his mouth in a prodigious yawn, snapped it tight again with great suddenness, and flew off without so much as a "Please t'ave metcha." I was left with an empty feeling as having come off second best in that encounter. Feeling that the episode contained a moral, I tore up the contribution.

Mrs. R. T. writes: "My husband was a first lieutenant, officers' reserve corps, when he was called to active duty. He now is a major in Europe. His present rank is held in the army of the United States. What rank will he hold when he is released from duty and returns to the reserve rolls?"

The war department has announced that all qualified officers holding AUS commissions will have an opportunity to accept commissions in the highest rank held if they join the ORC when released from active duty in the present war.

W. D. asks: "Does a veteran have to apply for a loan under the GI bill immediately after he is discharged or may he wait until after the war, when real estate prices become more stabilized?"

Veterans desiring a government guaranteed loan must make application within two years after discharge or two years after the war is officially declared at end, whichever is later, but in no case will a loan be guaranteed later than five years after the end of the war. Altho fighting in World War I. stopped on Nov. 11, 1918, the war was not terminated officially until July 2, 1921.

B. D. C. asks: "Does a veteran have to apply for review of his unfavorable discharge within one or two years after release from service?"

Petition for review of discharge may be made any time within 15 years.

"A PLAGUE OF SIGHING AND GRIEF"

THE body has peculiar ways of expressing emotional unrest. Among these reactions is a sigh or two which occurs involuntarily with fatigue, exhaustion, surprise, or great relief. It is so natural that we pay no attention to it.

But were we to continue the procedure for several minutes, unpleasant symptoms would result. Headache, lightheadedness, dizziness, and faintness may be followed by a pounding heart, a sense of constriction in the chest, and numbness and tingling.

Many individuals who are anxious and worried are addicted to the habit—consciously or unconsciously. It is little wonder then that if distress ensues, these persons become unduly concerned and consult the doctor.

As a rule, a thoro investigation will disclose that the heart and lungs are sound. If the physician is on his toes, he will notice that during the checkup the patient is breathing deeply. After a period of relaxation he will request the visitor to inspire and expire quickly for 60 to 90 seconds. All the complaints return and, with this evidence, he explains the phenomenon to the sufferer, making clear that every one who sighs persistently will experience the same manifestations.

The condition is known medically as "hyperventilation." The sensations produced are far from imaginary. The disorder is seen most commonly in women between the ages of 20 and 40, altho any one will be bothered who steps up the rate of respiration over a sufficient length of time. The normal exchange of carbon dioxide and oxygen is disturbed and alkalosis ensues.

Two psychiatrists in San Francisco recently cited the case of a 44 year old married housewife who complained of tiring easily, shortness of breath, palpitation, faintness, and nervousness. Sometimes these came in the form of attacks, accompanied by soreness in the region of the breastbone. One medical man had told her she had heart disease; another blamed the thyroid.

Examination disclosed nothing abnormal. Questioning revealed that she had been unhappy for 22 years because of marital difficulties. It was noted that she sighed more than the average person. She was asked to breathe deeply for 90 seconds. This brought on a feeling of "pins and needles," giddiness, and chest pain. With this she burst into tears, exclaiming, "That's exactly like my heart attack."

The physician first demonstrated just how the symptoms developed. Convincing her that she did not have cardiac disease was only the beginning of treatment. Her family situation was straightened out and in time she became more placid and adjusted. Eventually the tendency to overbreathe disappeared.

If you find yourself sighing to the point of vertigo, look for some mental conflict that needs correction. Perhaps excessive yawning and trying to "catch" the breath have a similar origin.

UNSHED TEARS

Mrs. S. writes: Our 2 year old youngster has never shed a tear, altho she cries often. Is this a serious situation?

REPLY

All that matters is that there is enough fluid to keep the eyes moist. Some have a generous supply, hence the Niagara Falls display.

FORGET-THEM

M. H. writes: What is the cause and treatment of calcified spots on the lungs?

REPLY

These scars indicate an old, healed tuberculous lesion. Many individuals exhibit such areas. No treatment is required.

NOT A FACTOR

W. writes: Does the eating of sweets promote bedwetting?

REPLY

I do not believe that there is any connection between the two unless large quantities are consumed, necessitating an increased flow of urine to eliminate the excess sugar.

A DISCHARGE

H. F. writes: Is catarrh the same as sinus trouble?

REPLY

Not necessarily, as catarrh refers to an inflammation of any mucous membrane in the sinuses, nose, throat, etc.

By MARCIA WINN

[While Miss Winn is ill, Delos Avery is conducting her column.]

Love in Absentia

She sat alone at a table for two near the east window of a Michigan av. restaurant. While she waited she sipped a Martini, slowly, then ordered another and sipped that—more slowly. Several persons in line against the wall, hoping for tables, glared at her poisonously, but she ignored them and idly surveyed the sidewalk passers-by.

It was not until she had finished the second cocktail that she consented to look at the menu.

"I may as well order now," she said.

She chose a fish, cooked to order, and the hate squad by the wall turned a whole battery of flame throwers—their eyes, I mean—against her.

Having at last finished the fish and a dessert and a pony of brandy and two cigarets, she got out her compact and mirror and went to work on her lips, painting them to an extraordinary shape which never was their own, and to an incredible redness which never was anybody's, a moist brilliance.

Then she picked up her napkin, still folded, and pressed the spotless damask against her mouth as the waiter came with the check.

"Give it to him when he comes in," she said. "And give him this."

The waiter took the napkin. The imprint of the painted kiss was vivid and unblurred.

"Women!" he groaned as she stepped out into the sunlight. "That stuff never comes out in the laundry."

Speaking of editorial rejections—and if nobody was I am—here's one from a magazine dated 1904. It's supposed to be a translation from the Chinese:

"Illustrious brother of the sun and moon! Look upon the slave who rolls at thy feet, who kisses the earth before thee, and demands of thy charity permission to speak and live.

"We have read the manuscript with delight. By the bones of our ancestors we swear that never have we encountered such a masterpiece. Should we print it, His Majesty the Emperor would order us to take it as a criterion and never again to print anything which was not equal to it. As that would not be possible before ten thousand years, all trembling we return thy manuscript and beg thee ten thousand pardons. See—my hand is at my feet and I am the slave of thy servant."

A Bus Driver Replies

Sure it's smart to walk north for a ride south. But the man I was gunning for, and I got him, is one who comes out of the Wrigley building at 5 p. m., boards a southbound 51 local, rides it around the loop and stays on to ride north, cheating somebody out of a seat and the company out of a dime. I spotted him the other day and fixed him, because I knew something he didn't, to wit, that a 51 local doesn't have to be a 51 local forever. It can turn into an outer drive limited, and this time it did, while the chiseler sat nice and comfortable on the top deck, thinking he was going home. He had to ride to the Edgewater Beach, which is some miles farther than he wanted to go. When he bawled me out I made him pay the extra dime he owed.

ARMY DENTISTS

Chicago, June 19—Bravo for Capt. I. S. Schipper, whose letter on army doctors and their views on socialized medicine was printed in this column on June 15. All his statements could be applied to the dental corps, too.

My husband is a captain in the army reserve dental corps. He volunteered in 1941 and served 34 months overseas. He has amassed 115 points and, on the strength of his record and the fact that he knows there is an excess of dentists in the army, has asked for a separation from the service. This was refused on the ground that there is a shortage of dentists! Here again is the table of organization work. My husband and thousands of others like him will be kept in the army to the bitter end so that the regular army officers in the higher brackets can keep their cozy ranks and salaries.

My husband is now stationed at a large separation center, where thousands of separatees and discharged men come every week. Their only thought is to get the necessary red tape cut quickly so they can go home to their loved ones. But, no! Whether they need it or not, they are given dental treatment. Not because the army wants them to return to civilian life with healthy mouths, but because hundreds of dentists must be kept busy to keep the command functioning. Most of my husband's superior officers at this busy "mill" have never been overseas.

My husband always deplored nonetheless tactics in his profession. Today he must stomach them without complaint because he is told to do so by his superiors. He is a disillusioned, embittered man, who gave four years of faithful service to his country, for which he has been repaid by cold indifference and sneering condescension by the racketeers of the army dental corps, whose "closed shop" tactics frighten and appall the enlightened.

PROPPING UP RIVAL IDEOLOGIES

Lime Ridge, Wis., June 4—The role which the United States seems destined to play in world affairs is to spend her blood and treasure for the preservation of foreign ideologies. This is altruism with a vengeance. Lend-lease was devised to give succor to people who are not in sympathy with the American form of government. NO SUGAR IN WHISKY

Chicago, June 19—Perhaps some of your readers might be as confused as many people seem to be with the fact that not a single pound of sugar is used in the distillation of American whisky. Many newspapers have been deluged with letters from various sources complaining that, while housewives cannot get enough sugar for canning, distillers "can get all the sugar they want for distilling whisky." We thought you would be interested in knowing the facts—namely: that there is not a single pound of sugar used in making whisky.

Stewart Berkshire, deputy commissioner of the alcohol tax unit of the treasury department, has gone on record as saying: "During the year ended June 30, 1941 [the last period immediately prior to conversion to war production], registered distilleries used grain for whisky, gin, and high proof spirits. No sugar was used."

Lake Foresters Begin Trek to Ontario Resort

BY JUDITH CASS

THE large group of Lake Foresters with summer homes just over the international border in Desbarats, Ont., has begun its annual trek to that summer retreat. Among the first to travel northward are the Donald McGibneys, who left Tuesday with her daughters, Miss Fredericka Owen and Mrs. Thomas Pook, and little Peter Pook. They will spend the summer on their own group of tiny islands, which are connected by a series of small bridges. Miss Florence Owen and David Owen, who recently was graduated from the navy V-12 school at Northwestern university, joined them Thursday, when David took two of his classmates up to spend their short leaves before reporting in July to naval reserve midshipmen schools.

For the first time since the beginning of the war, the G. Corson Ellises and three of their sons, Corson Jr., David, and Bill, will go to Desbarats for a month's stay, leaving July 3. In previous years Mrs. Ellis has been too busy with her work with the office of civilian defense and the veterans' information center here to spend more than an occasional week-end in the retreat. She will be on leave from the information center. Their eldest son, Thorne, is on duty with the navy in Corpus Christi, Tex.

As soon as Mrs. Alexander Bell returns from Washington, D. C., where she has been visiting friends, she and her husband and their two children, Stewart and Chartis, will travel to Desbarats to spend the summer. They will be joined about the middle of July by his parents, the Allen Bells, who will go up for a short visit. Other all-season residents who will go up soon are Mrs. Theodore Proxmire and her daughter, Mrs. John E. Baker, and little Adele Baker. Mr. Baker will accompany them on their journey, but will return here after a few days' stay. Dr. Proxmire plans to go up July 21 for a week's visit. Miss Margaret Thompson will leave July 10 to visit friends from New York who have a home in Desbarats.

Other Vacation Notes

The Hermon Dunlap Smith family will join the little colony of Desbarats' vacationers in August. However, Miss Deborah Smith's work with the air transport command in Washington is keeping her too busy for a Canadian holiday this year. The William Burrys' Desbarats home will be vacant most of the summer, except for an occasional week-end, for Comdr. Burry is on duty here with the navy and their eldest son, William Jr., is with the navy in the Pacific. Michael Burry, who just has returned from the Milton academy, will attend the summer session at Culver Military academy.

Two other Desbarats homes which will be vacant this season are those of the junior John I. Marshalls and the Samuel J. Walkers. Mrs. Marshall plans to remain in Lake Forest with their three young children. Mr. Marshall is on duty in Jamaica as a warrant officer with the army. The Walkers will not go to Desbarats this year, since their son, Lt. Malcolm Walker, is on duty in Fort Benning, Ga. He recently spent a short leave with his parents in Lake Forest.

Today's Social Events

The first debut of the summer can hardly be called by that name, for the tea which Comdr. and Mrs. Richard Bentley will give from 4 to 7 p. m. today in their Lake Forest home will be the simplest sort of party to introduce their older daughter, Alice Wrenn, to old friends of the family. Comdr. and Mrs. Bentley and their daughter, who has been attending Dana Hall, will receive in the "new room," a sunny addition to the older portion of the house. Among the young women assisting Miss Bentley will be Miss Alice Keith Carpenter, Miss Barbara King, Miss Rosalind Oates, Miss Charlotte Hannaford, Miss Carolyn Kuehnle, and Miss Peggy Whipple. A few of the young people will stay on after the party for a buffet supper and informal songfest.

Comdr. and Mrs. Bentley have spent the last year in Washington, D. C., and expect to be there another year. About the 15th of July Mrs. Bentley and the youngest of her four children, Barbara and Dickie, will go to the Huron Mountain club. Miss Bentley, who will enter college in the fall, has a job near Chicago for the summer.

The diversions promised for a party "for fun and profit," which the Winnetka board of the Northwestern university settlement will give tonight in the John P. Hookers' Winnetka home and its surrounding grounds, are numerous. Husbands of board members will serve as singing waiters and highball vendors, and there also will be a barroom quartet, taxi dancers, accordion players, pianists, and a showing of gifts of clothing to the settlement, with debutante-aged daughters of members and their friends as the mannequins. Two dancing platforms have been erected, and there will be an auction at 8 o'clock of wares ranging from antique silver to live chickens and pigs. In addition to a regular supper plate served from 6 to 8, sandwiches, coffee, pancakes, and milk will be available all evening from 5 until midnight.

The South Shore Country club expects a crowd of about 1,000 guests at its first outdoor dinner-dance of the season tonight. Dinner will be served at tables under the trees. In case of rain the party will be transferred to the ballroom. The club's beach, which includes shuffleboard courts, has been opened officially for the summer. The South Shore is one of the few clubs with an outdoor bowling green, where members engage in informal competition each afternoon.

THE QUESTION

What famous personality would you most like to meet?

WHERE ASKED

Field building.

THE ANSWERS

Dorothy Pohl, secretary, 2043 Grace st.—A typical American man who seems to represent the ordinary people in his roles on the screen and in his own personal life is Jimmy Stewart. He doesn't appear to be snobbish or egotistical, and if I had the chance to meet a famous personality he'd be my first choice.

Harry R. Swanson, statistician, 1250 N. Dearborn st.—George Bernard Shaw is a very interesting character who looks upon the realities of the world without any emotion. His opinions are interesting and brilliant and I think you can base your ideas of the world on his thoughts more than on those of any one else.

Joseph Malone, accountant, 5487 Greenwood av.—The man I'd like to meet is a statesman and a scholar. He stands up for his ideals and rights, is ambitious and courageous and has an unlimited amount of energy for his age. That man is Winston Churchill. It would be interesting to know him in person.

Marianne McCully, bookkeeper, 651 N. Austin blvd.—My first choice is Bob Hope. He seems to be so likable and is every one's friend. Since every one is so fond of him and because he is such a witty person and has brought so much happiness to the boys in the service I can't think of any one I'd enjoy knowing more.

Mrs. William Crane, clerk, 959 Belden av.—I don't think words can effectively describe why I'd like to meet and know Gen. Eisenhower. He's one of the top favorites of the day and I'd be proud to say, "I know Gen. Eisenhower. He's a friend of mine." As is, I don't know him but he is a friend.

Miss Mary Ellen Faulkner, biller, 6547 S. Campbell av.—I like to meet men who say they aren't the marrying kind. I remember reading somewhere that Van Johnson claims to be one of these men. He's really not good looking, but he has the cutest twinkle in his eyes. I'd like to get a close up view of them.

It's Time to Get Those Panamas Out for Summer

BY REA SEEGER

With the summer heat about to be turned on, the many new panama straw hats are being brought out. From the prim little shallow brimmed sailors, saucily young and pert, to the dashing high crowned wide brimmed models ideal for wear with summer suits and one piece dresses of cotton, these panamas win all the applause as the smoothest, coolest toppers in town. That apparently inimitable panama shade and weave is always good for a summer wardrobe. For these toppers are light as a breeze, air conditioned, and their creamy tint is universally becoming to every woman.

While most of these summer panamas are simple in shape and virtually untrimmed, unless you count the tailored band and bow around the base of the crown, all this season's models have a gracious flattery, achieved with dips or twists of the straw or with a decorative outline to the crown. The small toppers are gay and young; they are worn way back on the head, in the typical insouciant manner of the high school crowd. The larger hats have plenty of dash, stunning complements for linen suits and coat dresses as well as with summer prints and sheers or the very sophisticated dark brown and dull black town or party dresses. Rick-rack braid in brown, black, or navy is one of the most exciting new accents on such panamas.

For the conservatives there are medium brimmed models, panamas of creamy smooth beauty and with the definite flattery of an eye-shadowing brim. Black velvet ribbon instead of the more tailored gros-grain, down swoop curves to the brims, and medium high crowns make them the best buys of the next eight weeks. Wear them with everything in your summer wardrobe—suits, coats, cotton, linen, sheers, dull crepes, and even with flowered chiffons.

Thru the Looking Glass

It's certainly the height of folly in these times for a woman who needs glasses to rebel against her fate on the ground that they're unattractive and will make her look unattractive, too.

The eyeglasses nowadays are so smart, so pretty of frame and shape, and so selected for the contour of the face that they actually can add a quality of smart individuality to the appearance of most women.

The frames in soft pastels are pretty. We envy one woman, rich as Croesus, who has a whole set in various colors. Sometimes, depending on her costume tones, she wears blue, sometimes a soft green, and, always with her black dresses, that pretty pink that is so flattering to most women. Not all of us can have an eyeglass wardrobe, of course, but even the poorest of us can have eyeglasses that are good to look at and that do something nice for the face and the natural coloring. The gray-pink frames, for example, are unobtrusive, and their neutral color is good with just about every other color in the world.

As contrasted with the old days when the thin faced and the round faced alike were condemned to wear eyeglasses with round metal frames, the glasses of today are shaped for your own type as well as for your individual facial contour. Some women need dignified, rather impressive glasses. They give them dignity and handsomeness. Others, younger perhaps and more piquant in type generally, can wear the harlequins with striking success.

Today's eyeglasses even can give the illusion of better eye formation. We know one woman whose left eyebrow is definitely lower than the right. Her well styled glasses compensate for this and give her face a balanced, clean cut look it lacked before.

Don't be old fashioned about eyeglasses. They're a necessity if the eye specialist recommends them—and they're good looking, too.

Sarah Hyde Will Become Bride Today

In the chapel of St. Luke's church in Evanston, Dr. Herbert E. Hyde, organist of the church, will play an organ recital before the marriage at 4:30 p. m. today of his daughter, Miss Sarah Gilchrist Hyde, and Eugene Ralph Head. The ceremony, which will be witnessed only by the two families and a few close friends, will be followed by a small reception at Longmeadow Farm, Dr. and Mrs. Hyde's Winnetka home.

Miss Claire Head will be her new sister-in-law's only attendant, and serving as best man for his son will be Clarence E. Head, who is here from Kenosha, Wis., with Mrs. Head. Mr. Head and his bride will take a wedding trip to the Hydes' cottage, Wishing Brook, in Michigan.

The marriage of Miss Mary Adella Montague, daughter of the Albert R. Montagues of Evanston, and Thomas C. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hall of New York City, will take place at 4:30 p. m. today in the chapel of Evanston's First Methodist church, with a reception following in Glenna hall. Mrs. John E. Massengale has come from South Bend, Ind., to be her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Ellis Kitchell and Miss Montague's Wellesley college classmate, Miss Dorothy Winchell of South Lincoln, Mass.

Mr. Hall, who was graduated from Harvard university and now is enrolled in the university's medical school, will have Kurt Lesson of Cambridge, Mass., as best man. After a visit in New York with Mr. Hall's parents, he and his bride will live in Boston.

In a ceremony at 11 a. m. today in St. Athanasius church, Evanston, Miss Marilyn Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Davis of Evanston, will become the bride of Lt. Ralph M. Person of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Person, also of Evanston. A reception will follow in the Michigan Shores club. Attending the bride will be Miss Patricia McEnery as maid of honor, and Miss Janet Meyer and Miss Marilyn Titus as bridesmaids. William Corbus will be best man.

Here for the wedding is the bride's younger brother, Corp. William H. Davis, on furlough from the army air base in Walla Walla, Wash. Another brother, Ensign James E. Davis is on duty in the Pacific. Lt. Person will take his bride to Camp Maxey, Tex., where he is stationed.

The marriage of Miss Helene Cassidy, daughter of Mrs. Holland M. Cassidy of Evanston, and Russell Spielman will take place at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the chapel of the First Methodist church in Evanston, with a reception following in the Georgian hotel. Miss Patricia Cassidy will be her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Lucille Garber of Ashland, O., the bride's roommate at Stephens college; Miss Caroline McHenry, and Miss Marian Babbitt will be bridesmaids. Harry L. Spielman, who with Mrs. Spielman is here from St. Louis, will serve as best man for his son. Following a short wedding trip Mr. Spielman and his bride will be at home on the south side.

The Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth will be the scene of the marriage at 8 o'clock tonight of Miss Marcia Mae Wynkoop and Ensign Allen Buck Ayars of the navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Ayars of Moweaqua, Ill. A reception will follow in the Kenilworth home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Wynkoop. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Kurt Dieterle of New York, will be her matron of honor, and Neil Carter, a navy V-12 student at Northwestern university, will serve as best man. Ensign Ayars and his bride will be at home in Cambridge, Mass.

Miss Lois Jeanne Norman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley O. Norman of Berwyn av., and Robert William Platt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Platt of Winnetka will be married at 8 o'clock tonight in the North Shore Baptist church. A reception will follow in the Michigan Shores club. Attending the bride will be her sister, Miss Adele Norman, as maid of honor, and their cousin, Miss Verna Anderson of Denver, Colo.; Miss Betty Mahannah, Miss Jean Swartout, and Miss Betty Lou Stephens as bridesmaids. Another cousin, Bonnie Darryl Schmidt, will be flower girl.

Mr. Platt and his bride will be at home in Detroit, Mich., where he is studying for his master's degree in engineering.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Application

I can type letters
Without a mistake.
[I also can bake
An angel food cake.]

I can fit into
New office routine.
[I also can keep
A house neat and clean.]

I can add figures,
I know how to file.
[I'd know how to greet you
And give you a smile.]

Bosses would love me
And never would fire me.
[Say, O, my dearest,
That you will hire me!]

EMILY

Off the Record

There is a food processing company in Chicago with an office force of more than 300, with more than 1,000 salesmen in the field, as well as subsidiary and branch offices and a number of factories located thruout the country.

I wonder whether there are any other companies in Chicago that boast such a small dictaphone department—only two girls? These girls handle all the work, there being 12 steady dictators with several cylinders each, as well as 11 who dictate occasionally. The girls don't mind the work involved at all; in fact, they even have time for fun!

GAY MAY

It Sticks in the Mind

The trancelike twosome noted each day by Betty Bayer, with the comment, "Romance flourishes everywhere, even on a rattling street car. He rides the same car every day, sits oblivious of his surrounding, staring out the window till, approaching the 1600 intersection, he comes to life as she boards the car. If he isn't on the car she waits at the intersection . . . and so it goes day in and day out."

The Bowman dairy horse observed by Althea McCullen who writes, "Glamor girls rivaling the one described over the radio as having green eyes and gorgeous blonde hair that hangs halfway down her back must keep on their toes! They have nothing on the glamor nag with the black eyelashes and long black mane that hangs way, way below its neck, plus a monogrammed bridle with a plain chromium "B" on each blinker and a fancy "B" on the middle of the forehead strap."

The American girl, reported by Nancy, who surprised her soldier brother in the Philippines. Arriving in Manila with the U. S. O. unit "Oklahoma!" she telephoned him to take her out to dinner, which he did—brushing aside lieutenant commanders and such who dominate the starlets' scene.

Did You Know

Did you know the largest customer file in the world is located in the Chicago Furniture Mart—the billion card filing system which has war bond owners in alphabetical order, with 3,000 WCGs working on this index? . . . That there are 60 million different names among the bond owners . . . that John, William, and Mary Smith and John and William Johnson are the most common?

Ecuador to Be Discussed at Pan-American Session

The Pan-American council will direct its 3:30 p. m. tea meeting today to Ecuador, presenting Carols Humberto-Paez, secretary of the juvenile court in Quito, in a talk on "The Child and the Future of Ecuador." The council's weekly teas are given in the Woodrow Wilson room at 84 E. Randolph st. Dr. Alfonso Mora-Bowen, also from Quito, will introduce the speaker.

The Post-War Stove to Have Many Gadgets

BY EDITH WEIGLE

Findings of surveys made among American housewives during the war are going to bear fruit in post-war improvements now being planned for both gas and electric ranges.

When the new, peace time cooking stoves appear, they will embody a number of features demanded by women the country over. One of these will be a waist high broiler. Too many of us virtually have broken our backs bending double to see how the broiling was coming along on the old ranges. Now it will be "never no more" of that, according to the promises of manufacturers.

Had a hard time squeezing the turkey into the oven? Most post-war ranges are going to be equipped with two ovens: a generous one and a small one for small jobs.

Automatic controls will not only turn off the heat when the food is baked or roasted, but will start the operation and regulate it while in progress, as well. And signals will remind you when the pudding has been in the oven for 45 minutes.

Glass doors will eliminate frequent opening and closing, and new and improved insulation will lower operating costs. Most of the new stoves will be made to fit flush with the wall, like other units of kitchen equipment. And most will provide a drawer for storing pots and pans.

One electric model will have a "warming drawer," controled by a separate switch and signal light, for keeping food and plates warm until needed. When not in use it can hold cooking utensils.

Another will do away with the old five or six cooking speeds by using a switch which will turn the heat on just as a faucet turns on water, rapidly or slowly, much or little. And you won't have to wait for this electric heat to materialize; it will come on almost instantly.

Other features that may be looked for will be larger work-top space, built-in clocks and lights, and an electric convenience outlet for small appliances such as mixers or percolators.

[This is the third of a series of articles on post-war accessories for the home. Others will follow.]

Authority on Roses to Give Lecture in G.A.R. Hall Tuesday

Mrs. C. Eugene Pfister, who grows more than 700 varieties of roses at her home, Morningside, near Mundelein, will talk at 2 p. m. Tuesday in G. A. R. Memorial hall of the Chicago Public library on "The Rose, Queen of the Garden." She will illustrate her lecture with color slides. Mrs. Pfister will appear under auspices of the Chicago Horticultural Society and Garden Center in its series of programs to inform amateur gardeners on the best methods of flower growing in the Chicago region. Mr. Pfister is national director of the American Rose society, and Mrs. Pfister has worked with him in the organization's rose testing program. The Pfister rose collection at Morningside is one of the most comprehensive in this part of the country.

'The Wicked Mrs. Steel'

By Roy Vickers

(Copyright: 1945: By Roy Vickers)

SYNOPSIS: Gillian Benyon comes to Tentable to act as companion to Mrs Steel, widow of Andrew Steel, who practically owned the town before his death. By the terms of his will Mrs. Steel must leave her vast wealth to ONE of her late husband's relatives, otherwise the estate passes in trust to the township of Tentable. Mr. Hanshew warns Gillian against accepting the position. Mrs. Steel has a pet canary, which Ruth, her housekeeper, advises her not to treat as she did the others. She can't buy another, without gossip. Mrs. Steel invites Mr Hanshew to her birthday party, at which he will meet her husband's relatives. Gillian learns her father was Andrew Steel's second cousin. Mr. Hanshew is manager of the Steel factory. Mrs. Steel asks Gillian to start work at once, and telephones to the department store to outfit her. Mrs. Steel's preferences, not Gillian's, are adhered to by the saleslady. Gillian is angry and decides to leave at once. At the station she finds Mrs. Steel has sent for her suitcase. She must go back. When the packages are opened Mrs. Steel compliments Gillian on the selection and comments on the similarity of tastes. Gillian is pacified. Most of Mr. Steel's relatives have positions in the various Steel industries. Her husband left them no money. Mrs. Steel is to provide for them as she sees fit. The cross-current is again definitely felt by Gillian. She goes to bed and thinks of the man who warned her to leave. Mrs. Steel has designs upon her manager, Ralph Hanshew, but sees immediately that he is attracted to Gillian and she is attracted to him.

INSTALMENT VI.

WARNING UNHEEDED

Abruptly the rhythmic movement of those blunt, strong hands was broken as a young voice spoke behind her.

"O, Mrs. Steel! Mr. Hanshew gave me a lift to the town and back, and I've matched your embroidery silk at Babbinger's. It's the exact shade—I think you'll be pleased."

Then Gillian caught sight of the canary in the other's hand. "O, I'm sorry! I've interrupted you."

"It's all right. Sit down and go on talking."

Gillian sat down. She had a three-quarter view of Mrs. Steel's face, bent over the bird.

"Are you teaching it something, Mrs. Steel?" she asked. "Mr. Hanshew told me you were wonderful with canaries, and can teach them tricks."

"And he told you . . ." It was easy for Mrs. Steel to imagine why Ralph Hanshew had bothered to mention the canary. "He told you that you were like this little bird in a gilded cage. And he wanted to open the door and let you out."

"O!" Gillian was astounded and blurted out: "Not those actual words, but . . ."

She broke off, gazing at Mrs. Steel. The face was lined and haggard. Horror yielded to blank incredulity. Mrs. Steel simply could not look like that. It must be some trick of the light.

Gillian had not heard Ruth come in for the tea wagon.

"I've put the hot water in your room, Miss Beynon. It'll be getting cold if you leave it."

"Thanks, Ruth." Gillian was glad to escape.

Mrs. Steel was sitting very still, staring down at her hands. As the door closed behind Gillian, Ruth spoke. The voice was sepulchral, inescapable in its demand for an answer.

"What's that you have in your hands, Margaret Steel?"

"How dare you speak to me like that, Ruth!" The words were bold, but the tone was cringing.

"What's that in your hands?" Ruth stood over her mistress. From the latter's hands dropped a dead canary.

"I didn't mean to, Ruth. You know how I love my little birds. It was an accident." And then with humble entreaty: "Pick it up, please Ruth, and take it away." The voice rose on a note of fear. "Ruth! what are you looking at?" She turned to follow the direction of her gaze.

Both women were looking intently at the chair in which Gillian Beynon had sat.

Ruth's eyes came back to the floor—to the dead canary.

"That girl has crossed your path, hasn't she?"

Mrs. Steel did not answer.

Ruth spoke again. "Andrew Steel was a good master and a good friend. I promised him I would always look after you. And so I will."

"What do you mean?" faltered Mrs. Steel. "I don't understand you."

"That's because you don't understand what's in your own wicked heart. But I do."

Ruth strode toward the door.

"You'll stay here, please Mrs. Steel, while I tell that girl she'd best not spend another single night under this roof."

From Mrs. Steel there came a low rippling laugh. "Tell her, my good Ruth—and see how she takes your superstitious nonsense! She is not afraid of me. She doesn't want to fly away now."

In her room Gillian discovered that she was in no hurry to go to bed. Since she had walked with Ralph Hanshew in the garden, her thoughts had floated happily in a haze of contentment.

She pottered about her dressing table, stopped as she heard footsteps on the stairs, then a faint jingling, as of keys. Ruth going to bed.

The footsteps approached her door. Gillian's heart missed a beat as they stopped.

A heavy knock on the door.

"Come in."

Ruth came into the room. She stood silent.

"What is it, Ruth?"

"I'm thinking for words that will do good and not harm. You won't think I'm just being impertinent, Miss Beynon. You've too much sense for that. I'm asking you if you mean to stay on in this house. Or perhaps you've already made up your mind to leave."

Gillian caught her breath.

"If you're going to leave anyhow, there'll be no need for me to speak," added Ruth.

"Why do you want me to go, Ruth?"

"Because it's best for you. And for others."

"Meaning yourself?" said Gillian sharply.

Ruth shook her head.

"You're no trouble to me. You don't want to be, and you couldn't be if you did want. I tell you it's for yourself I'm warning you to go, Miss Beynon."

First Ralph Hanshew, and now this strange woman. Both warning her to run away. Neither giving a practical reason.

"It is very kind of you to be so concerned with my welfare. . . ." She broke off. "What is it all about, Ruth? No—you'd better not tell me. I mean to stay here until Mrs. Steel wishes me to go, and I'm afraid I can't discuss it."

She turned her back.

"You'd best hear me out, Miss Beynon."

After a moment's hesitation, Gillian turned around.

"Very well. But if you say anything against Mrs. Steel, I warn you that I shall repeat it to her."

Gillian's nerves were rasped by a throaty chuckle.

"It's for Mrs. Steel's sake I want you to go—more than for your own. If you stay here, she'll do you a mischief, and that'll be bad for her."

"What nonsense!" exclaimed Gillian angrily. "You must hate your employer to say that about her!"

The next moment Gillian had a shock.

"I love her," repeated Ruth. "Mostly because Andrew Steel loved her, tho he was hard to her in some ways. I know all the good in her, and I know where she is weak and needs me to help her, now Andrew's gone. That's why I'm asking you to go away."

"But why can't I help her, too? I shan't interfere with you. And what mischief, as you call it, could she possibly do me?"

Ruth did not answer. Into her eyes came a look of infinite sadness. Then she sighed and turned to go.

"The bath water's hot, Miss Beynon," she said. "That furnace cleared itself as it does sometimes. You'd best take a bath—it'll help you to sleep, after what I've been saying."

Eggs as well as vegetables, fruits, and meats may be stored in frozen food lockers. In view of the predicted shortage, some families may find it convenient to store a few eggs in the frozen state.

To freeze whole eggs, wash shells, then break eggs, into a clean bowl. Add 1 tablespoon honey or corn sirup to each 2 cups of eggs and break all the yolks. Do not whip in air, but mix thoroly. Pack in moisture vapor proof containers and freeze promptly. Store at zero degrees.

Whites may be packed separately from yolks. Do not mix or add sirup to the whites, but when yolks are packed separately, mix them and add sirup as for the whole eggs. The sirup prevents the yolks from becoming gummy upon freezing.

To use frozen eggs, thaw and measure 2½ tablespoons of whole egg to approximate a fresh egg. Measure 1½ tablespoons white for an egg white, 1 tablespoon yolk mixture for an egg yolk. Thawed eggs should be used promptly, like all other thawed frozen foods.

In some neighborhoods it is possible now to buy frozen pies, cakes, and yeast rolls, all ready for baking. Homemakers are taking to these time saving products with delight. New combination frozen foods are appearing, too. Recently I tried a creole fish dinner which was delicious.

Frozen bean sprouts are being packed by one frozen food wholesaler and are available in many Chicago stores. Their most popular use, of course, is in Chinese type dishes like chop suey, but they also are good and healthful in tossed salads, and make a fine vegetable dish in combination with tomatoes, or tomatoes and okra. A two minute cooking in any form in which they are used is all that's required.

One of the recipe suggestions on the package is to saute the bean sprouts to accompany steaks. Yes, it says steaks! That's a post-war possibility, but if you can get hold of some bacon or hamburger, sauteed bean sprouts do very well with them, too. These are the mung bean sprouts, much more delicate than the soybean sprouts which some of us occasionally grow in our kitchens.

Bean sprouts, by the way, are a good source of vitamin C.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Orange Fluff

[Serves four]

- 1 teaspoon gelatin
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- ⅔ cup orange juice
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 eggs, separated

Soak gelatin in cold water. Combine lemon juice, rind, orange juice, sugar, and egg yolks. Cook in double boiler until mixture is slightly thickened. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Chill thoroly, then fold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour into custard cups and chill until firm.

Midriff Sweater

BY JEAN MACDONALD

A knitted sweater of the midriff variety is a quick needlework trick and ideally cool for summer. It may be worn any time of day for any occasion. It may be knitted in fine, two ply wool, synthetic yarns, or cottons. The ribbed effect is achieved by using the stockinette stitch. It is available in 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements.

For instructions in crocheting the midriff sweater, No. 953, send 15 CENTS in coin (wrap coin securely) to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"We'll have some yellow tomatoes from our garden this year. Can you suggest ways of using them?"

Substitute them for green tomatoes in making pie. Use in a colorful salad by combining yellow tomato and red tomato wedges. Or make a yellow tomato preserve as follows: Cut a thin slice from the blossom end of each tomato and gently press out seeds. Using two quarts of tomatoes, sprinkle with three cups sugar and one teaspoon salt, and heat slowly until sugar is dissolved. Boil slowly for 40 minutes. Add a thinly sliced lemon and four tablespoons finely cut ginger root or candied ginger. Boil 10 minutes longer, pour, and seal.

What kind of wine should be served with roast lamb?"

A dry white wine, such as sauterne, chablis, or sherry, as a rule, altho sometimes a dry red wine may be preferred.

"I'd like to cook rice so it's white and fluffy, with separate grains. What's the secret?"

There are several "secrets" which should help. Wash the raw rice thoroly in water to remove excess starch. Slowly add one cup washed rice to two quarts boiling water to which one tablespoon salt has been added. If water is hard, add one teaspoon lemon juice or one tablespoon vinegar to keep rice white. Boil gently 15 to 25 minutes without stirring, until rice grain is soft when pressed between fingers. Don't overcook or rice will be sticky. Pour into large sieve or colander and wash well with hot water to remove starch. To dry and fluff rice, cover sieve with cloth and place over steaming water or in oven with door open for 10 minutes.

What's the best way to cook smoked spareribs?"

Because of a slight tendency toward dryness, it's best to bake smoked spareribs with a barbecue sauce or with water added.

Tiredness or Hunger May Upset Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Most 'cranky' children are too tired or too hungry. Either feed them or put them to bed," I remember my grandmother saying once when one of us was not to be pleased by anything.

It's often true. And altho seemingly just a form of good common sense to remark that tired, hungry children are often cross, it is also a perfectly sound physiological and psychological statement—which is true of many common sense remarks. I mean real common sense—the kind that's founded on intelligent and often shrewd thinking.

Take it in relation to what we started to talk about on Monday—the real need for a mother to "use her head" when the children's behavior is all awry. We mentioned yesterday that mothers should look for illness as a possible cause for unusual behavior. Today let's look at my grandmother's comment and really consider it.

You wouldn't think of punishing a child for being hungry, nor of scolding him for being tired. Yet when we discipline a boy or girl for certain ways in which he or she may act because of hunger pangs and of what fatigue does to a young body, we are in a sense doing just that.

Hunger "pangs" are real pains—that's why a baby often screams when he needs food. Hunger does things to the nerves of some boys and girls, as does fatigue, which makes them act up in some way. You know yourself how much more poised you are—well, many of us are, anyhow—when you're really rested, or how much more amenable your husband is when he's had a delicious, nourishing meal. Well, remember those things next time the children are "pernickety."

Notre Dame Degrees Given to 183; Solving Peace Is Called Vital

Notre Dame, Ind., June 22 [Special]—New thinking and new action on the causes of war are vitally necessary for the preservation of peace, the Rev. Philip S. Moore, C. S. C., dean of the graduate school of the University of Notre Dame, told graduates at the annual summer convocation here tonight.

Father Moore told the graduates that the tremendous physical and spiritual destruction of the world's greatest war and the knowledge that another war will be incalculably more destructive should convince society that its greatest problem is the preservation of world peace.

A total of 183 degrees were conferred at the convocation, including 81 bachelor of naval science degrees to members of the Notre Dame unit of the naval R. O. T. C. who completed their academic work in February and who have been on active duty for one semester.

Frock and Blouse

It's going to be a busy summer, with everybody buckling down to her job and wedging a little social pleasure into leisure hours. These two patterns are styled for both comfort and high fashion. One makes a front buttoned, frilled dress, and the other puts edging around the low neckline and short sleeves of a blouse. Style No. 3823 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material with 1½ yards of ruffling. Style No. 3818 is designed for sizes 12 to 44. Size 36 requires 1¾ yards of 35 inch fabric. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. Kenneth G., Champaign, Ill.—To make a good blackboard paint and also a dull finish photographic paint which dries quickly, my husband dissolves a broken phonograph record in alcohol.

Mrs. Bob H., Chicago—When in doubt about the color fastness of a garment, I snip a piece from an inside seam and handwash it. If there is a slight discoloration in the wash or rinse water, but the washed sample shows no fade, I conclude the discoloration comes from excess dye and wash the article by itself the first time.

Dora W., Blue Island.—To spot-clean a stain in a garment which is dusty or shows signs of powdery deposits, I brush the stained section thoroly before applying the remover. And I make it a rule to work in a good light when attempting to remove any type of stain.

Why Be Shy Gals? It's Only in Your Head

BY SHEILA JOHN DALY

"Every time I go anywhere, walk down a street, thru the halls at school or in a restaurant, I feel self-conscious. I feel that something must be wrong with me and that everyone is looking at me. I feel this way especially when I pass a group of boys. In school I rarely make acquaintances with fellows and sometimes get a frightened feeling when a boy in one of my classes speaks to me.

on the SOLID side

"My parents say that every girl goes thru this same feeling but at 16, shouldn't I have outgrown it? My parents and my friends consider me quite pretty and yet I know many girls not at all pretty in the blue-eyed, curly haired sense who are very popular with boys and not self-conscious at all. My sister, who is two years older than I, has offered to take me to some teen-aged dances but I'm frightened to death for fear no one will dance with me and I'll be marked as a wall flower. Is there something I can do?"

"You're pretty, let's start from there. You think everyone is looking at you. Add the two together—maybe they are! Maybe they are looking at you simply because you are pretty. Most smooth joes do like to latch their lashes on something lovely whether she's walking down the street or in the halls at school. Are you going to sing the blues about that?

Your parents are right—most girls go thru a period of awkwardness, often beginning, not ending at 16. But fortunately most of that self-consciousness is all in your head. You know about it but no one else does unless you've told them. Maybe those girls whom you think so popular feel self-conscious at times, too! Why not go to the teen aged dances with your sister. She can see that your first few dances are taken and with one or two friends, the rest of the evening will be fun.

North Park College to Break Ground for $350,000 Seminary

Ground for a new $350,000 seminary unit at North Park college will be broken at 2 p. m. today on the campus at Foster and Kedzie avs. by the Rev. Dr. Algoth Ohlson, president. Immediate construction of this unit, to comprise administration offices, class rooms, dormitory, and chapel, was decided on yesterday at the third session of the 60th anniversary convention of the Evangelical Mission Covenant church of America meeting at the college.

The convention also passed as a missions budget $213,000 for foreign missions and $79,000 for home missions. The Rev. Herbert E. Palmquist, for years minister at Englewood Covenant church, was elected secretary to the executive committee of the national church.

Among faculty appointments made to the seminary was that of the Rev. Donald M. Fisk of Princeton Covenant church as professor in systematic theology.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 22—Jean Arthur is in New York talking with Alfred de Liagre about doing "Voice of the Turtle" in London. And if she does, she'll agree to stay there only four months. . . . "Don't Ever Leave Me" will be Errol Flynn's next, with Jimmy Kern directing. It's not a western. Errol, who didn't wipe out the Japanese army in "Objective Burma"—in fact, he was no blooming hero at all—received a letter from Gen. Patton's son, written at West Point, praising Errol and the picture. . . . Dana Andrews, playing a down-and-out reporter in "Fallen Angel" really was one on the Ventura Boulevard Sentinel before he worked in a gas station. But let's not moan over that, because his new contract with 20th Century and Sam Goldwyn calls for $1,500,000 net to him during a seven year stretch. . . . Edward Golden, responsible for "Hitler's Children," will produce "Eddie and the Archangel Mike" by Barry Benefield. . . . "Son and Stranger," by Joan Charles, may be Bette Davis' next. And "Lust for Life," the life of Van Gogh by Irving Stone, has been bought by Warners for John Garfield.

As Others See Us

Ezio Pinza brought it to my attention in my own house that Pat O'Brien had the perfect face and build to play Enrico Caruso. Then, after taking another look at the O'Brien puss, I agreed with Pinza. Told Pat about it. He said, "Isn't that funny. Last night John Charles Thomas dined with us and pointed to a bust and said, 'Who's that?'" Pat had to confess it was one of him as Knute Rockne. "That," said John Charles, "isn't Knute Rockne—that's Caruso!" And here that Irish mug has been around all these years and we were too dull witted to see that an Irisher could play an Italian. . . . Walter Pidgeon is hoping to get a plane out to the South Pacific for hospital visits. So far—no room for Pidge. . . . Mickey Rooney has asked for South Pacific duty. Mickey's found time to write half a dozen songs and send back two good story ideas for pictures.

Yes, It's Good, Brother!

"Story of GI Joe" is a living memorial to beloved Ernie Pyle. Burgess Meredith doesn't act at all. He's just a gentle, bewildered, sympathetic, humble, tired little old man who's taken on the grief of the poor fellows in the infantry. Burgess was tired just as Ernie was, right thru the marrow of his bones. Some wonderful performances, including that of Robert Mitchum as Lt. Walker. He'd never played anything but rootin'-tootin' cowboys before. Freddie Steele, ex-prize fighter, got bits. Bill Wellman has done a magnificent job. There's none of the glory of war in it—only the muck, mud, and monotony.

Plenty of Good Will

Irene Dunne is back from the Walter Reed hospital in Washington and a tour of hospitals thru the south. Said the boys always asked her to sing. Irene lunched at the White House and was given the privilege of going thru it from room to room and taking her time. Unfortunately she wasn't able to meet the President. He was switching his cabinet the day she was there and was fairly busy. But she met his daughter, Margaret, who is charming. She dined at Evalyn McLean's sitdown dinner for 80. Irene is still excited about receiving a doctor's degree of music from the Chicago Musical college, where she was graduated. "That ceremony in Orchestra hall I'll remember the rest of my days," said she. Edward Johnson of the Metropolitan also received one. I asked what her next picture would be. She replied, "I don't know. I'm reading scripts like mad. I'm also blessing Metro for being understanding. They've never tried to force a story on me that I didn't like."

She Can Train Anything

Paulette Goddard is adding to her animal life. She now has a dog, parrot, canary, and donkey. If she can train them to sing the same tunes at the same time, she'll rent 'em out to the movies. . . . While Jennifer Jones was getting her divorce, her two children were in the hospital having their tonsils removed. . . . Buddy de Sylva is still a very sick man. Leo McCarey will look over his finished picture, "Stork Club," and if it needs extra editing and cutting, Leo will do the job. . . . No more picture locations for Hollywood. They'll do their traveling on the back lots. No space on trains. . . . The town is welcoming William Jeffers. He's a great guy. We got to know him quite well when C. B. de Mille made the picture "Union Pacific" and traveled back to Omaha for the premiere. I remember Barbara Stanwyck saying to me, "It was such a shame. I was given Jeffers' private car from here to Omaha. I knew I was going to marry Bob Taylor the following week. All the time I was moving on to Omaha I kept thinking, 'This is such a waste. Why couldn't this have happened next week, then Bob and I could honeymoon in the lap of luxury.'"

A KEEPER FINDS LAW GIVES HIM 'THE BEES-NESS'

Nectar Jags Worry Him in Moving 400,000

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

The Italians and the Germans are causing trouble again, but law and order are routing them out . . . of Joliet.

The angry warriors are two species of bees, named after the unfortunate axis partners and equally unpopular. They are owned by Helge Johnson, 41, of Joliet, a railroad air compressor operator and at the present moment a much embarrassed beekeeper. His neighbors say his beehives don't behave. Therein lies the sting.

Begins Rounding Up 400,000

Yesterday Johnson set about the Herculean task of rounding up 400,000 bees on the wing and transporting them to the country where they won't frighten old ladies, young children, and for that matter reporters and photographers.

By a court order, Johnson must rid his city property of every buzz by Tuesday. If he doesn't, according to a city ordinance adopted in 1939 prohibiting farm animals to run loose, he is liable to a fine of $1 to $10 for every bee. By a good stretch of the imagination, the law could demand $4,000,000.

"Gosh, every one is mad at me, including my bees," Johnson complained yesterday. "The bees come back to their hives at dusk, you know, and I have been trying to screen them in for transportation. One whole colony of about 75,000 got disgusted with my moving their hive and flew away.

"You see these bees flying around the yard?" he queried with a frown from beneath his heavy bee net. "They should have been at work today out in the waste lands gathering nectar. But they're angry at me and I guess they've gone on strike. If I'm not careful, they may even chase me or sting me."

Collecting for Eight Years

Johnson first began to collect bees eight years ago. Last year his busy little bees earned him $300 in honey and $16 in beeswax.

"I'm not going to do so good this year with all this moving," he said. "I'll lose at least 10 per cent profit. What bothers me most now, however, is that there are a lot of night lifers among bees. Contrary to public opinion, there are bees who forget to come home at night and turn up the next morning. I don't know but what drinking the nectar makes some of them drunk.

"Anyway, what if after I get all the hives moved to the country, I wake up Wednesday morning to find the yard buzzing with the stragglers? If that happens, I'm the one who's going to have the hangover."

SENATE VOTES $5 MONTHLY PENSION RISE

Springfield, Ill., June 22—Maximum old age pensions could be increased from $40 to $45 a month under a bill by Sen. Miller [R., Hillsboro], which the senate passed and sent to the house today.

Should federal matching grants be obtained, the maximum could be raised to $50 a month. Other provisions would relax residence requirements and other qualifications for old age pensions.

Debate did not consider the question of how much a pension increase would cost the state. The house last week passed and sent to the senate a bill for $50 maximum old age pensions.

Gov. Green meanwhile signed into law a bill appropriating 112 million dollars, at the $40 maximum, for pension payments during the next biennium.

NAZI PRISONERS' CAMP IS OPENED OUTSIDE JOLIET

The opening of a branch German prisoner of war camp 13 miles southwest of Joliet was announced yesterday by Brig. Gen. John T. Pierce, commanding general of Fort Sheridan. The camp is in a former CCC camp on the DuPage river near Channahan and will house prisoners working at Joliet Chemical, Ltd., Joliet Industrials, and the central spare parts warehouse of the bureau of yards and docks for the navy. The prisoners now are being housed at Camp Thornton, near Harvey, and at Camp Pine, near Des Plaines.

"See if you can quiet those kids down. I've been shouting my lungs out at them all day!"

DAY by DAY on the FARM — by BEN MARKLAND

June 22, 1945.

DOLEFUL forecasts of crop failures were being made recently because of the cool, rainy weather of May and early June. A visit to almost any northern Illinois farm this week indicates the pessimistic predictions were wrong, because farmers say they are satisfied with the progress of their main field crops.

The manager of the Fox River farm was saying the other morning that the oat and hay stands look so promising that the men are worrying about overlapping field tasks. In normal years, they can complete three cultivations of the corn fields, then move into the hay fields for the first cutting of alfalfa, then start the oat harvest. This year, however, the hay and oats have grown so fast that the three jobs may overlap.

Hay Baling Time Near

The men have completed one cultivation of the corn, and hope to finish the second round of the fields by noon tomorrow. Weather permitting, two mowers will go into the hay fields the same day. Unless rain interferes, the combination alfalfa and timothy should be ready for baling the middle of next week.

The manager said the rainy weather delayed his corn planting, but in other respects the spring weather had been ideal. Hay stands are excellent as a result of numerous rains, and oats have thrived with the cool, wet spring weather.

Heifers Get New Home

Neighboring farmers who cut their hay early this week are handicapped by lack of good curing weather, but the cut alfalfa has not deteriorated in the fields to any great extent.

Yesterday was moving day for 57 Aberdeen-Angus heifers on the Fox River farm. These animals, all 18 to 20 months old, were taken by truck from pasture on the north side of the river to a small pasture feed lot near the manager's home. They will go on a diet of ground ear corn, hay, and oats, and also will have access to pasture. Fifty of the animals are for sale this summer, either as unbred heifers now or as bred heifers in September. They are priced at $250 and up as unbred heifers. All are registered and tubercular-tested, and have been vaccinated against Bang's disease.

The sire of most of the Angus heifers is Barbarian of Rosemere 152, who in turn is a son of Prizemere 32, usually ranked as one of the greatest of all Angus sires. Some of the animals for sale were sired by Prizemere 443, a son of Eileenmere 61.

★ The GARDEN ★

SPRAY guns will be in general usage this week-end, because many of the common spring garden insects are in evidence. Listed below are the mixtures recommended by the farm gardener for these pests:

Aphids [plant lice] on tomatoes: Nicotine sulphate or any commercial spray containing rotenone. The latter insecticide should be used if both aphids and black flea beetles are on the tomato plants. Be sure to spray upward, covering under side of the leaves.

Flea beetles, on tomatoes and eggplants: Use rotenone, either as dust or in a commercial spray applied according to label directions.

Colorado potato beetles: Standard farm spray for all potato insects, including flea beetles, leaf hoppers, and potato beetles, is two tablespoonsful arsenate of lead and two tablespoonsful Bordeaux mixture in a gallon of water.

GRAND JURY QUIZ TO BE SOUGHT IN ELEVATOR DEATH

Prosecutor Rejects Explanation

Rockford, Ill., June 22 [Special]—State's Atty. Max Weston announced today that he will ask the Winnebago county grand jury to investigate the mysterious elevator death of Mrs. Ruth Blanche Campbell, 36, when it reconvenes on July 5.

"I will present to the jurors the evidence we now have, ask them to continue the investigation, and act as they see fit," the prosecutor said. "I am not satisfied with our inquiry because I feel we still haven't got the full explanation."

Mrs. Campbell, attractive, thrice married wife of an overseas service man, was crushed to death Monday night in a self-operating elevator in a downtown building after spending several hours in the bachelor apartment of her employer of a week, Cecil Robbel, 45, wealthy electrical appliance dealer. His apartment is on the fourth floor of the building, which also houses his business.

Damage Suit to Be Filed

Altho Robbel was released yesterday by police, after being held two days without charge, Atty. Charles H. Davis disclosed that he had been retained to file a $10,000 damage suit against the business man charging him with responsibility in connection with the death of his employe-guest.

Davis said the action will be filed in behalf of Mrs. Campbell's son by a previous marriage, Randall Wiatt, 14, and in the name of an administrator whose appointment by the Probate court will be sought. The attorney said he was retained by Mrs. Campbell's brother, Wilson Fuller of Elkhart, Ind., who came here yesterday and expressed dissatisfaction with the investigation.

Scan Accident Theory

Meantime, Prosecutor Weston disclosed that a complete postmortem examination revealed that Mrs. Campbell had enough alcohol in her blood to have produced a state of intoxication which, he said, might have been a factor in her death.

"One of the theories we are working on," he explained, "is the possibility that she was caught between the elevator and passing floors when, in an intoxicated condition, she leaned forward and looked upward to try to see what was happening as the cage, in which she was descending, suddenly started upward in response to Robbel's pressing of the button on the fourth floor."

TAX BILLS' FOES BEGIN BLOCKADE AT SPRINGFIELD

BY GEORGE TAGGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 22—Downstate opposition to the Butler uniform tax assessment bills threatens to tie up other business facing the general assembly in its final week, according to indications today.

With more than 200 bills remaining on the house calendar, Rep. Searle [R., Rock Island] a foe of the bills, challenged the presence of a quorum in the house. The first time he raised the question, a roll call showed 77 on hand—exactly the number required. Ten minutes later he tried again, and won. Majority Leader Homer B. Harris [R., Lincoln] immediately moved to adjourn and send the legislators home for the week-end and the motion carried.

Will Offer "100 Amendments"

Searle is leading downstate opposition to the Butler bills. His determination to stop the bills, now on second reading in the house after passing in the senate, was shown by other maneuvers. He said that he will offer about 100 amendments next week.

The fiery Republican from Rock Island, who is chairman of the house judiciary committee, also threatened to offer amendments to strike the enacting clause from every bill called on second reading.

Despite intensified support of the Butler bills by Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly, the No. 1 leaders of the Republican and Democratic organizations, the measures still face hard going. Many downstaters object to having the complicated Butler program hurried thru the house in the closing days of the session after the senate spent three months considering the measures.

Some downstaters contend that the Butler bills would violate the principle of home rule, increasing the power of the state revenue department, and possibly cause a boost in some tax bills. They are being aided by the all-out opposition to the bills by the Illinois Agricultural association and the questioning attitude of the Illinois Manufacturers' association and Civic federation.

Sees Cook Tax Raise

Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic Federation, was telling members today that the Butler bills would raise Cook county tax assessment ceilings by one-third under certain circumstances.

Altho the present Cook county assessment is popularly supposed to be figured on 100 per cent of valuation, Sutherland said that it actually figures out at about 73 per cent. Under provisions of the Butler bills he said that it could reach 100 per cent, with corresponding increases in tax bills.

HORNEY FREED ON PROMISE TO SHOW RECORDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 22—Brought before the senate under arrest on a contempt warrant, Ainslee E. Horney, 509 Roscoe st., Chicago, was released today when he agreed to produce records of the Hoosier Press, which he publishes n Hammond, Ind.

Sen. Dick [R., Quincy], acting chairman of a special senate committee named to investigate the source of un-American publications, then moved that the proceedings be continued until next Tuesday, Horney left on his own recognizance, and the senate adjourned over the week-end.

An anti-Semitic circular from the Hoosier Press had been sent to legislators when the fair employment practice issue first came before the two houses. Sen. Daley [D., Chicago], who was absent today, then obtained appointment of and was chairman of the special committee.

When he appeared before the committee in Chicago, Horney refused to produce his mailing list and the warrant for his arrest was signed by Lt. Gov. Cross.

5 State Meeting Held by Immigration Officers

Immigration and naturalization officers from five middle western states attended a quarterly conference yesterday with Andrew Jordan, director, and Walter K. Seavey, chief patrol inspector on the United States-Canadian border.

BANDITS LOCK UP CLERK; TAKE $340

Two armed bandits yesterday held up Harry Schreiber, 4114 N. Moody av., clerk in the liquor store at 5901 Irving Park rd., and fled with $340. Schreiber, who was locked in a refrigerator, was released later by a customer.

SCHOOL CLOSING JOY IS TURNED INTO TRAGEDY

It was the last day of school. Michael Benacka, 1538 Chestnut st., and Jerome Gburek, of 935 N. Ashland av., both 6 and 1st grade students at the Peabody Elementary school, 1445 Augusta blvd., were making the most of their freedom.

Michael Benacka

They romped out of the building with the other children at noon, played for a few moments in the school yard, then left. They carried their books, crayons, and papers in bags slung over their shoulders, taking them home for the last time until next fall.

Wander on River Bank

When they reached the Division st. bridge the youngsters paused in the middle of the span and looked over the rail at the water. Then they crossed over, and wandered north along the bank.

Suddenly Michael grabbed Jerome's bag of school books, swung it around by the strap, and hurled it out into the river. Jerome burst into tears.

"Aw, what are you cryin' for," Michael scoffed. "Those old books aren't any good. You won't need 'em any more. School's over."

Jerome's tears continued to flow. Maybe the books weren't any good. He still wanted to keep them.

"O. K.," Michael placated him. "I'll get 'em back for you."

Michael leaned over the embankment. Suddenly he disappeared.

Coast Guards Find Body

Jerome waited for a few minutes. The surface of the river remained unbroken. Then, terrified, he ran to the bridge where he sobbed to James Cullin, the tender, what had happened.

Coast guards recovered the body. An inhalator squad was unable to revive Michael. His mother, Helen, collapsed.

MRS. ZAHARIAS, MISS GERMAIN PLAY FOR TITLE

Babe Wins, 4 and 2; Dot, 3 and 2

BY CHARLES BARTLETT
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Indianapolis, Ind., June 22—Mrs. Mildred [Babe] Didrikson Zaharias of Los Angeles, playing under the toughest conditions of her career, today gained her third Women's Western open golf final in six years by defeating Mrs. Albert [Marge] Becker, 4 and 2, in the first semi-final of the 16th annual tournament at the Highland Golf and Country club.

Not only did Mrs. Zaharias, acknowledged the nation's greatest woman athlete for more than a decade, have to face Mrs. Becker, a stubborn opponent, but she was forced to tee off with the news that her 72-year-old mother had succumbed to a heart attack early this morning in a Los Angeles hospital.

Mrs. Becker Is Worthy Foe

In tomorrow's 36 hole title match Mrs. Zaharias will meet the girl she defeated in last year's open final at Chicago's Park Ridge club—Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia. Miss Germain moved into her fourth consecutive W. W. G. A. title bout by eliminating the sensation of the tournament, 19 year old Carol [Babe] Freese of Portland Ore., 3 and 2, in this afternoon's other semi-final.

Mrs. Becker, a quarter-finalist last year, proved her right to a place in today's final foursome by holding the Babe even thru the first 12 holes. Then it happened. The Babe started the finishing chore with a birdie at the 13th, holed a superb 40 yard chip shot for an eagle at the 433-yard 14th, and took the last two holes with pars for a 4 and 2 decision. The cards follow:

Par—Out	455	354	434—37
Mrs. Zaharias—Out	456	354	535—40
Mrs. Becker—Out	466	354	444—40
Match all even.
Par—In	535	553	4
Mrs. Zaharias—In	536	433	4
Mrs. Becker—In	446	544	6

Mrs. Zaharias wins, 4 and 2.

Dot's Really Consistent

Miss Germain comes up to her second duel with the Babe with what must stand as one of the finest sustained performances of any regular competitor in established golf events. In the early summer of 1943 Dot came to the W. W. G. A. open at Glen Oak an unknown as far as middle westerners were concerned. She went to the semi-finals in that tourney, then hopped back later in the same summer to capture the Western Amateur at Evanston. Last year she held Mrs. Zaharias even thru a bitter first 18 in the open final at Park Ridge.

Today she shot a handsome 36, one under par, on the first nine against Miss Freese, but was only two up on the Oregon youngster who put out such artists as Betty Jameson and Phyllis Otto on her way to the semi-finals. For the last 44 holes she has played, Miss Germain is four under par, while Mrs. Zaharias is three over standard figures for the last 51 she has worked.

The cards:

Par—Out	455	354	434—37
Miss Germain—Out	445	354	434—36
Miss Freese—Out	655	345	434—39
Miss Germain leads, 2 up.
Par—In	535	553	4
Miss Germain—In	535	543	4
Miss Freese—In	536	553	4
Miss Germain wins, 3 and 2.

Several of the flight finals were decided today, with the following results:

SECOND FLIGHT—Margaret Muench, Chicago [North Shore], beat Helen Busko, Mich., 2 up.

THIRD FLIGHT—Mrs. Fritz Morris, Indianapolis, beat Mrs. John Mancos, Indianapolis, 1 up, 19 holes.

FOURTH FLIGHT—Betty O'Connor, Indianapolis, beat Mrs. Walter Zervas, Indianapolis, 3 and 2.

FIFTH FLIGHT—Mrs. Frank Yarline, Chicago [Sunset Ridge], beat Mrs. L. J. Orton, Morris Park, Ind., 5 and 4.

$5,000 Stake Today Closes Lincoln Meet

Final Feature

TEN horses were named in the overnight list for the $5,000 added Lincoln handicap at Hawthorne today. Entrants, with jockeys, weights, and probable odds in order of post positions follow:

Horse	Wgt.	Jockey	Odds
American Eagle	107	No boy	15-1
Take Wing	111	F. A. Smith	2-1
Good Bid	115	E. Campbell	6-1
Latent	106	No boy	20-1
Van Flag	105	No boy	30-1
Flying Hostess	104	B. Pucel	30-1
Devalse	111	F. Glidewell	10-1
Bolo's Choice	109	B. Nichols	4-1
Twixt	106	B. Gonzales	50-1
Corydon	112	A. Bodiou	2-1

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Lincoln Fields' most successful race meeting will be concluded this afternoon at Hawthorne with the 18th running of the $5,000 added Lincoln handicap as the piece de resistance, a race of a mile and a quarter which has drawn a smart field of 10.

Topping the list of entries for the event which had its inception in 1926 is the Swanee River farm's Corydon, a non-winner this season but a consistent distance performer in 1944. Corydon has been allotted 112 pounds, one more than the highly regarded Take Wing from Mrs. Clyde Troutt's string, and the Happy Hour farm's Devalue.

Quizzle in Co-Feature

Then there's H. E. Jacoby's Good Bid, winner of the $5,000 La Salle last Saturday; James Sands' Latent, a two time winner this season; Mrs. Karl Mayer's American Eagle, B. C. Kelley's Vanflag, Joe Kohout's Flying Hostess, Hyman Friedberg's Bolo's Choice, and C. H. Dursch's Twixt.

Co-feature on the eight race program is the $3,500 added Devonshire, a six furlong sprint which has drawn seven entries including Quizzle, Martian, Espino Gold, Burgoo Maid, Bolo Tie, Some Man, and Lovely Trace.

Three $2,000 purses highlighted yesterday's semi-final card, the first of which went to Cherry Trifle, owned by Mrs. L. B. Muschal and ridden by Jess Higley. The 8 year old son of Questionnaire gained a photo decision over Hilltop Stock farm's Topnard with H. E. Jacoby's Cracks taking the show. The winner paid $21.80 for a $2 ticket.

Another for Nichols

The next one, also decided by the camera, was won by Mrs. Monte Well's Conference, co-favorite with J. Simon's Winter Song which finished a length and a quarter behind J. R. Apostle's Day, an outsider. Billy Nichols rode the winner, his first score for the afternoon and his mount returned $6.40.

Eddie Bianco got Mrs. Karl Mayer's Whose, another son of Questionnaire, out in front in the third $2,000 event and kept him there for a mile and 70 yards to win by half a length from Augustus & Nahm's Choppy Sea, ridden by Nichols. Happy Hour farm's Happy Pilot was third in a field of seven older horses.

The attendance was announced as 13,202 and the mutuel handle was $879,370.

Green Rallies After 7th to Defeat Zivic

New York, June 22 (AP)—Saved from a sixth round knockout by the bell, Harold Green of Brooklyn got up from the floor tonight to win a unanimous 10 round decision over the veteran Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh at Madison Square Garden.

Zivic, 32, brought the crowd of 9,531 to its feet near the end of the sixth when he dropped Green with a savage smash to the heart.

The Brooklyn 22-year-old was flat on his back, gasping for breath, when the bell rang at the count of five.

At the end Judge Tom Guilfoyle gave Green eight rounds and Zivic two. Judge Jim Hagen called it Green, seven, two and one even while Referee Eddie Josephs saw it as 6-4, Green. The Associated Press gave Green eight rounds, Zivic two.

The Pittsburgh boxer, a 7 to 5 underdog at fight time, had lost the first five rounds as Green, concentrating on a body attack, kept Zivic along the ropes and hit him with lefts and rights.

Green was especially good in the fifth when he stung Zivic several times at long range. Then, in the sixth, the former welterweight champion ripped home the blow that put Green on the canvas. The bell again saved Green in the 7th when Zivic's body attack seemingly had him on the verge of a knockout.

The gross gate was $34,319.

Zivic weighed 151¾ pounds, Green 152¾.

Transition

We've walked along together, you and I,
On dusty road, in sheltered lovers' lane;
We've slept beneath a starlit summer sky
And nestled close in cold December rain.
When first we met a beauteous thing was born,
A blessed joy, a laughing, rare delight;
Its heart was ever gay; its hands were warm
And comforting thruout the long, dark night.

We still walk close together, you and I,
Our arms entwined in lovers' fond embrace,
But gone the dancing sprite with laughing voice,
A strong and gentle spirit in its place.

O, darling! have we lost that radiant lure?
Or can this be our young love . . . grown mature?

Goin' to the Dogs

Casting backward thru the mists
And the mazes of memory's fogs,
Always, I find, in somebody's mind,
The country was "goin' to the dogs."
As a child I remember the croakers,
Like toads in their swamp bogs,
Predicting with ominous shakes of the head
That the country was "goin' to the dogs."

And as I grew up lamentations I heard
On the prices of corn or of hogs,
The farmers were scared and glumly declared
That the country was "goin' to the dogs."
Presidents, policies, movements—
Just look back o'er our history's logs,
With the advent of each some killjoy would preach
That the country was "goin' to the dogs."

Now, looking around me, I can't help but think,
As toward victory this land of ours jogs,
That we've not done so badly for a country that sadly
And for years has been "goin' to the dogs."

LEE LOSES, 2-1; GROVE WINNER IN SECOND, 3-0

Reynolds Yields 3 Hits in Opener

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Cleveland, O., June 22—The White Sox were so feeble as batting artists this evening that they accumulated only eight hits in 18 innings of effort, but even this modest total proved sufficient to give them a fifty-fifty break in a twilight-night double header with the Cleveland Indians before 11,058 customers. The hosts collected their victory in the twilight by 2 to 1 for their second victory of the year over the Chicagoans and the latter took the electric light affair 3 to 0 for their ninth success over the Lou Boudreau ensemble.

Some fairly choice southpawing by the well aged Thornton Lee went to waste in the early evening battle because of the timidity with which the Sox approached the right handing of Allie Reynolds. Lee who in his previous appearance against the Indians held them to three hits and fanned 13, yielded eight safeties on this occasion but three of them did all the damage, one a homer by Don Ross and the others a pair of singles. Meanwhile the Sox nicked Reynolds for only three hits and didn't even drive in their lone run. It was forced on them by a pass.

Make All Hits Count

The whitewash touch in the night game was due to the presence of Orval Grove who successfully snuffed out scoring bids made by the Indians on their six hits whereas the Sox, held to three by Eddie Klieman in eight innings and two in the ninth by Pete Center, didn't waste anything. They got one run on two hits, another on one hit which happened to be a triple, and the third in the ninth on two singles. Incidentally all of this involved Johnny Dickshot who in addition to a pair of singles also was the author of the helpful three bagger.

It required a little time for the Indians to record their first hit against Lee in the twilight game but when it came it counted for something. It was the homer which Ross lined into the left field seats close to the foul marker with none out in the third. The next hit off Lee also yielded a dividend. It was a bunt that Rocco beat out at the start of the fourth. He was nudged to second by Seerey's sacrifice and scored on a single to center by Heath, making the count 2 to 0 against the Sox.

Lone Run Is Forced Home

Curtright doubled off Reynolds with two out in the first inning and there wasn't another Sox hit until Lee lined a single to right after Tresh had been thrown out in the sixth. Moses helped with a two bagger against the wall in right, Lee stopping at third. He still was there when Schalk flied to Seerey in short right. Curtright walked, the fourth ball being intentional. Dickshot also walked, forcing Lee to score and the inning closed with Cuccinello rolling to Boudreau.

The first o' the three hits assembled by the Sox against Klieman in the eight innings he pitched in the night half of the show was a single with which Dickshot opened the second inning. It didn't take Cuccinello long to snap a single into center, putting Johnny on third whence he scored on Nagel's fly to O'Dea

NINE WILL RUN IN $74,250 RACE AT BELMONT TODAY

It's Wide Open

NEW YORK, June 22 (AP)—Lineup for the 77th running of the Belmont stakes tomorrow at Belmont Park, listed according to post positions with owners, jockeys, and probable odds:

Horse	Owner	Jockey	Odds
Wildlife	J. Roebling	Atkinson	10-1
Brookfield	Edw. Isaac	No boy	10-1
Johnsport	W. Woodward	Stout	10-1
Adonis	W. Helis	Adams	5-1
The Doge	Pentagon stbl.	Gilbert	6-1
Burn. Dream	E. R. Bradley	No boy	5-2
Sea Swallow	C. S. Howard	Woodhouse	8-1
Pavot	W. Jeffords	Arcaro	5-2
Jeep	C. Whitney	Kirkland	8-5

New York, June 22 (AP)—The 3 year old turf championship, already muddled, will become even more so tomorrow when nine horses compete in the 77th running of the $50,000 added Belmont stakes at Belmont Park.

Three of the entries for the mile and one-half race trailed Hoop Jr. in the Kentucky Derby. Five of them were behind Polynesian in last Saturday's Preakness. With Hoop Jr. sidelined by a leg injury and Polynesian not eligible, the race figures to be a scramble for the major share of the $74,250 purse. If all nine start, it will be worth $53,250 to the winner.

Sons of Former Winners.

The newcomers which will challenge for championship consideration in the final race of the American turf's triple crown are Lt. James M. Roebling's Wildlife, Brookfield from Edward Isaacs' Brookfield farms, and Johnsport of William Woodward's Belair stud. Altho Brookfield and Johnsport are sons of former Belmont Stake winners, Bimelech and Johnstown, they figure to be rank outsiders. Wildlife stacks up as the best of the trio off his third back of Col. C. V. Whitney's Jeep in the Peter Pan handicap last week.

Altho Jeep failed in the Derby and then passed up the Preakness, the crowd that may approximate 50,000 probably will make the son of Mahmoud the choice. He came from far off the pace to score handily in the mile and one-eighth of the Peter Pan.

Arcaro to Ride Pavot

Pavot, Walter Jeffords' 2 year old champion of 1944, will get another chance to show that he is something more than a top notch sprinter. The son of Case Ace trailed in the Preakness but he may benefit in a shift of jockeys. Eddie Arcaro, instead of Georgie Woolf, will be in the saddle this time.

E. R. Bradley's Burning Dream also figures to be a threat. The son of Bimelech definitely didn't like muddy track in the Derby and if the racing strip is fast tomorrow may do better.

The remainder of the field will be made up of C. S. Howard's Sea Swallow, only horse in the field that raced in both the Derby and Preakness; William Helis' Adonis, an also ran in the Preakness, and The Doge from the Pentagon stable, fourth in the Preakness after forcing the pace for a mile.

CHANUTE FIELD LOSES, 5 TO 0, TO GREAT LAKES

Bob Feller struck out 15, scored two runs himself, and drove in another as the Great Lakes Bluejackets shut out the Chanute Field Flyers, 5 to 0, yesterday at the naval training center.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Cubs spent the first night of summer in second place — and it proved about all they could stand. They made a valiant try to lift their five game winning streak to a half dozen yesterday in Wrigley field, but Ken Burkhardt and the St. Louis Cardinals had different ideas. So the champs whipped the Chicagoans, 5 to 2, for the fifth time in seven games this season, and took over the runner-up position themselves.

Paul Derringer, only Cub to beat the Cards this year, went away at the end of the fifth inning before Burkhardt had allowed the first Cub to get on base, and while the Cardinals were leading with two sound and one fluke run. Later the Cubs made two runs, and, with three innings of superior relief pitching by Paul Erickson, were trailing by only one run after Bob Chipman had retired the first two batsmen in the final inning. Then Chipman tossed two singles and Mack Stewart went in to yield the hit which scored the fourth and fifth Cardinal runs.

Rookie Awes the Boys

The Cubs never had faced Burkhardt, a graduate of Columbus, and all but three of them seemed awed by his stuff. Mickey Livingston singled in the fifth for the first hit off the Cardinal right hander. Peanuts Lowrey batted .667 against his offerings and had a homer, his third of the season, a double, and a walk. Don Johnson made two singles to account for the grand total of five hits.

The Cardinals made a dozen hits. Red Schoendienst got four of these, two off Derringer, the only one, a scratch, yielded by Erickson, and one off Chipman. He didn't bat against Stewart. Buster Adams made a double and two singles, drove in four runs, and scored the one he didn't drive home. The bottom four in the Cardinal batting order didn't make a hit and Marty Marion struck out three straight times.

It's Vandenberg Today

The teams will meet again this afternoon in the second game of their four game series and it will be Harry Brecheen, who has won 8 and lost 3, against Hy Vandenberg, who has made one start for the Cubs. He shut out the Reds on one scratch hit that day.

Schoendienst opened the game with an infield single, went to third on Johnny Hopp's single to center, and scored on Adams' fly to Andy Pafko. Whitey Kurowski put Hopp on third with a single to center, but Ray Sanders lined to Stan Hack, and Ken O'Dea flied to Pafko. Schoendienst opened the third inning with another single, stole second, went to third on Hopp's fly and scored on Adams' single.

This Was a Gift

The third Cardinal run was spurious, tho no chargeable error was involved. With two out, Adams doubled to left and scored while Len Merullo, Pafko and Johnson stood in a huddle in short left center and watch it plunk for a single.

The first Cub to get on base produced the first Chicago score. Phil Cavarretta walked at the start of the fifth inning, but Pafko fouled to Kurowski. Lowrey also walked,

10 Named for Santa Anita Derby Today

Arcadia, Cal., June 22, (AP)—The smallest but snappiest field in the history of the Santa Anita Derby was named today for tomorrow's $50,000 race of 3 year olds.

The favorite, Louis B. Mayer's Busher, faces nine colts and geldings in a test that may determine whether Busher deserves a place among racedom's great.

The mile and one-eighth race probably will be run on a fast track. The post time will be 6:40 p. m. [C. W. T.].

The smallest Santa Anita Derby field in previous years was 11 starters, in 1936. Never before has this contest boasted as many established stakes winners.

The field listed in post position with weights and jockeys:

Horse	Weight	Jockey
Man o' Glory	119	No boy
Proclamation	119	W. Bailey
*Best Effort	126	J. Westrope
*Valdina Streak	119	O. Grotha

DETROIT RACES RESUME AFTER ONE DAY LAPSE

Detroit, Mich., June 22 (AP) — Horse racing at the Detroit Fair Grounds track, suspended today because of a shortage of entries, will be resumed tomorrow with well filled fields in all eight races.

A threat by George W. Lewis, general manager of the Detroit racing association, to continue the shutdown indefinitely resulted in early filing of entries for tomorrow's program.

HARRIDGE RULES TODAY ON SOX, BROWNS BRAWL

The players responsible in the White Sox-Browns brawl in St. Louis Wednesday night will know their fate today. Will Harridge, president of the American league, said last night he had received and is studying Umpire Art Passarella's report on the incident, and would issue a statement today.

STAINBACK HITS HOMER; YANKEES BEAT A'S, 2 TO 0

Floyd Bevens Yields Four Hits for Triumph

New York, June 22 (AP)—Floyd Bevens, who defeated the Athletics in Philadelphia Sunday, repeated for the New York Yankees today, winning this time 2 to 0. Bevens yielded four singles over as many innings for his sixth triumph.

Rookie Steve Gerkin, striving for his first major league triumph, was almost as stingy, but Snuffy Stirnweiss' double and Hershel Martin's single meant a run in the sixth. Tucker Stainback's third homer of the year brought Joe Berry to the mound in a relief role in the seventh.

RED SOX TRIM SENATORS

Boston, Mass., June 22 (AP)—The Red Sox drove Johnny Niggeling off the mound in the third inning today and went on to overwhelm the Washington Senators, 10 to 5.

Boston pounded Niggeling for nine hits and as many runs before he was yanked for Santiago Ullrich after Eddie Lake hit a homer with two on and one out in the third.

While turning in his fifth victory of the season and his third against the Senators, Emmett O'Neill gave only two hits up to the eighth inning. A pass and the first of Harland Clift's two doubles gave the Senators a run in the second inning.

BROWNS BEAT TIGERS

St. Louis, Mo., June 22 (AP)—Dizzy Trout walked three batters, forcing in a run, was charged with an error, and gave up three hits all in the fifth inning tonight as the Detroit Tigers lost to the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 4.

Up to that point the Browns were trailing by two runs, having failed to score in the fourth when Frank Mancuso hit into a double play with the bases loaded and only one out.

in right. After the Nagel fly 15 more Sox batters stepped to the plate before another impression was made on the Indians' mound worker. Dickshot made it with his triple to right with one out in the seventh after which Cuccinello walked and Nagel smacked another fly ball to score Dickshot.

Most of Grove's troubles came at the outset. He was slapped for two singles in the first inning and even contributed a wild pitch but a double play assisted him over the rough spot. He yielded lone singles in the next two innings but then took charge in a big way and there were no more Indians seen on the bases until Heath doubled with two out in the seventh. Boudreau followed with a scratch single that put Heath on third but Grove worked himself out of this jam by fanning Hayes.

When Center showed up for work in the ninth he retired Schalk, the first to face him but quickly encountered singles by Curtright and Dickshot, putting runners on third and first. Curtright scampered home while Cuccinello was thrown out on his grounder to Meyer.

LT. TOM CREEVY DIES IN AIRPLANE CRASH OVERSEAS

First Lt. Thomas E. Creevy, Mustang fighter pilot, was killed June 9 in a plane accident over England, the war department reports. He was a former bomber pilot who had completed 35 missions over France and Germany and was eligible to return to this country for reassignment but elected to transfer to a fighter squadron, which was training to go to the Pacific.

Lt. Tom Creevy

Lt. Creevy was quarter back on the Mount Carmel High school championship football teams of 1938 and 1939 and played in the back field on the 1941 and 1942 University of Notre Dame teams.

He had been awarded the distinguished flying cross, seven oak leaf clusters, the bronze star, and a Presidential unit citation.

Lt. Creevy is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Creevy of 6811 Constance av., two sisters, and two brothers.

MIKLOS, BUDIL, TO PITCH TODAY IN POLICE GAME

Johnny Miklos, ex-Cub left handed pitcher, and Ted Budil will be the starters this afternoon for the North and South teams as the Police Department baseball championship three game series gets under way in Comiskey park. The game will start at 2 p. m.

The series will move to Wrigley field for the other two games of the series on June 30 and July 1. Proceeds of all three games go to the Benevolent association to aid widows and orphans of officers slain in the line of duty.

CHURCH SCORES U. S. INVASION OF BUSINESS FIELD

Methodists Also Ask Jobs for All

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

The 106th annual Rock River Methodist conference yesterday adopted a report on economic and industrial problems in which it expressed fear of the expansion of federal paternalism and the entry of government into industrial, commercial, and professional competition with private citizens. Sessions in the Chicago temple close tomorrow afternoon with the reading of pastoral appointments by Bishop J. Ralph Magee.

The report, as submitted by the commission on economic and industrial problems headed by J. R. Jackson, Freeport business executive, originally was much stronger in its demand that the federal government reduce its competition with private business as rapidly as possible after peace comes. But this paragraph, speaking of plans for future expansion of federal competition as being "alarming," was deleted.

Ask Realistic Analysis

The deleted paragraph also declared that the result of the proposed expansion would be "the extinction of the system of free enterprise and the regimentation of all groups of our society." One sentence was permitted to remain: "We commend the subject to the most careful, impartial and realistic analysis by our best minds in the church, in government, industry and labor."

As to war time conditions, the report as adopted recognized "that centralization of control is necessary in all our activities, while in peace, regimentation beyond reasonable requirements for coördination, is injurious to our economy. We therefore urge that at the end of war, government relinquish to productive groups, all equipment and control not necessary for proper regulation."

Employing groups were warned of responsibility to provide "essentially full employment or face menacing consideration of alternative systems of economics."

Asks Christianity in Business

Andrew H. Phelps Jr., Pittsburgh, Pa., industrialist, an an address last night on, "The Layman and His Church," pleaded for the application of Christianity to everyday business. "It is appropriate," he said, "that we should think about the layman in business. Most of his life is spent that way. There is a great need for consecrated men from the very top of industry to the bottom; men who will live fearlessly, righteously and honestly before God and their fellow men.

"I do not mean that all laymen can become flaming evangels, but I do mean that most of them, thru a quiet, steady, solid example can eternally testify to the goodness of God and in this way best serve God and their fellow men."

TRUCK OF MEAT STOLEN

The theft of a 1937 panel truck filled with meat and owned by the Wholesale Provision company, from a garage at 1829 S. Pulaski rd., was reported to police yesterday by the operator, Harold Sher, 1409 S. Albany av.

Religious News Notes

The last 1945 presentation of the Passion Play at Zion will be given tomorrow afternoon. More than 17,000 persons have witnessed it this season, Deputy Overseer Carl Q. Lee said. Some 500 were turned away last Saturday because the house was sold out. Tickets cannot be purchased at the door and the management has announced that none should expect to attend the final performance unless tickets have been obtained in advance.

The picturesque rite of solemn entry will be performed at 10 a. m. tomorrow into St. Vladimir's church, Oakley blvd. and Cortez st., by the Rt. Rev. John Theodorowich, Philadelphia, Pa., archbishop of the Ukrainian Orthodox church. The Rev. Philip Halicke, pastor, and the Very Rev. Paul Korsunowsky will officiate as deacons at the mass. St. Vladimir's congregation was located for 30 years at 1944 Erie st. Its present property is the former Evangelical and Reformed Church of St. Peter, which will be dedicated to St. Vladimir in September.

Patriarch Mar Shimun XXIII. of the Church of the East will celebrate the Qurbana for Pentecost at 8 a. m. tomorrow in Mar Sargis Assyrian church, 1801 N. Orleans st. Qurbana means holy offering, and this term for the mass is equivalent to the Hebrew word "corban," translated in the New Testament "it is a gift." . . . Assyrians in Chicago will honor the 25th anniversary of the consecration of Mar Eshai Shimun to the patriarchate with a banquet at 8 p. m. July 1 in the Germania club. The Rev. Manno Oshana, Flint, Mich., will be toastmaster.

The commissioning of cadets in the Salvation Army will be held Monday night in Orchestra hall. Lt. Commissioner John J. Allan will preside. Speakers will be Col. Albert E. Chesham, territorial secretary; Lt. Col. Bertam Rodda, field secretary, and Col. W. Gordon Simpson, principal of the training college, 701 Brompton pl., where the class of 35 women and nine men completed its studies. . . . Causes and problems of delinquency will be discussed in a series of lectures under the direction of the Rev. Ralph Gallagher, professor of criminology at Loyola university. They will be given at the north shore campus, beginning Monday and continue thru Aug. 3.

The Rev. Dr. Albert W. Palmer, who will retire Dec. 31 from the presidency of Chicago Theological seminary, will become minister of radio at the First Congregational church, Los Angeles, Cal., March 1, 1946. . . . The appointment of Frank W. Taylor, vice president of the Continental Illinois National bank, as chairman of the board of trustees of Moody Bible institute has been announced by the Rev. Dr. Will H. Houghton, president. . . . The International Lutheran hour preacher tomorrow will be the Rev. Walter F. Traeger, pastor of Pilgrim Lutheran church, Santa Monica, Cal.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch has announced the appointment of the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. Gerald Kealy, St. Gertrude's; the Rev. George A. Parker, St. Philip Neri's, and the Rev. Walter L. Fasnacht, St. Benedict's, to the board of consultors of the archdiocese.

SYPHILIS DECLINING IN CHICAGO, STATE AND CLINIC REPORT

Syphilis cases in Chicago declined 9 per cent in the year ended June 9, a report of the state health department showed yesterday. Over the entire state there was a decline of 17 per cent. Gonorrhea infections, however, increased 15 per cent in Chicago and less than 1 per cent in all of Illinois, the report said. The number of gonorrhea cases recorded in the state during the year was 9,770.

A 32 per cent decrease in new syphilis cases treated at the free clinic of the Illinois Social Hygiene league at 303 E. Chicago av. was shown in the report of that agency for the year ending June 1. New male patients decreased 36 per cent and new female patients 8 per cent.

New patients treated by the clinic during the year totaled 642, of whom 345 were women and 297 were men. These patients received 15,696 treatments. Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, president of the league, recalled that 10 years ago its clinic was giving more than 100,000 treatments a year.

Blue Island Crash Fatal to Rock Island Motorist

Carlos L. McWilliams, 52, of Rock Island, died in Ingalls Memorial hospital, Harvey, yesterday of injuries suffered Thursday when a car driven by Orrin Nowers, 58, of 12602 Artesian av., Blue Island, collided with another car at Michigan rd. and Sibley blvd., Dolton. The other driver, Arthur Guziar, 24, of 147 Goslin st., Hammond, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

DEATH OF CHILD BLAMED ON LEAD AND PNEUMONIA

Death June 10 of Joy Marschke, 9, of 3251 E. 91st st. of a mysterious illness that attacked her and five brothers and sisters was caused by lead poisoning complicated by bronchial pneumonia, a coroner's jury decided yesterday. The verdict was based on testimony by Dr. S. S. Snider, coroner's physician, and by the child's mother, Mrs. Edward Marschke.

Mrs. Marschke testified that Michael Durkin of 9221 Burley av. had put in an old lead pipe when she complained of a kitchen leak. Durkin contended he had used a new pipe, but Dr. Snider said that lead poisoning could have been caused by the pipe if it was corroded.

Mrs. May L. Jones, owner of the building, has been summoned to License court on June 27 on a charge of violating the health code.

Recover Body of Berwyn Sergeant in B-29 Crash

Tampa, Fla., June 22 (AP)—Bodies of the three men who died in the crash of a B-29 Super Fortress in Tampa bay Wednesday, have been recovered by army divers. One of the victims was T/Sgt. Joseph E. Sleitweiler of Berwyn, Ill., radio operator instructor. Sgt. John L. McLemore, gunner, of Racine, Wis., is in critical condition at the MacDill field hospital from injuries received in the crash.

Prince Louis of Spanish Royal House Dies in Paris

LONDON, June 22 [Reuters]—Prince Louis, a member of the Spanish royal house of Bourbon-Orleans and great-grandson of King Louis Phillipe of France, died in a Paris hospital, the French radio announced today. He had been under treatment for more than two years.

THIS NAVY WIFE CAN LOOK DOWN ON WAR CAREER

Ever since her husband, Comdr. Thomas F. White, went into the navy three years ago Mrs. Louise White has been doing daily stints of walking on roof ledges and scaffolds high on loop and near north side skyscrapers.

That's part of her job of estimating and inspecting the tuck pointing and other building repair and cleaning jobs she must look after in carrying on for her husband as president of the White Building and Maintenance company, 15 W. Hubbard st.

She likes it, the crews like it, and apparently the customers like it, for the company is busy. She hopes her husband will say "well done" when he comes home to take over. Meanwhile, she says, it's certainly right to say that when her husband went into service she went into the air.

MRS. CARPENTER DIES; EARLY AID OF GIRL SCOUTS

Mrs. Helen Graham Carpenter, 77, widow of Benjamin Carpenter, one of Chicago's leading business men, died last night in the Evanston hospital. She made her home in recent years with Dr. Clara M. Davis at 550 Oak st., Evanston.

Mrs. Carpenter, the daughter of Nathan K. Fairbank, was born in Chicago. She was one of the organizers and a former president of the Birth Control League of Illinois, and first director of the Girl Scouts in Chicago. She was a member of the American genealogy society.

Mrs. Carpenter is survived by two sons, Benjamin Carpenter Jr., and Lt. Fairbank Carpenter, U. S. N. R.; two daughters, Mrs. Cordelia F. Davis and Mrs. Elizabeth C. Marshall. Her husband died in 1927.

BLISS & LAUGHLIN

Please give me a report on Bliss & Laughlin, Inc.—N. R.

The company, with plants at Harvey, Ill., Buffalo, N. Y., and Mansfield, Mass., manufactures cold finished steel bars and shaftings in a wide range of sizes and shapes. It is dependent on steel manufacturers for its raw material, hot rolled bars.

The company's post-war sales outlook appears satisfactory in view of the prospects for most of the industries which use products of this kind. Automobile builders, the most important customers in normal times, take about 30 per cent of Bliss & Laughlin's output. Other users include industries making farm and industrial machinery, electric motors and generators, and household appliances.

During 1944 the bulk of the company's shipments consisted of materials for war work. Sales increased sharply after 1940, but the profit showing was restricted by increased taxes and, in 1942 and 1943, by contingency reserves of $150,000. Earnings per share on approximately 262,737 common shares were: 1944, $2.49; 1943, $2.17 after tentative renegotiation settlement; 1942, $2.23; 1941, $3.40; 1940, $2.64; 1939, $2.49. On about 174,000 shares the 1938 and 1937 profits were 19 cents and $3.67.

Cash dividends on the common stock, paid each year since 1921 except 1932 and 1938, at varying rates, have amounted to $1.50 a share a year from 1942 on. Net working capital as of last Dec. 31 was $2,667,000. Outstanding are 11,508 shares of $1.50 cumulative preferred stock, $30 par. There is no funded debt.

SUPPLY OF HOGS FALLS FURTHER; SELL AT LIMITS

Hog prices held at ceiling prices yesterday as receipts from farms decreased again. Only a small part of the large backlog of orders for pork and hogs was filled. The Chicago supply, 8,000 head including shipments direct to packers, was only 200 above the 1945 Friday low.

Price changes in other meat animals were small. The cattle run dropped to 1,300 head, second smallest since March and third lowest of 1945 for Friday. Most steers, yearlings, and heifers sold steady, altho top grades were lacking.

Steady prices were paid for most sheep and lambs. New crop natives brought the $16.50 top price.

64 Chicago Area Plants Get 70 War Contracts

Sixty-four Chicago area companies last week received 70 war contracts valued at $544,000, the Chicago Association of Commerce, said yesterday.

WORKERS HOLD LARGE PART OF FIRMS' STOCKS

Fund Owns 14 Pct. of Sears Shares

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

Workers are important stockholders in many leading corporations. A study made yesterday of five widely known companies showed extensive employe ownership—either directly or indirectly—of their common stocks.

Of the five companies, employes of Sears, Roebuck & Co. own the largest interest thru participation in a company savings and profit sharing pension fund which owns about 14 per cent of stock outstanding.

During the 1920s many companies pursued actively the policy of fostering employe ownership. However, the depression, during which stocks dropped in market value, caused many to reconsider because employes were not happy about the ownership of stocks selling well below prices paid.

Registration Is Required

Another factor that has mitigated against expansion of employe stock ownership has been a securities and exchange commission regulation requiring that stocks sold to employes must be registered with SEC. This involves legal and other expenses which companies hesitate to incur. It also opens the books of privately owned companies to public inspection. However, this regulation does not apply to stock sold by Illinois companies to their employes located in Illinois, nor does it apply to stock sales totaling less than $300,000.

The Sears-Roebuck plan of indirect ownership by approximately 54,500 participating employes has been regarded as highly successful. As of Dec. 31 the fund held 788,869 shares of the company's stock with a market value of $68,631,603. Trustees of the fund buy additional shares when they consider the market price satisfactory.

In Effect Since 1916

The plan has been in effect since July 1, 1916 and it was set up to enable employes to share in the company's profits, to encourage the habit of saving and to provide funds for retirement. Employes are divided into four groups for the purpose of the plan: [A] those having less than 5 years' service; [B] those having 5 to 10 years; [C] those having 10 or more years, excluding depositors who have 15 or more years and are past 50, and [D] those having 15 or more years who are past 50.

As of Jan. 31, 1944, employe savings since inception of the fund totaled $40,964,703 and Sears-Roebuck contributions totaled $60,545,410. Including earnings and other items total receipts since 1916 were $133,627,242, of which $67,132,516 was withdrawn, leaving total members' accounts on Jan. 31, 1944, at $66,494,726.

Supervisory and executive management employes of General Motors corporation were listed as holding about 3,300,000 shares. Because of the large number of employes of the company and the heavy turnover it has not been possible to obtain an accurate check of holdings by rank and file workers.

Swift Workers Own Stock

Approximately 6,100 employes of Swift & Co. own about 462,000 shares of the company's outstanding common stock. This does not include stock held by members of the Swift family. The company has no program for the sale of shares to its employes. In 1904 a stock purchase plan was set up under which employes could make purchases under an instalment plan. The plan was dropped in 1938. For approximately 13 years the company also had a plan whereby employes were permitted to subscribe at a fixed price under the market for a limited number of shares held by the company. This plan was dropped in 1932.

United States Steel corporation dropped an employe subscription plan in 1933. The last record of employe ownership showed that 53,648 employes held 829,824 shares of common stock and 73,675 shares of preferred. No records have been kept for some years.

American Telephone and Telegraph company maintained an employes stock purchase plan for workers in the Bell System for some years prior to the depression. Under the plan the employes could purchase A. T. & T. common stock on the instalment plan. The program was discontinued during the depression when the market price of the stock dropped below the subscription price.

Consider Employe Interest

As the need for new capital and the method of financing becomes clear, the company has indicated that it will give consideration to the interest of employes in participating in stock purchases. About 60,000 Bell employes own about 750,000 shares of A. T. & T. stock.

American Airlines last December announced a plan under which 100,000 shares of employe stock of $5 par were authorized. This stock is convertible on a share for share basis into common stock after having been held for three years. None of the stock has been issued and probably will not be until after the war.

Table shows employe stock holdings in five leading companies:

	No. of employe stockholders	Shares owned	% of total
American Tel & Tel	60,000	750,000	3.8
General Motors	.....	3,300,000*	7.5
Sears, Roebuck & Co	54,500	788,869†	14.
Swift & Co.	6,100	462,000‡	7.7
United States Steel	53,648	829,824§	9.5

*Held by supervisory and executive management groups; other employe holdings not available. §Common stock. Employes also own 73,675 preferred shares. ‡Excluding members of Swift family. †Indirect holdings of beneficiaries of company profit sharing and pension fund.

Securities Act Changes Held Trading Aids

The legislature has approved and sent to Gov. Green amendments to the Illinois securities act which dealers said yesterday would widen the scope of trading.

The chief effect of the amendments is to broaden the definition of "exempted" transactions to permit a registered dealer or broker to resell a security outstanding if information about it is available in accepted investment manuals or thru the secretary of state. An "exempted" security is one which need not be registered with the secretary of state.

Some Trading Now Barred

The act now forbids secondary trading in many securities that are not exempted from registration with the secretary of state or qualified in the state.

Another effect will be to increase the list of exempted securities to include those listed on the New York Curb exchange. The act now exempts securities listed on the New York Stock exchange, the Chicago Stock exchange or the Chicago Board of Trade.

Additional amounts of a security listed on one of the exchanges may be issued without qualification under the amendments if they are approved for listing on the exchange when issued.

Some Exemptions Withdrawn

If investment company shares are priced on the basis of a formula instead of market price on an exchange, the exemption granted to those listed on a recognized exchange is withdrawn.

New Illinois corporations will be permitted to obtain up to $25,000 of capital without registering with the state unless the stock is sold by a salesman or a person paid a commission. The exemption under the act now is $10,000.

Securities dealers said that the amendments will materially broaden over-the-counter trading.

HUMBLE PLANT RULE TAKEN BY PETROLEUM UNIT

Corpus Christi, Tex., June 22 (AP)—The petroleum administration for war today took over operation of Humble Oil and Refining company's Ingleside, Tex., refinery. President Truman ordered the seizure June 6, but a series of legal moves had delayed it until today. Production was uninterrupted.

Earlier today in Houston United States District Judge J. C. Hutcheson denied a petition by Humble for a preliminary injunction to restrain the PAW from taking over the plant, pending an appeal.

The seizure was recommended to Mr. Truman by Economic Stabilizer Davis when the company refused to carry out a war labor board directive.

INDIANA PUBLIC SERVICE TELLS REFUND PLANS

Plans for refunding and refinancing operations of Public Service Company of Indiana were announced yesterday by Robert A. Gallagher, president, who said they were the first step in disposal of the company's gas and water properties to make Public Service strictly an electric company.

The program, which must be submitted for approval to the securities and exchange commission and in part to stockholders, involves the refunding of $59,314,500 of first mortgage bonds, the refinancing of its $14,818,590 of preferred stock, and the paying of $7,750,000 of serial notes before the date due.

FORD FILES PROTEST WITH WPB OVER 1945 AUTO OUTPUT QUOTAS

Detroit, Mich., June 22 (AP)—J. R. Davis, director of sales and advertising of Ford Motor company, said today his company had protested to the war production board against "the method followed in allocating automobile production for the last half of 1945."

"Our company believes that it is discriminatory against both our dealers and our suppliers," Davis said. "For example, our dealers will receive about four cars each, whereas dealers representing some of the smaller independents will receive many times that number."

Davis added that the program "fails to take into consideration the fact that we will be operating at less than 10 per cent of pre-war output, whereas one of the independents will be operating at nearly 100 per cent of pre-war production and another at approximately 15 times pre-war output."

Ford was given a quota of 39,910, Chrysler 49,635, and General Motors 95,096 for the second half of 1945. With the exception of Studebaker, allocated 9,275, the other companies were given quotas of 8,000 each, which WPB said would enable them to start production at a reasonable rate.

Spokesmen for General Motors and Chrysler said no formal protests had been made by their companies.

COURT APPROVES 30 LOCOMOTIVES FOR MILWAUKEE

United States District Judge Igoe yesterday authorized the Milwaukee railroad to purchase 30 additional diesel electric locomotives to cost $5,908,535. Delivery will begin next month and all are expected to be in service by October.

Sharing the order are the electromotive division of General Motors corporation, Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Baldwin Locomotive works, American Locomotive company, and the Milwaukee road shops.

H. A. Scandrett, trustee of the road, announced that five of the new diesels will be 5,400 horsepower freight locomotives for heavy duty service and five will be of 4,000 horsepower for high speed passenger service. The remainder will be 1,000 horsepower switching engines.

GRAIN FUTURES PRICES SLIP ON CROP PROSPECTS

Grain futures prices declined yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and prices closed near the bottom. Rye lost 1 to 2⅛ cents a bushel, wheat 1⅝ to 1⅞, corn ½ to ⅝, oats ½ to ⅞, and barley 1 to 1⅝.

Buying by distilling interests lifted rye prices 1 to 2⅝ cents in the early trading, but the market weakened as soon as the demand subsided and prices declined more than 3 cents from the high point. Brokers expect a much larger acreage of rye will be harvested for grain than was previously expected.

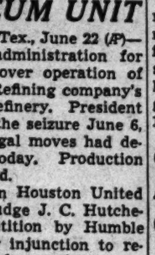
Feed grains were depressed by a department of agriculture forecast of an 87 million head 1945 pig crop, about equal to that of last year.

Marshall Field and Wife Sell Milwaukee Av. Corner

Marshall Field and his wife Ruth Pruyn Field yesterday sold the northeast corner of Milwaukee and Diversey avs., 116 by 90 feet, to the Liberty National bank, as trustee, for $82,500. It is improved with a two story store and office building. Ward Farnsworth & Co. was broker.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

Raymond L. Redheffer has been elected chairman of the Merchandise National bank, a position which had been vacant since the death of George B. Everitt in 1941, the bank announced yesterday. Redheffer will remain president, a position he has held since the bank's organization 15 years ago. The controlling ownership interest in the bank remains unchanged. Officials denied that control had been asked or that a change was in prospect. Deposits of the banks exceed 65 million dollars.



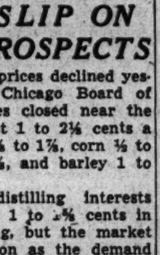
Raymond L. Redheffer

Talcott Griswold was appointed to the newly created post of manager of the Chicago department of Marsh & McLennan, Inc. R. M. Cunningham, vice president, will continue in executive charge. Griswold joined the firm in 1931.

Twelve Chinese railway officials yesterday were guests of the Santa Fe Railway on an inspection tour of that carrier's diesel shops and repair facilities in Chicago. Members of the delegation, headed by E. S. Mao, superintendent of the Liukiang, China, Locomotive and Car works, will remain here until July 1 inspecting other railroads and railway supply factories in the area.

Harry R. Likens, with Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation since 1940, was appointed plant industrial engineer of the South Chicago works.

William A. Marsteller, vice president of Edward Valve and Manufacturing company, East Chicago, was elected president of the Chicago Industrial Advertisers' association for a one year term.



William A. Marsteller

Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company's Hammond plant won its fourth army-navy E.

E. Q. Kruchten resigned as controler of Netcher's Boston store to devote time to his farm and to open his own public accounting office.

Clarence W. Newman, research director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, was appointed industrial analyst of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway.

World Money Plan Success Put Up to U.S.

LONDON, June 22 (AP)—The Federation of British Industries said today that the main responsibility for the success of the Bretton Woods world monetary plan rested with the United States.

This responsibility, the federation maintained, lay in the virtual veto power held by the United States on any proposed changes in the plan and location of both the international monetary fund and bank in America.

Altho having "some misgivings" over these conditions, the federation accorded general approval to the plan and said that if it came to a showdown on modifications or outright rejection the plan should be approved right away as it stands.

"Willing to Go Along"

A spokesman said that if the plan obtained final approval industrialists in Britain, tho admittedly concerned over the power held by the United States, were willing to go along and trust that it would be wisely administered. The federation insisted the plan "will doubtless have to be modified and adapted to meet changes in circumstances in the world environment."

Because the United States, as largest contributor, has 28 votes, the federation said:

"It in effect is given sole power to veto over any proposed modification of the agreement, [a] to alter a member's quota, [b] change the scale of charges on debts to the fund, and [c] on possible additions to the number of executive directors since any [such] alteration requires 75 or 80 per cent of the total votes."

Entire Plan Held Vicious

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—Benjamin M. Anderson, University of California economics professor, contended before the senate banking committee today that the whole Bretton Woods program "is vicious, artificial, self-defeating." Rather than adhering to an international bank and monetary fund, he said, the United States should establish an American institution.

Such an institution should "make stabilization loans to individual countries one at a time," he said, "putting gold into their central banks on conditions of budget balancing and gold stabilization with, where necessary, supervision of uses to which funds are put."

Anderson, economist for the Chase National bank of New York for 19 years before joining the university in 1939, asserted that a "few hundreds of millions properly used" would stabilize the currencies of Europe, but that the proposed plan would "shelter unsound finance and unsound currency."

U. S. DOCUMENTS IN A. & P. TRIAL PASS 2,500 MARK

Danville, Ill., June 22 (AP)—The number of government exhibits in the A. & P. anti-trust trial passed the 2,500 mark today as prosecutors read more documentary evidence.

Walker Smith, special assistant to the attorney general, dealt with the price of Dexo, an A. & P. brand of shortening on which the government contends the food chain maintained a price differential under nationally advertised vegetable shortenings and forced a loss on the manufacturer. Other documents related to protection against rising prices which A. & P. allegedly obtained from manufacturers.

The trial which began April 16, is on criminal information against the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and 28 officers and subsidiaries.

DISCLOSE MINES BUREAU MAKES SYNTHETIC GAS

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—Michael W. Straus, assistant secretary of the interior, today said: "The bureau of mines is actually making synthetic fuels and gasoline. It is a good gasoline and drives internal combustion engines."

Successful completion of the five year 30 million dollar synthetic fuels demonstration program authorized by congress will, he told a special senate committee investigating petroleum reserves, "be a long step toward establishment of a synthetic fuels industry" and "we will then be ready for a United States declaration of oil independence."

He said the major part of synthetic gasolines will come from coals and lignites, of which proven deposits of over 3 trillion tons lies in the United States.

I. C. Revises Schedules to Speed War Travel

Revised schedules to facilitate war time travel will be put into effect July 1 by the Illinois Central railroad, J. W. Stevenson, passenger traffic manager, said yesterday. Most schedules will be speeded and departures and arrivals adjusted to provide more convenient service and improve connections with other railroads. The faster schedules include trains on the road's western lines, as well as to the south.

STOCKS HANDED FIRST SETBACK SINCE JUNE 11

Air Line, Specialty Issues Strong

New York, June 22 (AP)—A variety of specialty and air line stocks remained strong today, but selling elsewhere sent the market lower for the first time since June 11. The average had touched a new peak for nearly eight years in the morning.

Volume was heavy before noon, with blocks of low priced issues running to 10,000 shares. The recently buoyant rails then began to slip and liquidation spread to other departments. Recessions of fractions to two or more points were many at the close. Transfers of 1,850,000 shares compared with 2,100,000 yesterday.

Utilities Attain Peak

The Associated Press 60 stock composite dipped 0.2 to 67.6, but the utility average touched a top since 1937. In another broad market with 947 issues traded 437 declined, 330 rose, and 207 were unchanged.

Among favorites, Schenley rose 4 points to 64¼ on reports of a stock split and boosted dividend. Transcontinental and Western Air climbed 3¼, American Airlines 2, and Eastern Air Lines 1¼ as the Reconstruction Finance corporation announced arrangements for aiding aviation transport companies in obtaining parts and materials. A. O. Smith gained 3½ and lesser advances were made by Canadian Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Goodrich, United States Gypsum, North American, Consolidated Edison, Warner Brothers, Paramount Pictures, and Packard.

MONON RAIL BONDS SOAR

New York, June 22 (AP)—The bond market today was irregular altho many individual issues were strong. Several loans of the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville [Monon] railroad made spectacular gains after a federal court in Chicago approved a modified plan of reorganization. The 4s of 1947 soared 9½ points to 96, the 5s of 1947 gained 8 to 102, and the 6s of 1947 moved up 7 to 106. The 5s of 1966 fell back a little.

CHICAGO STOCKS MIXED

Priced closed irregular in reduced turnover of 43,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Active issues included Kellogg Switchboard, up 1; Standard Dredging, unchanged, and Chicago corporation common and Aviation corporation, each down ¼.

Predict Less Pork, Not More; Food in East Held Insufficient

Pig Crop Smaller

Less pork, not more, was indicated in a department of agriculture forecast yesterday which ran contrary to all industry expectations. In estimating the spring pig crop 7 per cent smaller in 1945 than a year ago, the department dashed packing industry hopes of an increased volume of pork next fall and winter when most spring pigs are marketed.

Industry opinion had been that there would be a 10 to 12 per cent increase. This was the widest difference in private and official surveys ever reported, veterans in the trade said.

Food officials clung to their predictions of more pork next fall and winter than is available now, tho the supply then will be less than a year earlier. Pork tonnage may be aided by feeding hogs to heavier weights, but much of the increase would be fat.

Decline Put at 3,741,000 Head

The federal estimate placed the spring pig crop at 51,687,000 head, down 3,741,000 from a year earlier. It included all pigs farrowed from last Dec. 1 to June 1. The total was 22,347,000 head or 30 per cent less than the record 1943 total and 9,215,000 or 15 per cent below the 1942 spring crop. It also was below many of the pre-war years. The federal goal was 57 million.

The government's prediction that a gain of 13 per cent was indicated in breeding for fall pigs over the fall crop last year barely offset the spring crop decrease, but hogs from the fall farrowing will not come to market until the spring and summer of 1946 or later.

Fall Crop Gains, Still Small

The fall crop was estimated at 35,300,000 head, a gain of about 4 million from a year ago. However, such a fall crop still would be the second smallest since 1940 and more than 12 million less than the 1943 record fall crop.

The department expressed belief, however, that the fall crop will be larger than indicated now.

On the basis of present figures farmers will raise only about 247,000 more pigs all this year than in 1944, an insignificant increase. The total of the two crops was placed tentatively at 87 million. The record set in 1943 was 121,706,000.

13 Governors Meet

New York, June 22 (AP)—Governors of 13 northeastern states today described their people as without sufficient food and said government aid was necessary to relieve the situation. The governors attended a food conference called by Gov. Dewey of New York and Gov. Baldwin of Connecticut.

Dewey termed the food problem the "most pressing one of the moment."

In a joint statement they said the key to relieving shortages lay in eliminating what was termed a railroad bottleneck preventing shipment of sufficient cars of feed grain. The milk supply was the only favorable item reported.

Would Review Army's Needs

Gov. McGrath of Rhode Island, asserting that one-third of the residents of his state were going without sufficient food, recommended that army and navy demands on the nation's food supply be reviewed.

"The army and navy should make a determination as to how much longer" they will require 60 per cent of the production of certain meat, he said.

McGrath also recommended modification of selective service demands on farm man power and said he had requested a Presidential investigation to determine why this country was not getting more food from Canada.

Gov. Tobin of Massachusetts said the problem of food production was "assuming the seriousness of that of the production of tanks and planes early in the war."

Assails OPA Practice

Two New England governors, Mortimer R. Proctor of Vermont and Morris A. Hildreth of Maine, said OPA slaughtering regulations were unfair for these states.

Governors O'Conor of Maryland and Bacon of Delaware asserted their states—both centers for poultry raising—were victims of serious poultry shortages because the army was taking the entire broiler production of both states.

O'Conor, asking that OPA price ceilings on poultry be reviewed and adjusted upward, criticized the army for "not stating" how much it needed.

Gov. Dale of New Hampshire said "tempers are becoming brittle" because of insufficient food. Baldwin said low income groups were hardest hit.

Western Electric Leases Plant for Air Parts Output

The three story building at 1240 N. Homan av. has been leased by Western Electric company to produce parts for air borne equipment for the army air forces, the company said yesterday. Production facilities costing about 1¼ million dollars will be provided by the Defense Plant corporation.

Chicago Stock Exchange Votes Saturday Closings

The board of governors yesterday voted to close the Chicago Stock exchange on Saturdays during July and August and on Sept. 1. Similar action had been taken by New York securities markets.

4 NEW STRIKES RAISE TOTAL OF IDLE TO 85,000

CIO Defies WLB Bid in Goodyear Tieup

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Four new strikes, one over lack of meat in lunch sandwiches, boosted the total of workers idle in labor disputes to more than 85,000 yesterday. About 8,700 persons in the aircraft, chemical, rubber, and artillery fuse industries were involved in the fresh outbreaks. In Detroit alone 35,900 were idle, 20,900 in the Packard Motor dispute over reconversion jobs.

CIO United Rubber Workers' leaders last night notified the war labor board they refused to appear at a show cause hearing today on ending the week old strike over wages, hours, and overtime pay of 16,700 in five Goodyear Tire and Rubber company plants in Akron, O. They said unionists were "tired of bungling and resentful of attempts to coerce them as a substitute for proper handling of the case." An order to return to work, they charged, "would leave the company in a position to stall on grievances and evade its contract at will."

Quit to Shop for Food

Some 7,500 left their jobs at the Conner av. aircraft plant of Briggs Manufacturing company in Detroit in protest against lack of meat in sandwiches supplied by a catering concern

Harold R. Wood of the CIO United Automobile Workers said there was "no strike," but "workers have to take time off to take their wives shopping for food because they cannot get what they need in neighborhood stores."

In Monsanto, Ill., production of the Monsanto Chemical company was halted when 1,200 workers failed to report after picket lines had been set up by warehouse employes.

Artillery Fuse Plant Shut

The Carter Carburetor company artillery fuse plant in St. Louis was compelled to shut down when 2,700 employes refused to cross a picket line established by 150 strikers. A CIO UAW representative said employes accused the company of delaying several arbitration cases unnecessarily.

One of the most widespread strikes was that in the glass industry, involving 8,000 Pittsburgh Plate Glass company employes and 7,000 of Libbey-Owens-Ford. The walkout started Thursday night after breakdown of contract negotiations with the CIO Glass Workers union.

PROTECTS 780,000 PEOPLE AGAINST UNEXPECTED HOSPITAL BILLS

2 RAPISTS, 16-17, SENTENCED FOR 40 AND 45 YEARS

Gang Members' Leniency Pleas Are Rejected

Tears and pleas of parents and attorneys failed to save two teen aged boys who were sentenced by Judge Peter H. Schwaba in Criminal court yesterday to long prison terms for rape and robbery. They were charged with committing 30 crimes on the west and northwest sides.

Richard Gibbons, 17, of 331 S. Bell av., was sentenced to serve 45 years on each of five charges of rape; 10 to 20 years on each of four automobile larceny charges, and 10 to 20 years on each of three robbery charges. He was accused of being the leader of a gang of nine youths, six of them juveniles, that terrorized the communities last spring.

Sentences Are Concurrent

Eugene Messmore, 16, of 2101 Adams st., was sentenced to 40 years on each of three charges of rape; 10 to 20 years for each of two robberies, and 10 to 20 years for larceny. All sentences will be concurrent.

James Brown, 16, of 415 S. Oakley blvd., was sentenced to six months in county jail and placed on probation for five years for larceny. He escaped prosecution on a rape charge because he was only 15 years old at the time of the crime.

"This is a vicious crime and calls for severe punishment," said Judge Schwaba in sentencing Gibbons. Atty. John O. Wagner pleaded that Gibbons was a victim of movies and bad friends, that he was just a boy.

Age Excuse Is Rejected

Messmore clutched a prayer book when his attorney, Julius Sherwin, begged leniency. "This boy," he said, "is hardly dry behind the ears." Judge Schwaba retorted, "Age is no excuse. Youth today is much more advanced than the youth of yesterday."

Assistant State's Attorneys John Long and Theodore Kaye vigorously opposed the pleas for leniency. The sentences are said to be among the most severe on record.

Gibbons was caught by highway policemen April 17 after he raped an 18 year old bride in the forest preserve near Thatcher rd.

Six younger members of the gang, who had pleaded guilty, were transferred to Juvenile court. Three other members were found guilty June 5.

MUSIC FESTIVAL WINNER IN 1942 ON RADIO TODAY

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Winifred Heckman, young Chicago contralto, who was a winner in the Chicago Music Festival, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in 1942 and in the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs' contest in 1945, will make a guest appearance on the GI Joe Remembers program on WBBM at 1:15 p. m. today. The show features letters from soldiers telling of the things at home they miss most. Miss Heckman has been selected as soloist for the Grant park concert on July 8. Nicolai Malko will conduct the Grant Park Symphony orchestra.

The Breakfast Club will round out 12 years of morning broadcasts at 8 a. m. today over WCFL, WLS, and ABC, with a homecoming and war bond show coming from Sheboygan, Wis. Sheboygan is the home town of Don McNeil, who has been getting up earlier than a farmer for a dozen years to conduct this hilarious hour. In McNeill's company are Jack Baker and Marion Mann, singers; Sam Cowling and Fran Allison [Aunt Fanny], comics, and Ed Ballantine's orchestra.

WPB UPHOLDS PRINTING BAN ON 2 MAGAZINES

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—The war production board today rejected an appeal for permission to continue distribution of two comic magazines.

The WPB said the two magazines, Ribtickler and Book of All Comics have been printed in violation of order L-244, which limits the paper tonnage that can be used to print magazines and periodicals.

"The decision," WPB said in a statement, "may set up a precedent for cases involving many millions of copies of comic and detective magazines that have been printed in violation of paper quota."

WPB said the two magazines were published under the imprint of Chicago Nite Life News, Inc., 250 W. Broadway, New York City, "which has used paper greatly in excess of its quota."

'BLUE DANUBE' WILL BE SUNG BY MARION CLAIRE

The Chicago Theater of the Air summer concert hour over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network at 9 o'clock tonight will include light familiar classics. A high spot on the broadcast will be a presentation of "Blue Danube" by Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the Theater of the Air series.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire and Bruce Foote, baritone, will join in "La ci darem la Mano" from "Don Giovanni," and both will be heard with the chorus in "Love's Own Sweet Song." Foote also will sing "Deep River" and "Tommy Lad." The chorus will accompany him in "My Faithful Stradivari." Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N orchestra in the overture to the "Merry Wives of Windsor," "Sipapu," "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," and "Ha Za Za." The chorus is to offer "The Joy of the Hunter" from "Der Freishutz." A "Sari" medley also will be presented.

John Barclay will be narrator for the broadcast. Jack La Frandre is director.

MOTHER WHOSE GIRLS DROWNED WILL GET TEST

A mental examination was ordered yesterday by Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court for Mrs. Helen Souhada, 29, of 2429 S. Troy st., charged with the murder of her two daughters, Nancy, 3, and Constance, 7 months. They were drowned June 8 in a bathtub in their home.

Mrs. Souhrada sobbed bitterly and appeared near collapse. Asst. State's Atty. Sam Freedman told the court she was unable to plead her case. Public Defender Frances McCurry was appointed to represent her. Mrs. Souhrada's eyes were blackened and bloodshot from a recent fall in the county jail hospital.

The examination will be made by Dr. William H. Haines, head of the Criminal court behavior clinic. The hearing was continued to July 6. Mrs. Souhrada's husband, John, died Nov. 13 when Connie was born. Relatives testified before the grand jury she had been morbid and depressed since that time.

HARRISON ST. SPAN TO CLOSE FOR 4 MONTHS

The Harrison st. bridge will be closed for four months starting next Monday, Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said yesterday. This is necessary for replacement of counter-weights and flooring. The repairs are expected to cost about $70,000.

Hewitt also said that he had received a communication from the war production board asking for an estimate on the amount of labor needed to finish construction of the new bridge at Canal st. This bridge was started in 1941, but construction was halted shortly after the declaration of war.

The commissioner told the WLB that about 8,056 man days of skilled labor and 4,732 man days of unskilled labor would be required to complete the structure. Remaining work will cost about $960,000. Thus far only the approaches are complete.

MEDALS GIVEN TO MERCHANT MARINE MEN

Washington, D. C., June 22 (AP)—The United States maritime commission has announced that the following Illinois members of the merchant marine have been decorated with the mariner's medal:

Frank Fauble, Redman; Jack Armstrong [posthumously], whose mother, Mrs. Cammie Ione Armstrong, lives at 1516 N. Glendale av., Peoria; Lester Tripp, 12221 Longwood dr., Blue Island, and John Connon [posthumously], whose mother, Mrs. Mary Connon, lives at 417 S. Kilbourne av., Chicago.

In addition, Ensign Frederick O. Williams, U. S. M. S., of 545 S. Taylor av., Oak Park, received the merchant marine distinguished service medal for "heroism beyond the line of duty" as third assistant engineer of the Liberty ship Francis Asbury.

ARVEY, FULTON, LANGWORTHY TO GET LAW HONOR

Lt. Col. Jacob Arvey, former alderman and Democratic political leader now home from fighting ir the South Pacific, will be awarded an honorary master of laws degree tonight by John Marshall Law school. Col. Arvey was a former student at the school. Benjamin F. Langworthy of Winnetka, secretary of the Illinois State Bar association, and William J. Fulton of Sycamore, chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, also will receive similar honorary degrees at the commencement.

15 of 60 New Buses Take Part in Loop Bond Show

Fifteen new and improved diesel powered buses of the Chicago Motor Coach company, 12 of them so recently received that they lacked their final coats of paint, were driven thru the loop yesterday as part of a war bond show. The lead bus was driven by Joseph Bradley, a veteran of both World wars. More than 60 buses have been received by the company this month and about 50 more are promised soon.

Navy Rocket Exhibitions Will Wind Up Tomorrow

The last two beach rocket firing exhibitions will be presented at 8 p. m. today and tomorrow on the 12th st. beach by Great Lakes Naval Training center sailors who fired rockets during actual combat in the Pacific. The shows are sponsored by the war finance committee of Chicago and Cook county in coöperation with the navy. War bond booths will be open during both shows.

Charges Son-in-Law Beat Her; Dies in Hospital

Mrs. Emma Murphy, 72, of 3153 Wentworth av., died yesterday in County hospital of injuries suffered May 25. She told police she was beaten by her son-in-law, Edward Burks, 55, of 3241 Wabash av.

Robber, 20, Gets 20 Years as an Habitual Criminal

Frank Mamolella, 20, of 3030 Lexington st., was sentenced yesterday to 20 years in prison under the habitual criminal act by Judge John Prystalski in Criminal court. He was accused of robbing Dr. Alfred A. Walford, 7034 Crandon av., April 12 of his automobile, a $2,000 ring, and $60.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS—

Florida

A HEDGE
AGAINST INFLATION
Owner will sell, between now and Nov. 15, 1945, a very desirable orange grove and home, with two tenant houses and barn, centrally located in one of Florida's thriving communities.

There are 100 acres in the grove, including 6,000 trees of high production capacity; the crop this past season for $50,000; crop now set on the trees is estimated at 30,000 boxes; on the basis of present fruit prices, such a crop would bring $75,000 when the trees ripen.

If this grove should be purchased in October, there should be no income tax due on the fruit sold this winter, and if the 10% of Post-World War I. should be repeated after Japan falls, prices of fruit should increase and the grove sell proportionately higher.

The entire property will be sold under any one of the following options:

1. Cash payment, $220,000.
2. Cash payment, $150,000, plus interest at 4% on deferred payments, payable in five years, interest at 5%.
3. Cash payment, $110,000, plus one-third of fruit for eight years.

Note: Under Option 3 the amount received for ⅔ of present crop could be deducted in full from cash payment, leaving the remainder the sole cash investment.

Owner has been offered $50,000 for the next crop. If your Income Tax Status is above the 50% bracket a prompt investigation of Option 3 should prove highly profitable.

Full details furnished on request. Address B F 24, Tribune.
